Lexington, Ky.—The Michler Bros. Co., which started twenty years ago with only fifty feet of glass in its equipment, now has 14,000 feet. The firm's Mothers' day sales this year more than doubled those of last year and the Memorial day demand was greater than the supply.

Columbus, O.—Prof. Alfred C. Hottes, of the department of horticulture of Ohio State University, well known to the trade as a constant attendant at trade affairs, contributes to the university's agricultural extension service a pamphlet for the amateur grower, "About Roses."

PUSH

Don't stop for anything. Keep pushing every day. Make today bigger than yesterday and tomorrow bigger than today.

And don't depend entirely on YOURSELF. If your work is on the eighteenth floor of an office building, DON'T WALK UP THE STAIRS—USE THE ELEVATOR. If you want to ask a question of someone on the other side of the city, DON'T SPEND HALF A DAY GOING TO SEE HIM—USE THE TELEPHONE. Take advantage of the modern forces ALL AROUND YOU. Take advantage of the wonderful opportunities that other brains and organizations have provided to SAVE YOUR TIME AND SAVE LABOR AND HELP YOU MAKE MONEY.

Take advantage of the power of "Review" Classified Ads. They have built large and permanent business for many—for thousands of florists they have saved dumping a surplus; turned a loss into a quick profit.

They will do as much for you—but it is up to you to act. It is up to you to offer nothing but good stock, worth the money, and to get your ad to the office of "The Review" by

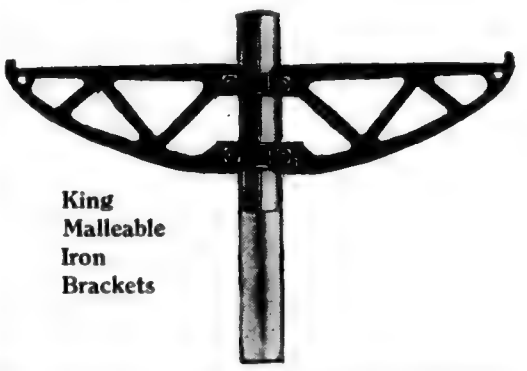
King GREENHOUSES

Are strong and permanent because of the careful attention paid to each detail of construction, for example:

King Malleable Fittings are not only of improved design (see illustration), with many exclusive features and advantages, but being made of malleable iron instead of cast iron they will not break or crack under the winter wind and snow load.

It will pay you to inspect the fittings in your houses carefully at this time and replace those cast iron fittings that have not and will not stand up under the strain, with King Malleable Fittings.



Write for catalogue and let us show you the many little things that are put into every King house to make it last longer and pay bigger returns on the investment.

SUNLIGHT Double Glass Sash for Hot-beds and Cold-frames

All column fittings in all Hitchings houses are always bolted through and through. That's why they never slip.

That's our dripless eave which, without drip gutters, entirely overcomes splashing of drip on plants and walk.

Roth Builds A Half Iron Framer

Carl Roth, of East Paterson, N. J., is one of those industrious men who erect their own houses.

He is one of those sound sense men who believe in biting off only what they can chew.

Of course he believes that the big houses are the big thing, these days of big business.

But he also believes that big oaks from little acorns grow. What he is doing now, is seeing that the acorn is started right, right at the start.

At present, he figures it's cheaper for him to buy the materials of us and do his own erecting. To be perfectly frank, believe he is dead right. If he had to cut and fit and tinker about, he wouldn't save any money.

But on the smaller, half iron frame houses, with all our materials accurately cut, fitted and given two coats of paint, it's a simple enough matter to put up a house.

When you get to wider houses, the chances are we can save money on erection costs.

We are always glad to give figures both ways. Then you can get out your little old lead pencil, sharpen it up, and do some figuring on your own hook.

You'll find both our Half Iron and Full Iron Framers fully described and illustrated in our Supply Book.

You know, we go anywhere for business.

Or to talk business.

How about your feet?

Are they fitted to your shoes or are your shoes fitted to them?

If shoes were made in only two or three standard widths, lots of us would be out of luck. But the width of a shoe is regulated by the kind of foot you're going to put into it.

Same way with AGMCO houses — the width is regulated by the stock you're going to put into them. They're standards to be sure, but the standard is based on the stock to be grown, not on feet and inches. And, you know —

There's a supreme satisfaction in knowing the whys of everything about your business.

An AGMCO representative is full to the brim with greenhouse whys.

He may be in your neighborhood next week—want to pump him?

Then mail a card NOW, before you're interrupted.

Greenhouse Builders

Portion of galvani ed eave plate with roof bar and clasp. Note how clasp is fastened to plate on each side with a round headed stove bolt; and the bar held firmly by a screw far enough from the end to prevent its splitting the wood. Splits let in moisture, causing end bar rot.

Pointing Out Eave Plate Points on the Pipe Frame House

Eave and flat wrought iron post with U-Drip Gutter attached

The eave plate, drip gutter, wrought iron post and roof bar clasp are exactly the same on our Pipe Frame or Semi-Iron house, as on our finest full iron framers.

You have the same wonderfully light eave, with its same wonderful strength.

You have the same U-Drip Gutter, preventing the drip from dropping on the sill and splashing on your plants and walk.

You can have this drip gutter or not, just as you like.

You have the same sturdy roof bar clasp, securely anchoring the bars to the galvanized angle iron eave plate. It is your sure insurance against end bar rot.

The last light of glass is held from slipping with a lug on the eave plate, exactly as on the full iron frame. With a side construction of such solidness, strength and endurance, your pipe frame sure has a good start.

Then, with the Giant arch to support the roof, you have a house that, next to our full iron frame, we frankly believe can't be beat.

Every detail of it is plainly shown and fully described in the Handy Hand Book.

If you haven't one, send at once for it.

Special eave fitting for Pipe Post and U-Drip Gutter.

This shows the glass stop lug and how it is screwed to the plate, preventing glass slipping.

MADE-IN-AMERICA BASKETS

of "Keystone Quality"

ARE BETTER THAN EUROPE'S BEST

Basket manufacturing is conducted on an entirely different basis in this country and abroad—

IN EUROPE baskets ARE MADE IN THE HOMES. At regular intervals they are collected by commissionaires and shipped to the importer. THERE IS NO SUPERVISION, NO CAREFUL WATCHING through the various stages of manufacture. Every worker is free to follow his individual inclination as to the way each basket should be made. RESULT—CARELESS, IRREGULAR, UNDESIRABLE WORK.

"Keystone Quality" Made-in-America Baskets are FACTORY MADE, in our modern sanitary workrooms, with TRAINED FOREMEN AS OVERSEERS. Each basket is skillfully designed for a particular floral use, its PRACTICABILITY always in mind. EVERY STYLE IS UNIFORM in weave and workmanship. The handles are straight, the baskets stand erect. Each one is glued so that it holds its shape against the hardest usage. These are a few of the reasons why

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

TRADE TRIES PROFIT SHARING

To meet the problems created by the scarcity of labor during the last two years, a number of florists have put into practice profit-sharing plans. Many others have manifested an interest in them, seeing a possibility of remedying their own difficulties. Here are told the plans florists have tried.

EVERY florist whose business is of such size that it cannot be handled by a few workers, all in close contact with their employer, has racked his brain continually during the last two years to find a means of meeting the acute problems presented by the scarcity of help. How to overcome the general unrest that has prevailed in greenhouse and store, impelling employees to express vague dissatisfaction and often leave for no real reason, has been a subject pondered frequently and at length. Time and again the employer's thoughts have turned to forms of remuneration, whether profit-sharing, bonuses or some other addition to the usual wages, as a possible solution of the problem. At trade meetings the subject has bobbed up, to evoke general discussion but to reach no definite conclusions. Not infrequently inquiries have been made of The Review as to forms of profit-sharing or bonus payments best adapted to this trade. Indeed, the widespread recurrence of this topic has compelled its recognition as one of much importance in the minds of members of the trade, in all its branches.

Peculiar Needs.

To devise a form of profit-sharing suited to the needs of this trade is not easy. Full proof of that fact is given by the experience of those who have tried. Modifications, if not complete changes, have been found necessary in all cases, not because the initial plan was faulty in itself, but because its effect on the employees was different from that desired and expected. This is not a condition confined to this industry; it is true and has been true since profit-sharing was first attempted. Study of the most successful systems, in existence for many years, in large manufacturing corporations of the type of the Procter & Gamble Co., soap makers, discloses that the original plan has undergone many transformations since its establishment. It is not strange, therefore, if florists, whose work is much different from that in standardized factory conditions, do not meet immediate success in their efforts to create a plan adapted to their peculiar needs.

In addition to meeting the needs prescribed by the working conditions of the trade, such a plan must also be formed with recognition of the temperament of the men who are to work under it, for the personal factor is exceedingly important in profit-sharing systems.

Personal Element.

That is only logical, since the object of such a system is to replace the stimulus supplied in small establishments by the personal contact of employer with employee. Where the proprietor is able, by his example and presence, to establish an esprit de corps and by constant association to discover and remove any hindrance to a perfectly functioning enterprise, the desire for or need of a profit-sharing plan is not perceptible.

In a large business, however, the presence of the proprietor is not able to be felt by the individual workers. They do not receive the appreciation and commendation that in the smaller establishment is worth so much, regardless of money payment. The employees think of their service to the business in dollars and cents and calculate their worth in return in the same medium. They are, consequently, energetic or slack in accordance with their estimation of the proportionate value of service and return. They do not feel that they are working in their own behalf, but in some one's else interest. To counteract that feeling is the object of the profit-sharing plan, or bonus system, or whatever style of extra payment one wishes to establish.

There are other objects of a profit-sharing system. In addition to creating a spirit of loyalty and interest, it is urged by advocates that such a plan increases efficiency and coöperation, that it promotes continuous service and gets rid of rolling stones, that it secures regular attendance and induces the persons interested to work harder, that it thereby decreases the cost of production and increases the profits in the business, that it enables a firm to keep its employees during rush seasons.

Perhaps the perfect profit-sharing plan would accomplish these things if the individuals to whom it was applied were to react according to expectations. Some of the results are obtained under plans now in force, but often disappointment and discouragement come from the workers' lack of appreciation of the employers' effort.

Faults Found.

From various sources come various reports. One is that the employees seemed to prefer their total earnings in fixed wages with no variable element. Another is that they were suspicious of the employer's motives; or that, in spite of the bonus or share in the profits, they sought higher wages; or that after a large distribution of profits one year, the employees were disgruntled if they received a smaller one the following year; or that, upon being told they were to have an interest in the business, the workers immediately told their employers how it should be run. These are the points indicated as responsible for the lack of success of profit-sharing by those who have tried it.

There are, of course, many kinds of profit-sharing. Indeed, the term, profit-sharing, itself requires some definition. It is here used to mean a remuneration

HOLDING THE HANDS

The war's draining of men from the florists' field of work into the army and into other industries, from which many have not returned, has caused in this trade a labor problem more acute than the general scarcity that has prevailed throughout the country. In consequence has arisen a keen interest in profit-sharing plans as a means of holding the hands in greenhouse and store.

paid to employees in addition to their regular wages and in proportion to the amount of the proprietor's earnings. Besides the plans covered by this definition are an endless number of sorts of bonus payments and premiums, whose purpose is much the same as that of a profit-sharing system. There are also other forms of benefit, such as group insurance, taken out by a company for those persons who have been in its employ for a year or more. This was instituted by the H. F. Michell Co. not long ago. Too, there are plans whereby employees are enabled to purchase stock in a corporation at par with the expectation that as stockholders they will feel less inclined to leave. But this is not applicable in particular to florists' concerns. The plans considered in this article are those that have been tried by florists and come under the definition given above of profit-sharing plans.

Store or Greenhouse?

In considering a plan suitable for his own business, a florist should bear in mind the difference between conditions in a store and in a greenhouse. The more shifting personnel of the force of workers in the latter and the wide variation in the returns on crops from month to month render unsatisfactory a plan which may work well in a store, where the valuable employees, with few exceptions, change infrequently and the size of sales may be noted by the employees from day to day, acting as a spur to their zeal.

One florist who operated both a large range and a store, one of the leaders in the trade, laid aside ten per cent of his year's profits for distribution among the employees at the store and five per cent for those in the greenhouses. So many of the workers at the range were transients or left before the year was up that the ratio of those who shared in the profits to the total number of workers was much smaller in the greenhouses than in the store. To allot the same percentage of earnings to store and to greenhouse would therefore be unfair to the workers in the store, in his estimation.

To Whom Given.

Naturally the question arises as to whom a share in the profits is to be paid. Should it go to everyone in the florist's employ, including the delivery boys and the unskilled help, or should it go only to those who carry responsibility for a part of the business, such as department heads, salesmen, foremen and the like?

The answer to that question depends upon the purpose of adopting a profit-sharing plan. If the purpose is to retain workers and save constant hiring of new men, payments to department heads or foremen will not accomplish it. If the employment aspect is not an important part of the object, but the chief aims are increased efficiency and reduced expenses, it may be better to confine the payments to department heads, the individual share then being of such size that it forms a strong inducement to greater effort on the recipients' part.

Of course, under any system, an individual must have been in the florist's employ a stated period, usually a year, before he is eligible to a share of the profits. This provision is calculated as an inducement for the employee to continue with the concern and to discourage rolling stones. Often the time of payment is set at such a date that it falls after the busy season is over, in the neighborhood of July 1 among florists, in order further to hold workers when they are needed most. When business is slack, also, there is not so great inclination to change jobs as at busy times and so the employee is apt under such a plan to continue in a place permanently.

Plans Now in Use.

When one comes to consider the plans now in use, he finds definite principles difficult of expression, since profit-sharing is so new in this trade. A number have not yet paid their first percentage; others have only just done so. And, as stated above, these plans are particularly susceptible of change when first instituted.

An instance of this is related by a member of a prominent retail firm in a large city. Explaining that inasmuch as the plan in his store had only been in existence since last July it was impossible yet to say how it would work out, he declares that nevertheless in the brief space of a few months he had learned that it is not wise to give too full partnership to employees. He says they do not always understand the meaning of such action. They put themselves at once on a par with the employer and abuse privileges that are granted because of their apparent ownership. This firm had intended to turn over to the employees twenty per cent of the company's stock. "Before the ink was dry on the stock certificates," in the words of this retailer, "the employees were trying to tell us just what to do." For this reason the company withdrew its stock proposition and instituted a dividend scheme instead. Now ten per cent of the net profits of the company are set aside for payment when the year ends July 1. This percentage is divided among five department heads, who draw the same wages they did formerly, varying from $35 to $50 per week. The ones who have been in the company's employ longest draw a little more than the others. Though the first year is not up, the head of the company states that the employees seem well satisfied and that he is hopeful as to the success of the plan.

With Variations.

Each plan, it seems, has its variations. At Baum's Home of Flowers, in Knoxville, Tenn., a certain percentage is added to the pay roll each week. This amount is not paid to the employees at the time, but is carried on the books until the end of the year, in June. Then the aggregate sum is divided among the employees still with the company, in proportion to the amount each drew as wages during the twelve months. This, says Karl P. Baum, is not to be termed a bonus or share of profits, but rather, in the company's language, a "yearly salary increase." The sole requisite for the receipt of the money is that the employee remain in Baum's employ till the end of the year. Of course, there is incentive for greater effort to decrease waste and expense and to increase production and profits in the fact that each employee's share is lessened or augmented in the same measure. It might be added here that Baum's has taken out workmen's compensation insurance on every employee, in the Travelers' Insurance Co., of Hartford, Conn., which insures them against all accidents. This insurance, of course, is automatically canceled when an individual leaves the company's employ.

Somewhat similar, though varying in one important feature, is the plan used lately by Lowe & Shawyer, at Uxbridge, England, whose name is familiar to many in the American trade. From the amount of the sales each week the firm deducts the outgo for salaries and wages and from the balance pays to its employees a bonus of five per cent. This bonus fluctuates with the amount of the sales. During slack times the employees do not receive much, but when a period of heavy sales occurs, the bonus attains a considerable size. This plan, however, gives no assurance of the employee's continuing in the company's service, even for a full year.

An Ohio firm of nurserymen has adopted a plan of paying a dividend on an employee's annual salary equal in percentage to that paid on the company's capital. If at the end of the year the firm declares a dividend of ten per cent, then a check will be given to each employee equal to ten per cent of his preceding year's salary. If a man received $1,000 during the year, he would draw a dividend of $100. This plan, again, has the double object of keeping the employee in the firm's service continuously and of stimulating his efforts to add to the company's profits.

Rasmussen's Plan.

Much different from any other is the plan which Anders Rasmussen put into effect January 1, 1920, at his range of 300,000 feet of glass at New Albany, Ind. The announcement of the plan was made several months before the date of its commencement and had, says Mr. Rasmussen, the effect of stimulating greater interest among all the best employees. Mr. Rasmussen's proposal was to divide among all the employees all profits over and above a reasonable amount for interest and depreciation on his investment and a fair salary for himself for managing the business.

He has explained his plan in these words:

"I shall expect six per cent interest

Your Experience?

Possibly you have tried a form of profit-sharing or a bonus system or some other method to meet the problem of interesting employees in your business.

Perhaps you have found a solution that is successful, the one others in the trade are seeking. Or perhaps your discoveries will save others from the difficulties you found.

If you have, tell us about it.

SHARING IN PROFIT AND WORK

By MAX SCHLING.

THE MOST personal sort of business, not only in the relations between proprietor and customers, but between employer and employees, is the florists' business, especially as long as the business is small. When things are right a small business is just like a little family—one happy, everybody happy. If one of the family feels wrong, no matter whether it is employer or employee, the whole family is affected. If one feels blue, all feel blue. They work together, they live together and they feel together.

These conditions and this feeling change with the growth of the business. At length the employees may become so numerous that the employer can no longer keep on living and feeling with each individual member of his staff. When the business was small and a new employee came in, it was the smallness of the business, the concentrated space, which brought the employee close to the employer. The new man had a chance to get acquainted with his employer more quickly, had a chance to look at him as one human being at another, had a chance to live his life and acquire similar thoughts; their work brought them nearer to each other.

Half-hearted Help.

In a larger business a new man does not get a chance to speak to his employer for days. They do not get a chance to know each other as men should who have to work together. New elements enter into the relationship between employees and employer; they know each other only by name. Many of the new employees, added as the business grows, do not appreciate the work done by their predecessors or by the old crew; they are not deeply interested in the business. The concentrated effort of all the employees of the institution loses its force. These helpers, not coworkers, are the reason why the earnings of a large retail business are relatively smaller than those of a small business. Others of the new employees, who are intelligent and able in their profession, are anxious to work themselves in and up in their new positions, but are often exposed to more or less petty jealousies of one or another of the older employees and therefore become uncertain of their positions for the future. Becoming dissatisfied, they begin to ask themselves, "Do I get enough for what I am doing, in comparison with what the boss gets for my work?" And when there is not enough to do, to fill out time the employer has the reverse thought, "Do I get enough for what I give?" Such employer and employee will never be able to get a fair return for their work.

We shall not condemn all employees and we shall not condemn all employers. There are employers who not only work with their men, but live with them and are willing to take care of them, both at the present time and in the future, provided the men justify it.

Mutual Appreciation.

When slack times come, the controlling thought of these employers is, "Now we shall all take it a little easier, after all have worked so hard." And there are employees who are anxious that slack times may pass, so that they all may be kept busy. They do not analyze each order to determine what comparison their earnings bear to the earnings of the employer; or, if they do indulge in such comparisons, they do not forget how many orders are filled which allow no earnings for the employer, while their earnings are always assured. Such employees are the ideal coworkers of the business man—his silent partners and deserving of reward.

Under these conditions, the question of profit-sharing is a difficult problem. If our business were not so changeable and not a "season" business; if prices were stable and work continuous year in and year out, it would be an easy matter to change our business to a profit-sharing basis. As long as this is not the case; as long as we cannot maintain the stability of prices, at least for certain periods of the year; as long as we cannot adjust our work so that our working hours shall not be affected by any changes of season or fluctuation of the market, we cannot apply a feasible plan for profit-sharing.

As an example, I am taking our own place of business. Business hours in New York city a few years ago were from 7 or 7:30 a. m. to 9 or 9:30 p. m., in different shops. On Sunday some shops were open all day and there are still some which are open all day on Sundays. Some houses, like ours, opened Sunday forenoon only. I was the first to adjust these hours. Before our present schedule, our business hours were from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Half of the employees left at 7; the others, having had a chance to get refreshment before, remained until 8. We cut these hours down to from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. When we cut our time to these comparatively short hours, and our Sunday work to filling a few orders early in the morning behind closed doors, we did not have a thought of having part of the employees leave at 6 and part at 7. The employees among themselves arranged an early and late shift. It happens in our place once in a blue moon, at Christmas or Easter—or, precisely speaking, the day before Christmas or the day before Easter—that we ask our men to cut their lunch hour shorter and we ask this only from those of our men who are in important positions.

Paying for Overtime.

On rare occasions some of the men work fifteen or twenty minutes overtime. We do not take notice of this, because one or another is late every morning and this lateness also is unnoticed, unless it becomes a habit of some man who measures his work and his time by salary only. But when overtime becomes real overtime, when work is to be done until 8:30 or 9 in the evening, we pay for it, except to a few of the oldest employees, who take with us good and bad. When we are pushed with work, these old reliables among the employees are first to pitch in. When a delayed order is placed, to be prepared in the evening for early delivery the next day, they never have engagements for that evening or for any evening. These are the employees who never grumble, who have the welfare of the business just as much at heart as the employer himself, and who always volunteer first to do things.

These silent partners in work and worry form a group all by themselves, and the reward to these workers cannot be based on the profit of the business or on what they are able to do. At times we have an order which requires intelligence, special effort and time after business hours, and the outlay is out of proportion with the price that the order brings. The man who measures his services by the salary only, and who always gets overtime per regular time schedule, is paid absolutely out of proportion with the profit such an order brings. The man who consid-

Back to the Pay Envelope

Here is one retail florist's appraisement of the profit-sharing system, resulting from a trial of it in his own establishment, a large metropolitan store. He holds the opinion that no mathematical calculation can fix the reward which the employer should give to those employees who deserve a share in his prosperity. Hence his return to the simple pay envelope.

ers himself part of the business—one of the old-fashioned kind, who, according to his ability and intelligence, takes just as much interest in the business as the proprietor himself—really deserves for the same work more than the other fellow, but we do not measure his pay according to overtime. In hundreds of little ways we detect the man's interest in his work and in business affairs; daily we can feel his faithfulness. He should be rewarded, not according to what the profits have been for that season, not only according to his efforts or ability.

In Unprofitable Years.

During the last decade there were several years that were not fully satisfactory; they brought little profit to the florist. A bonus or share of the profits according to the earnings of those years would have been extremely small for the employee. In some instances, if there had been an agreement between the employer and employees to share the earnings, the conditions would have been reversed and some would have only had part of their salary, but we shall not speak about that; we shall speak about the reward.

If a man has no financial interest in a business the employer cannot expect to accept his efforts without suitable reward, irrespective of the earnings. We have to base the reward of such a man on the time spent outside of business hours for the good of the business. We have to add a little for his faithfulness, for the length of service with the firm, and have to add something to encourage him for the future.

I would not call this profit-sharing or a bonus, because it is not; it is something which I give of my own free will for what has been given to me of someone's own free will. Good will cannot be bought. The man gives me his good will and I give him at the end of the year something to make it easier for him to give me his good will again. He helps me to carry my worries and I help him to carry his.

Profit-sharing Put to Test.

Eight years ago I made the mistake of making a regular agreement with several men that they should get at the end of the year, according to the efforts they made, a certain amount of money. It taught me a lesson. Men who I thought would put extra effort into their work were slack; some of those men whom I did not include in the agreement took more interest in their work and a far greater interest in my worries about business. When the year was over I gave each one a little more than I had promised, but I told each one that I would not promise him anything for the coming year. If any special reward were deserved, I would show my appreciation in some way, and that was the finish.

From that time on I was more particular than ever to pay a man liberally for his extra work. When the man was absent one or two days I deducted it from his salary. I gave him what he was entitled to and I asked the same for myself. Only the few men who do not have that rule, "I will just give what I am paid for," who do not watch the time clock noon and evening, who work cheerfully with the interest of the business at heart—to those men we are glad to show appreciation by our good will, our faithfulness and a substantial envelope.

TATE'S TIPS

FACING NEW PROBLEMS.

Trade Has Passed Childhood.

The florists' business has now outgrown its early childhood and has entered its "teens." Any parent will understand what this age means for a child; this is the time when the greatest thought and care must be given to its development. Up until the teens the care of the child was a comparatively easy matter; it was always under the care of the mother and under home influences, but now everything is changed and the child is under other influences, influences to be considered and watched and the effect counteracted.

This is just the position the florists' business is in today. There was a time when the business was like the child in its early years. All that was needed was to give ordinary care and everything went well, but the pride of the parents was to see it develop into a strong boy or girl. This is just what the florists' business has done and, since organized publicity has been in effect, its development has been decidedly rapid.

As I study the situation at this time, there is no better comparison that I can think of than that of the boy full of life and spirit who is about to enter school, when every safeguard should be thrown about him; this can be best done by organization.

Growers Are Alert.

We meet with organization today in every line of commercial enterprise and one of the best evidences that the florists are not "asleep at the switch" is the fact that the growers of this country are alert to the necessity of this move and are at the present time devoting their attention to systematic organization. One need only look at the personnel of the committee on organization to realize what such an organization will mean.

I should like to say a word to the small grower. When you see men of such mature business acumen realizing the importance and need of such a move, is it not your duty to coöperate with them in every way you can? The object of this organization is for the betterment of the entire business. Remember that it is costing every man who is fathering this new organization some sacrifice. These are all men who have large business organizations of their own and could get along better without a national organization than you, but, to their credit, they are broad-gauged business men who have pride in the industry with which they are connected and want to see it take its proper place in the commercial world.

Discussing Problems.

As this plan is understood, with a local organization in every community, governed by local conditions, acting under and always in touch with headquarters, it seems that the growers all over the country could get along as well without their telephone or automobile as they could without such an organization. A good thing about this organization is that it will be a place where you can get together at stated times and discuss the problems you may have to encounter; these may be labor, cultural or heating. No matter what they may be, you will find that Solomon was right when he said: "There is nothing new under the sun." You will find someone who has faced the same trouble and, best of all, came through successfully and will be only too glad to help you with his advice.

Organization for Retailers.

But we read that statistics show that ninety per cent of the value of the florists' business of this country is in the hands of the growers; this would leave ten per cent to the retailers. There is no doubt that this is a small valuation for that arm of the business, which is so important to the growers. I am just going to make an absurd proposition to bring out my point more strongly. Suppose every retail store that is not connected with a growing establishment were to close its doors, what would become of the growers? One is dependent on the other. The interest of the retailer is the grower's interest and vice versa.

Should Retailers Organize?

Is it not as important for the retailers to organize as it is for the growers? My suggestion would be, do this along the same lines as those proposed by the growers. In this way committees from each branch of the business could get together in the national and local organizations. Men who understand the problems of both sides can put them squarely up for discussion and action and in this way everyone will become better acquainted with the problems which the other has to face. For instance, if a committee of growers would show to a like body of retailers just what it costs to produce a dozen roses and the retailers would show just what it costs to sell those roses, isn't it reasonable to suppose that such a body of business men could agree upon a fair profit for each, and in this way fix a fair and stabilized price to the consumer?

CALIFORNIA SEED GROUNDS.

Irises at Rivera.

Since a large proportion of irises come from around the Mediterranean and are consequently accustomed to summer conditions similar to those on the southern Pacific coast, the culture of the iris is particularly satisfactory in California. The range of varieties is so large that some may be found in bloom in all but the late summer months.

One place in southern California where German irises can be seen to good advantage is the establishment of Howard & Smith, at Rivera, in Los Angeles county. There, in the iris section of their 25-acre seed growing and seed trial grounds, both the newer and the standard kinds are grown in large numbers. One iris which needs particularly the sunlight and summer dryness of this district is Iris pallida, of which the dalmatica variety is generally considered the best. One of the accompanying illustrations shows a field of Nue d'Orage, a hybrid of the pallida dalmatica type, which Howard & Smith find well worth cultivation.

Giant Daisies.

Another illustration shows a thriving field, at this firm's seed trial grounds, of Bellis perennis monstrosa, the giant daisy, which is much used for border plants and spring bedding. The gaps in the white variety in the foreground have been caused by the elimination of rogues, a necessary sacrifice if seed of proper quality is to be produced.

Each kind of flower at this establishment is under the care of an expert, while Fred Howard, president of the firm, keeps watchful supervision over it all, having keen eyes for any rogues or faulty plants in any of his favorite strains. One especially enjoyable sight at these grounds is the immense planting of amaryllis, or hippeastrum. The strain of these has been worked up on this place and is considered superior to the other American and European productions with which it has been tested and compared.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Following Memorial day prices came down with a dull thud, accelerated by a warm wave with maximum temperatures of 90, 90 and 87 degrees on three successive days and a quite feeble demand. The hot weather knocked the life out of carnations and roses. It was difficult to clear the latter at any price and values sank to new low levels for the present season. Flowers on 18-inch stems fell as low as $10 per thousand and short-stemmed stock fell even lower. The heat caused a decided deterioration of quality on all grades. Carnations are getting poorer in quality and must be quite good flowers to realize $2 per hundred. Most of them go at half this price. Sweet peas suffered with the heat, but held up better than other flowers. No outdoor flowers will be available for some time yet. Gladioli sell fairly well; the best bring $3 per dozen.

There is little demand for callas, lilies, ten weeks' stocks, calendulas and snapdragons, but yellow marguerites of good size clean up nicely. A large quantity of fine outdoor lily of the valley has been coming in. The best has sold at $2 to $4 per hundred, but the supply exceeds the demand. Small lots of single and double crimson peonies have appeared. Flowers from farther south have been selling at $4 to $8 per hundred. Iris germanica and pyrethrums are seen among outdoor flowers.

Trade in bedding plants was exceptionally brisk last week and all florists were swamped with orders. Flowering plants now are not numerous and hydrangeas are the leaders.

Iris Exhibition.

The show of irises and other seasonable flowers June 5 and 6 filled the main exhibition hall of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and was well varied and interesting. Iris germanica was shown in large numbers. While attractive in the garden, these irises are uninteresting when staged in stereotyped rows of vases and the fact that the flowers have poor keeping quality further detracts from their value at exhibitions. For twenty-four vases Geo. N. Smith, Wellesley, Mass., was first with a fine selection, including pallida speciosa, Queen of May, Lohengrin, Rose Unique, flavescens, Kochii, Wyomissing, Celeste, Walhalla and Perfection. Iristhorpe Farm, of which Allen Jenkins is head gardener, was first for twelve vases. For a collection of irises of all colors there were several fine displays, the awards going to George N. Smith, Iristhorpe Farm and Glen Road Iris Gardens in the order named. For twenty varieties of herbaceous perennials Blue Hill Nurseries were first and W. N. Craig second. Some handsome eremuri were included in the winning collection. For a collection of hardy succulent plants Hillcrest Gardens won first prize.

The American Iris Society held an exhibition in connection with this show. George N. Smith led for thirty varieties, one stalk of each. For six distinct varieties of self-colored irises Glen Road Iris Gardens were first; also for six varieties of bicolors, Miss A. J. Osgood being second in the latter class.

For an artistic arrangement of irises with or without other flowers R. S. Sturtevant was first and second. Each of these exhibits would have looked better with half the number of flowers. For the best specimen stalk of iris Mrs. C. W. Willis was first with Lohengrin; Miss Grace Sturtevant was second with Queen Catrina, and Mrs. Percy G. Browne third with Nibelungen. Miss A. J. Osgood had the best three distinct varieties and Mrs. C. W. Willis led for three vases of rose and lilac shades, also for three varieties of white or blue and white, three varieties with yellow standards and three varieties lavender bicolors.

T. D. Hatfield, superintendent for Walter Hunnewell, had a large collection of rhododendrons. He received a silver medal for a fine display of hardy seedling rhododendrons. The Blue Hill Nurseries were first for twelve varieties of flowering shrubs with handsome vases of Malus ioensis Bechteli, Deutzia Lemoinei, Syringa vulgaris hybrida, Cratægus Oxyacantha coccinea, Leucothoe Catesbæi, Azalea calendulacea, Viburnum Opulus sterile and Cytisus purpureus. They also received honorable mention for the new Chinese shrubs Neillia sinensis, Diervilla florida venusta, Diervilla florida Mrs. Ielle. Mrs. Betty K. Farr showed a nice double-flowered form of Chatelaine begonia, named Betty K. Farr, which was awarded honorable mention.

T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. showed a fine collection of hardy rhododendrons, also Azalea nudiflora and Leucothoe Catesbæi. They were first for both twelve and six varieties of rhododendrons. For a miniature rock garden R. S. Sturtevant was first, the second and third awards going to Hillcrest Gardens. Cultural certificates were awarded to A. C. Burrage for the handsome Læliocattleya Alice Burrage, and J. T. Butterworth for Læliocattleya Hyeana hybrida. Mr. Butterworth also showed some handsome miltonias, odontoglossums and a fine lot of cut orchids. Owing to the pouring rain, the attendance was small June 5, but large the following day.

Various Notes.

S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, is spending a week's vacation with C. S. Strout, at Biddeford, Me., enjoying some trout fishing. Mr. Goddard reports a banner Memorial day business.

For the field day of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at the Arnold Arboretum, June 12, members and friends have been asked to meet at the Forest Hills gate on the Arborway at 3 o'clock. This gate is only five minutes' walk from steam, elevated and surface cars at Forest Hills.

News of the death of Maurice Fuld in New York, May 28, evoked many local expressions of regret. The deceased was for some time employed in the seed department of R. & J. Farquhar & Co. and later with W. W. Rawson & Co., where he specialized in dahlias and gladioli.

The weather man seems to have taken a special liking for rainy Saturdays. Since and including April 24 we have had six stormy Saturdays and only a solitary clear one. June 5 gave us nearly three additional inches of rain with a cold northeast wind. Coming, as these wet days do, on the most important business day of the week for florists, trade suffers severely.

Carbone had the decorations for the Sprague-Boit wedding at the Church of the Redeemer, Chestnut Hill, June 5. Dorothy Perkins roses, Delphinium Belladonna, Madonna lilies and white lilac were effectively arranged.

John Mutch, of Wheeler & Co., the Waban orchid specialists, sails June 12 for a three months' vacation in Europe. Donald McKenzie leaves June 19 for two months in England and Scotland.

J. Harris, of Penn's, had charge of the flowers for the funeral of J. A. Crane, resident director in Boston of the Liggett Co. Penn's had some seventy-five designs in all; a blanket of Ophelia roses and valley, a large wreath of cattleyas and valley and a huge wreath of Hadley and valley were especially fine.

Do not forget the ladies' night of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, June 15. The entertainment will be a splendid one and a royal good time awaits all who attend.

A large representation from Boston and vicinity will attend the conference to be held in New York, June 15, regarding Quarantine 37 and the Federal Horticultural Board. Thomas Roland, who is going, will later attend a meeting of the schedule committee for the 1922 national flower show in Cleveland.

The schedule committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society met June 4 and arranged all classes for the great rose show to be held April 5 to 9, 1921. A. C. Burrage will offer a $500 cup for a commercial group of orchids at this show. Cash prizes of $1,000 and $500 are offered for the best rose garden.

SOIL FROM SWEET PEAS.

Would beds in which sweet peas have been grown be suitable for growing carnations without changing the soil, which was fresh from the field for the sweet peas?

T. S. M.—Kan.

The sweet peas exhaust the soil a good deal and it would be best to give the soil a good dressing of well rotted manure or pulverized sheep manure and fork or spade it in well before planting the carnations.

C. W.

SNAPDRAGONS FOR CHRISTMAS.

When should snapdragons be sown and planted in beds in order to have a good crop for Christmas and midwinter in a carnation temperature?

T. S. M.—Kan.

Sow the snapdragons not later than July 1, transplant into flats, later pot off singly and plant out in the beds or benches by the middle of September. Snapdragons are not free winter bloomers and, while you can get a crop of moderate quality at Christmas, there will be a dearth of spikes in all probability through the dead of winter, unless you sow such sorts as Nelrose, Phelps' White, Virginia and other winter bloomers. Seedlings are more vigorous and dependable than rooted cuttings.

BULB BATTLE

HOLLANDERS DEFEND PRICES.

Reply to British.

The discussion in regard to differences between Dutch exporters and British buyers is being carried on with much vigor. The viewpoint of the former is contained in a letter from a Holland firm regarding the action of the British trades, reported in The Review of May 27. Regarding prices, the bulb exporter says:

"The question of prices has been closely examined, but the members of the Dutch Exporters' Association were unanimously of the opinion that hyacinth prices cannot be reduced, because at the end of last season stocks cleared out entirely, with much higher prices at the end of the season, while this year's sales in America have been heavy.

Prices Reduced.

"Prices have already been much reduced on all early tulips compared with last year. Leading varieties, like Murillo, La Reine, Rose Grisdelin, Fred Moore and Yellow Prince, which in 1919 were quoted at 80 and 90 shillings per thousand, are now quoted at 35 and 40 guilders, which at the present rate of exchange is only 67 and 76 shillings per thousand, while the chances are that with the continuously improving exchange of sterling, these quotations may undergo a further reduction.

"With regard to daffodils it is safe to say that with the exception of Golden Spur, Emperor, Victoria, ornatus and a few others, stocks in Holland are all very low; of the above varieties great quantities have been bought by American buyers and orders from Scandinavia are now arriving satisfactorily.

"Of miscellaneous bulbs we beg to point out that prices of Spanish iris, crocus and snowdrops have been fixed considerably cheaper than last year, while all other articles are left open for competition."

British Take Strong Stand.

With such bulldog tenacity are the British buyers holding to their position that Pennell & Sons, of Lincoln, England, use their space in a horticultural journal for the following message:

TO DUTCH BULB GROWERS.

It is useless under the present Exporters' Association conditions to send us offers of bulbs, or for Dutch representatives to call upon us.

We do not intend to buy bulbs in Dutch money, or to agree to such terms as might be imposed by a victor over the vanquished.

We do not find our customers so mad for the produce of Holland that they are prepared to enrich still further the only prosperous nation in Europe by paying inflated prices for bulbs, which during the last few years English people have learned to do without.

When an agreement has been reached between the Horticultural Trades Association and the Dutch Exporters' Association upon the question of prices and terms, we shall be pleased to consider the giving of orders.

S. A. F. NEWS

S. A. F. CONVENTION HALL.

In regard to a report that the Ninth Garage, in which the Society of American Florists' convention and trade exhibition is to be held in Cleveland, August 17 to 19, might not be ready in time for occupancy, Vice-president F. C. W. Brown and Herman P. Knoble, acting for our executive board, give assurance that the building, at least the floor we are to occupy, will be ready in ample time for our purpose. The only problem now before the advisory board in charge of convention arrangements is one looking to a rearrangement of the floor plan, which will provide more exhibition space. It is expected that by reducing the width of the aisles, additional space can be secured to accommodate a few more exhibits, without material change in the location of exhibits already provided for. The largest trade exhibition in the history of the society is now more than a possibility.

GOOD EXHIBITION ASSURED.

At Convention in August.

Almost every foot of available space set out on the original plan covering the trade exhibition at the Cleveland convention of the S. A. F. has been reserved and an exhibition of high order is assured. Every endeavor is being made to accommodate late comers and it is hoped that by an extension of the floor area a few more exhibitors may be accommodated. Never before were reservations so numerous at this early date as to take up all the space set out on the official plan. The list of exhibitors so far is as follows:

Alabama Evergreen Exchange, Cleveland, O.
American Bulb Co., Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Machine & Mfg. Co., Cleveland, O.
Barnard Co., W. W., Chicago, Ill.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Summer Publicity.

With Memorial day business behind us, publicity work will be devoted largely in the summer months to keeping our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," constantly before the public. It has been the policy of our committee since the inauguration of the campaign to make our advertising purely national, so that every section of the country would get its share of publicity. No matter how small a community, it is plentifully sprinkled with magazine readers and our advertising plans have included the more prominent magazines having the largest circulation. While the committee has many times been asked to consider some of the large metropolitan dailies as advertising mediums, it was not felt that any departure from the adopted policy could be made and practically the whole of the fund available has been spent in the magazines. Magazines, too, are "alive" longer than other mediums, their large paid circulations, on which the advertising rates are based, being in reality only about one-sixth of the aggregate of readers.

Our promotion bureau is daily in receipt of inquiries for the booklet distributed at the outset of the campaign, which has for two years been out of print. All such inquiries carry the "keys" of our first advertisements, thus proving that a large portion of our publicity is exceedingly tenacious of life.

EVERY now and then a well-pleased reader speaks the word which is the means of bringing a new advertiser to

The Florists' Review

Such friendly assistance is thoroughly appreciated.

Give us the name of anyone from whom you are buying, not an advertiser. We especially wish to interest those selling articles of florist's use not at present advertised.

FLORISTS' PUBLISHING CO.
530-60 Caxton Bldg. Chicago

Local Efforts Important.

Many florists have used their local newspapers to link up with the campaign advertising and this has been a wise move on their part. It is realized that this local advertising has become an important part of the campaign; certainly, never has the florists' trade figured in the columns of local newspapers to such an extent as now. The electrotype of the slogan has been lavishly used and, wherever seen, forms a link with the magazine publicity. It cannot be used too much. Don't let it be used too little.

Some grand publicity is being given to the slogan through the big billboard which is being supplied by our promotion bureau for installation at florists' establishments which present opportunities for outdoor publicity. These billboards are 7½x20 feet, are of iron construction and are handsomely painted. The price at which they are furnished, $50, is but half their actual cost at today's prices of material. One of these signs should be a part of every establishment publicly located.

Need Money to Continue.

Our committee continues to be urgently in need of more funds. Contracts for our next season's advertising must be placed without delay and the amount of publicity to be obtained necessarily depends upon the funds to be collected. With the splendid results which have so far rewarded our efforts, it would be nothing less than a calamity to curtail our work. It is not fair to the members of the committee to expect them to incur liabilities to meet which they must place dependence upon collections to be made later. Many hundreds of florists doubtless intend to subscribe something to the campaign fund. Why not do it now, thus rendering an assistance which is sorely needed? Keep the wheels moving and advance is easy. More people are using flowers in these days than was ever before the case and our campaign has accomplished this condition. This benefit can be doubled if we get the support we deserve and this should not be a serious problem. Help us to help you—let us hear from you now as to what you will give and when you will give it.

Additional Subscriptions.

The following subscriptions have been received and are, in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years, unless otherwise stated:

G. A. Leighton & Sons, Yarmouth, Me.	$ 10.00
George H. Beckman, Elmhurst, N. Y.	5.00
H. E. Saier Co., Lansing, Mich. (add'l 1 yr.)	25.00
St. Louis Florists' Publicity Committee, St. Louis, Mo. (1 yr.)	630.70
Dothan Floral Co., Dothan, Ala.	5.00
William Geenan, Kimberly, Wis. (add'l 1 yr.)	20.00
Total	$ 695.70
Previously reported	43,439.50
Total to date	$44,135.20

News from Abroad

WAR'S EFFECT IN AUSTRIA.

The description of present horticultural conditions in Austria, as given by a citizen of that country who spent his internment in this country during the war at the Arnold Arboretum and has now returned to Vienna, gives a light on life there not easily obtained. In the latter part of April Camillo Schneider wrote from Vienna:

"There is no necessity for explaining that horticulture as a whole is badly affected by the present economic and political situation in this country. Austria has not only lost a long and exhaustive war; she has lost much more by peace. German Austria is reduced to a poor, small country, with few natural resources and surrounded by states that are none too friendly to her. The worst, however, is the fact that each little 'land' within the narrow limits of the present republic acts in the most selfish way.

"I resided in the U. S. A. during the war, because I was on an exploring trip in western China when the war broke out and, not being able to go back to Austria, I accepted an invitation from Prof. C. S. Sargent to go to the Arnold Arboretum at Jamaica Plain, Mass. Therefore, when I came back to Vienna in October, 1919, I, perhaps, more deeply felt the contrast between the past and the present than anyone who had remained during the last five years and had become used to the misery.

"Vienna has always been the center of horticultural interest in old Austria. It is even more the center of it at present. But what a change! The beautiful city, once the meeting place for all who went to central and eastern Europe, is still beautified by gardens full of lilacs, forsythias, irises and other lovely flowers, but about all parts famine is lurking and far too many pallid-faced children and worn-out mothers are to be seen.

"The main impression is that everything (I might say everybody) needs repair. Everybody is so exhausted by the war and its evil consequences as to have lost the energy necessary to keep up the struggle.

"Some of the gardeners, of course, are by no means badly affected by the present situation. Many of the market gardeners have become well-to-do men. They sell their few vegetables at prices undreamed-of at any previous time, because there are a few rich men, too, who can pay for them. But the people, as a whole, are not able to buy lettuce, spinach or cauliflower at the present rates. The case of the florist is, to a certain degree, different. Scarcity of labor and high wages, combined with the high cost of fuel, wood, glass and every other material he needs for keeping up his establishment, make it impossible for him to maintain his former standard and even difficult to grow what is needed today.

"Vienna has been famous for its beautiful gardens, but these are beginning to disappear. The public gardens are kept fairly well by the city and, in this extremely lovely and warm spring, the private gardens and suburbs look much finer than they really are. The work of the landscape architect is restricted. Where, formerly, he planted handsome flowers and shrubs, there are now growing lettuce, cabbage, potatoes and other useful things. The number of war gardens is immense. Hundreds of colonies of what are called 'schreber' gardens have sprung up and the schreber garden movement is one of the characteristic features of the time.

"The situation of the Horticultural Society is a rather lucky one. It was in possession of a valuable piece of ground in one of the best parts of the city, but it sold part of it during the war and now has some money at its disposal. But it cannot realize its intention to build a new home, because no houses at all can be erected at a time when one brick costs about 3 crowns. The society has a garden of its own at Esslingen, about two hours from the city, in the so-called Marchfield, but at present it is not much more than a vegetable garden. It will take some time to transform it again into a real experimental ground."

DON'T DROP ADVERTISING.

Would you cease paying your insurance premiums? If you did, what would happen? What prompted the taking of the policy? The desire to have something for the family when the great day comes. Well, with the same thought in mind, how often have you started to advertise and then, seeing no immediate results, quit? The only profitable advertising is the kind that, once started, is kept up, and eventually it will help you even better than you thought, provided, of course, everything is consistent with your advertising.

It not only sells your product, but also buys good will, so that your ambitions are being constantly put on a higher plane of action. It not only creates a demand for your product, but also gives you the preference, all things being equal.

Try to get your message across in as simple a way as possible. Don't try to do impossibilities. Don't try to make an advertisement appear to exaggerate, but do more than is expected of your advertisement and the benefits of advertising will be felt a great deal more.

Make your advertising impressive and dignified and have it reflect the character of your store. By following these few suggestions much good will be obtained and bigger business will be the ultimate outcome.

Above all things, once you start advertising, keep it up. It pays.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"It is not a grand and glorious feeling," said William P. Pfeifer, Utica, N. Y., "when, after training one's boy to become a leading florist, he suddenly quits the business to act as a guide with a big automobile concern." As a consequence, Mr. Pfeifer intends retiring to the garden and will dispose of the greenhouses this summer. This is another striking instance of the demise of an old establishment and flourishing business for the want of a successor.

"I might as well close shop," observed Frank Baker, Utica, N. Y., "if we have to recognize the 8-hour law, as applied to the store, for funeral work is both uncertain and important. It must have the best of attention." The son, Charles F. Baker, was at work on a splendid floral cross of the largest size. He is a "chip of the old block" and the business will not suffer whenever dad feels like easing up.

William Mathews, Utica, N. Y., is sending some fine orchids out of town. The grand old orchidist is feeling the hand of Father Time and has the sympathy of his many friends in the trade.

"A couple of weeks more will wind up a most successful season and enable us to take a brief vacation. During vacation it is well for the store man to get into closer touch with the grower, who really has the least leisure time, if any. Take off your coat if necessary and help along the good cause," observed Robert Bard, Syracuse, N. Y., who has had a life experience in the business from every angle and has the honor of being floricultural adviser to Governor Smith, of the Empire state.

W. A. Rowlands is supplying Uticans with fine carnations of the varieties Laddie, Enchantress Supreme, Benora and Matchless, for which his range at Whitesboro has become noted.

Commenting upon the big business of Memorial day, L. C. Stroh & Sons, Batavia, N. Y., paid tribute to the fine qualities of carnations White Wonder, Enchantress, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Doris, which they consider the best scarlet in their experience, and the new White Benora, which they will grow to the exclusion of some older varieties. While this latter is not so prolific as could be desired, every bloom comes perfect and commands top figures.

B. F. Myers Floral Co., Dansville, N. Y., organized primarily as a wholesale growing concern, finds it advisable to cater to retail trade to meet the call from many surrounding towns. This, its first season, has exceeded all expectations, according to Barney Myers, proprietor, also manager of the W. J. Palmer & Sons range at Lancaster, N. Y., where the season's business has surpassed all previous records.

The now familiar signboard, "Say It with Flowers," is seen in many places along the railroads. One of the most conspicuous fronts the establishment of David Scott, at Corfu, N. Y., and cannot fail to attract the attention of the traveling public on the main line of the New York Central railroad.

Daylight saving, moonlight and the fine weather were fully taken advantage of by the William Scott Co., Cold Spring, N. Y., in what is described by William Scott as the most strenuous season in the history of the business.

Nothing daunted by having the builders next door overshadowing him, S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y., is putting up some fine window displays. Quite attractive is a collection of orchids from a private grower, all labeled with a brief history of their origin.

Charles Sandiford, Buffalo, paused for a few moments to express satisfaction with the volume of outdoor planting, in a great part the result of strenuous missionary work among his Bison City patrons. George McClure is equally well satisfied with results. W. M.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Taken as a whole, Memorial day business was far better than in any former year. With some dealers it was a riot of orders from Wednesday, May 26, until Saturday night, May 29, and with everybody it was good, clean business, with good prices and sufficient stock. There was much uncertainty about the peony crop until the week opened, when the weather warmed up and brought the buds out on time. There was less than half a normal crop, owing to the late spring, but what matured were fine blooms that held up for shipping and were handled well.

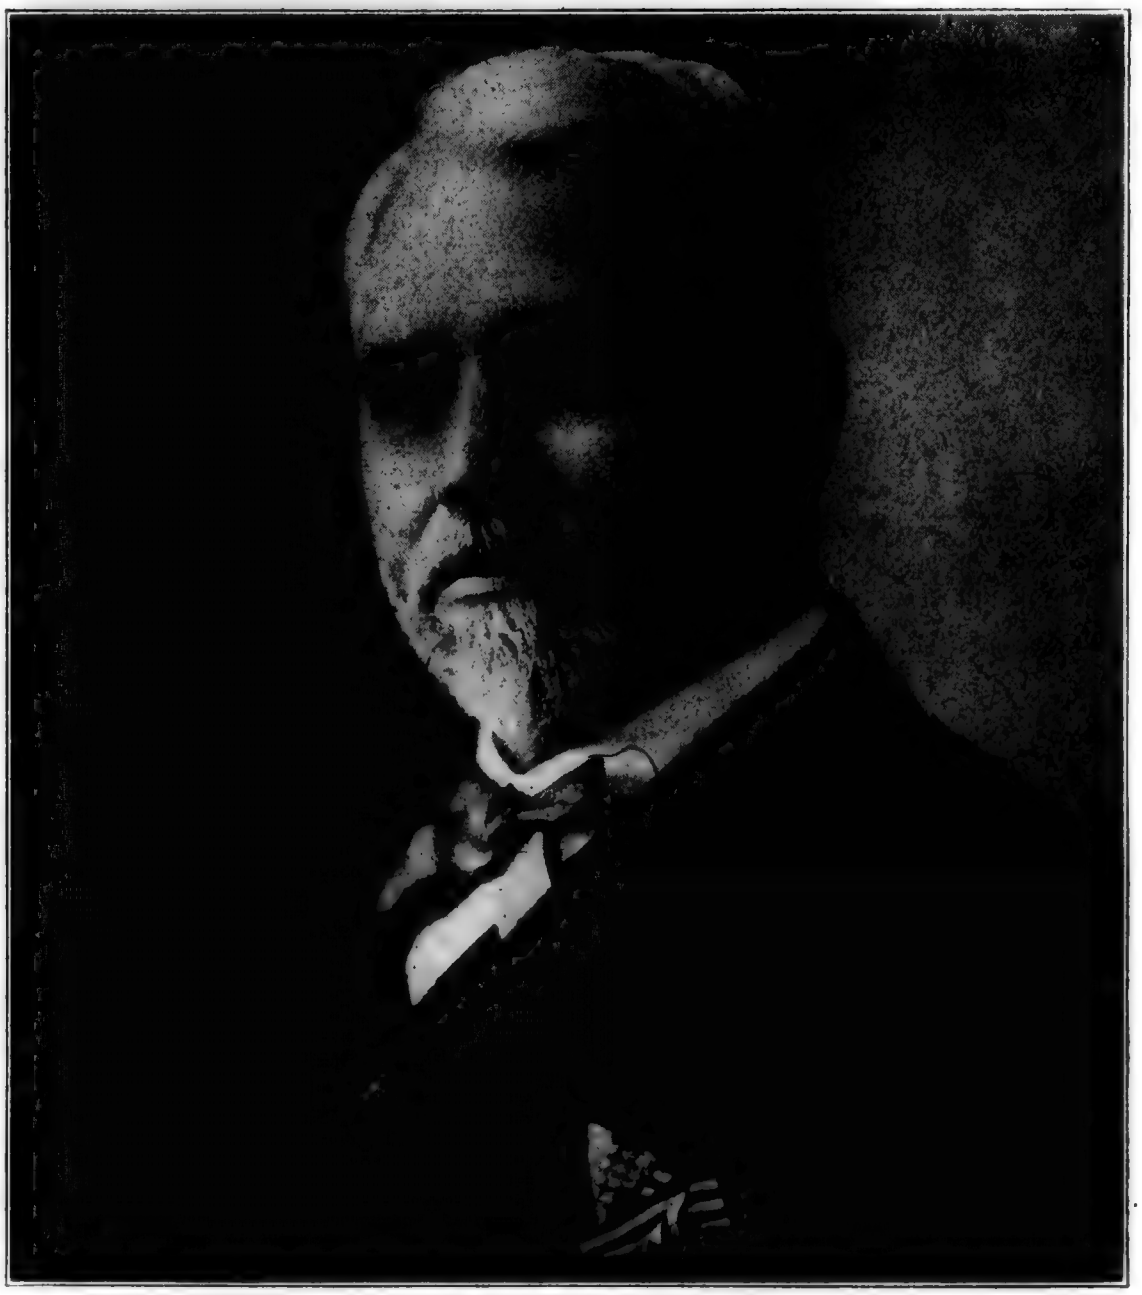
There is no doubt about the effect that department store sales had on the retail business. One store sold 20,000 home-grown peonies at $1 per dozen Saturday morning and another had a large supply at the same price. As these were advertised in Friday's papers, there was a crowd waiting when the stores opened and men and women scrambled wildly to get hold of the flowers, which were of excellent quality. The retail florists sold peonies at $3 and $4 per dozen, according to quality, and the wholesale price was $1 per dozen, which was reasonable considering the short crop. The growers could have obtained more money by selling to the wholesalers instead of to department stores and the retailers would have considered themselves lucky to buy the blooms at the prices at which the department stores sold them. Notwithstanding this and the fact that the peony crop was short, there was enough other stock to supply everyone and it was a neat clean-up all around. The greenhouses near the cemeteries were stripped of everything in the way of flowers, plants and ferns. Wreaths sold more heavily than ever this year and there was a noticeable increase in the sales of plants.

Various Notes.

A. Newell sold 200 wreaths for the holiday and this was but a small part of the business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Miller and son will go to Portland, Ore., on the Shriners' special. Mr. Miller is one of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. force. He is chairman of the music and entertainment committee of the local delegation.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Bohannon have bought a home at 3927 College avenue and are awaiting the arrival of their household goods from Chicago. Mr. Bohannon is a former resident of Kansas City, having resided here before going into business in Chicago.



Philip Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, was in the city last week.

James Ragan will put up a new house for carnations. This will give him an addition of about 9,000 plants.

Frank Stuppy, of St. Joseph, Mo., who was in the city Thursday, May 27, is figuring on building a tile stack 110 feet high to replace the steel stack which was blown down in one of the early spring wind storms.

Cut flowers held the balance of sales with the Peterson Floral Co. for Memorial day, but innumerable plants and wreaths were disposed of as well.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

CHARLES PAUL MUELLER.

MANY men have gone west and succeeded, but they got their start in the east. Of such is Charles Paul Mueller, who was born June 13, 1862, in Williamsville, N. Y. Six years later his parents moved to Lawrence, Kan., but grasshoppers drove them back to New York, where at the age of 14 he began his trade training in the greenhouses of Long Bros., Buffalo. In 1883 he returned to Kansas, worked for two years in Lawrence and then bought a part interest in a firm in Wichita. Buying out his partner in 1887, he started out entirely "on his own" with two small houses. The next year he returned to Buffalo long enough to marry his former employer's niece and brought her back with him to Wichita. He now has a range of 90,000 feet of glass and two retail stores; his weekly pay-roll is $900. He is a Rotarian, director of the board of commerce and member of the board of education. He has been a member of the S. A. F. for many years, a life member since 1909, and for several terms vice-president for Kansas. He is also a director of the Florists' Hail Association.

Mrs. Koppenhaver sold 7,000 geraniums and 4,000 white ruffled petunias, among many other things.

Miss Augusta Moseley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Moseley, and John Homer Mitchell were married May 11 in St. Paul's church, Kansas City, Kan. The wedding was quiet and was witnessed only by members of the two families.

Miss Grace Murray will go to California on the Shriners' special, which leaves here June 14.

Samuel Murray had a big cut of Easter lilies for Memorial day. The crop is holding up well and is good for the many funerals of this week. Miss Hayden says that the public has become thoroughly accustomed to Sunday closing. Saturday before Memorial day was the heaviest ever known for this holiday and some deliveries were left over for Sunday and customers were told that the store would be open Sunday and Monday. There was little doing Sunday or Monday.

A. F. Barbe disposed of 4,000 peonies, 4,000 roses and 6,000 carnations for Memorial day, besides many wreaths and other stock. He had 20,000 geraniums and these are nearly all gone. Mr. Barbe recently bought a Cadillac and his son, Bernard Barbe, has a new Stutz.

R. S. Brown & Son say that they never had a better Memorial day. They had plenty of peonies, all out on time. They have also had a good bedding plant season, which has kept up later than usual.

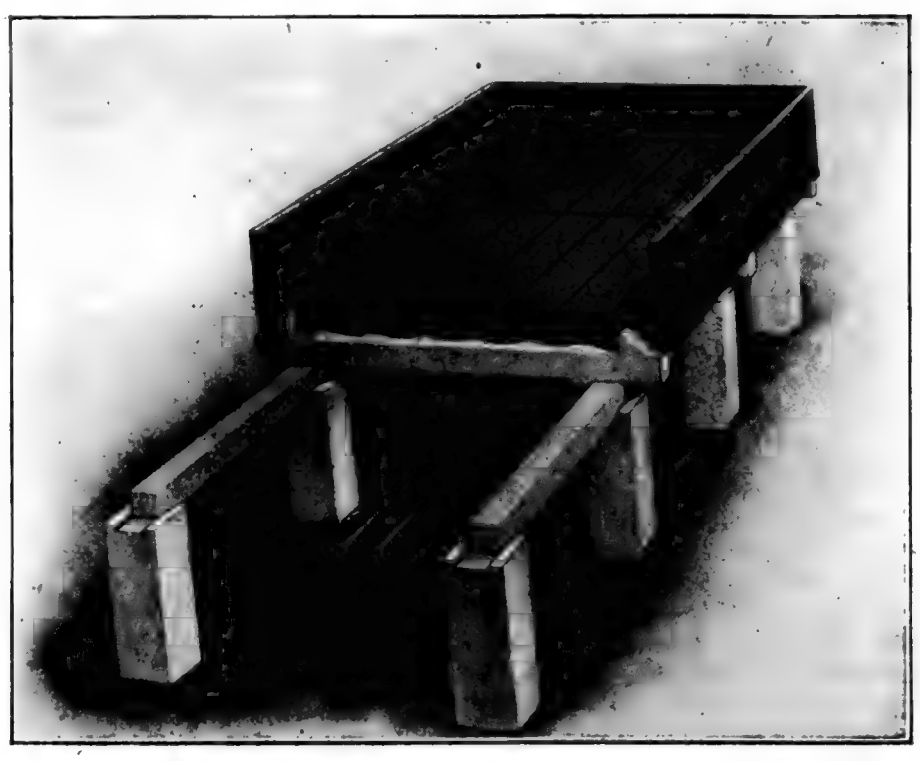
W. J. Barnes is winding up his bedding season, one of the best ever, and his Memorial day business couldn't be beaten.

E. A. Humfeld has been too busy to talk for the last two weeks. He did manage to say that Memorial day was the best by far that he ever saw and that nearly everything he sold was from his own greenhouses. He had an order June 4 for twenty-four old-fashioned bouquets and a number of corsages for the closing of one of the schools here.

The Central Avenue Florists finished a good month with even better business than was anticipated for Memorial day.

William Wade received his first cut of Columbia and Russell roses from the new plants at the Pinehurst greenhouses. The benches are just beginning to produce from the new planting and the roses are good. Pinehurst is also sending in some good Ophelia, Easter and calla lilies and valley.

Mrs. T. J. Noll has returned after a two weeks' vacation. The store of the T. J. Noll Floral Co. is being remodeled and renovated and many improvements will be made this summer.



The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has received some of the finest carnations of the entire season this week. Mr. Bohannon says that he has not seen any better since he has been here. The roses are especially good and the week brought an excellent assortment of delphinium.

One woman in Kansas City, Kan., is said to have cleared $1,000 from the sale of peonies on her farm. The customers cut the blooms themselves and the woman had nothing to do but count the flowers and collect for them. A number of farmers in the neighborhood of Kansas City, Kan., who formerly grew flowers and sometimes sold part of them along with their garden truck, but more often sent them to the hospitals and various institutions, are now selling them all to persons who drive out in their cars. The small dealers are feeling the effect of this practice to a great extent, especially at such times as Memorial day.

George Papadakos has closed his Kansas City Floral Co., at 1003 Walnut street, the lease having expired. He will now devote his attention exclusively to the Apollo Flower Shop, in Petticoat lane, which he purchased several months ago.

The fifth annual spring show of the Flower Gardeners' Association will be held at the Hotel Muehlebach, June 12.

W. L. Rock has leased the 4-story building at 1106-1108 Grand avenue, in which his flower store is located, for twenty years at an annual rental of $22,000. The property has a frontage of forty-nine and one-half feet and is half a block deep. The W. L. Rock Flower Co. occupies one of the two street level stores and leases on both stores have about two and a half years yet to run. It was to protect his location that the new lease was taken and one of the terms is that two additional stories must be added to the building. This will cost $50,000 and work will begin within sixty days. Mr. Rock is handling the deal individually and, although it means a financial loss while the old lease is in effect, after the two years are up he will begin to realize on his investment. The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has occupied this store for eight years. When the company moved there the building had been idle a year and it was considered outside of the business district and a poor location for a florist. However, Mr. Rock believed that business would move eastward and his vision has been justified to the extent that he now has one of the choicest locations in the city and the lease he has just taken is in a block where property valuation is about the highest. Partly Erected Interlocking Tile Bench, Showing Construction.

NIELSEN GETS PATENT.

On Interlocking Tile Bench.

Among the exhibits at the S. A. F. convention at Detroit last autumn was one which was solely an exhibit, for the man who staged it had nothing to sell. It was an interlocking tile bench, on which Jacob Kier Nielsen had applied for a patent, and it was set up in model form about as the illustration on this page shows it. The judges thought it was worth honorable mention. The engraved certificate of that fact came to Mr. Nielsen just at the time he received notice that his patent had been granted, under date of May 7, 1920.

Mr. Nielsen's idea of the tile bench was gained from the fact that in Europe building tile is often used for benches, being laid on supporting bars. By casting tile in patented form, so that the pieces need only be fitted together, Mr. Nielsen believed he could manufacture a bench which would be so lasting that it would be superior, eventually in cost as well as in durability, to any other material of which a bench might be made. The tile is similar to roofing tile, but is, of course, not glazed.

Simple Construction.

When manufacturing conditions permit, perhaps in the autumn, Mr. Nielsen expects to have the tile sections cast ready for use. The concrete blocks used for support can be easily cast by the grower himself according to blueprint plans. The posts can be made either round or square and the supporting beams can be cast in lengths of either three or six feet, being about 3x3 inches and the cross bars about the same thickness.

The bench is, according to plan, four feet wide, being composed of eight tile sections, each of which is six inches wide, with about one-quarter inch space between. The side boards are cast as part of the outside tile. The 3-foot sections are identical except those at the ends. In the end sections the side pieces are hooked, in L shape, the projection holding the end piece in place.

There is no cement used to fasten the tiles in place. The interlocking device holds the bench firmly together and the pieces cannot be accidentally displaced. Mr. Nielsen thinks that, in addition to its other advantages, a bench of this type will hold the heat longer and therefore make a greenhouse more economical in fuel consumption.

OBITUARY

George H. Cooke.

George H. Cooke, of Washington, D. C., died during the week ending May 29 as the result of inhaling illuminating gas, which he had accidentally turned on.

Mr. Cooke was born in Thursk, England, in 1864 and came to this country in 1884. He worked at the United States Botanic Garden, Washington, D. C., for three years, going next to the service of J. H. Small & Sons, Washington, with whom he stayed until 1903, when he started in business for himself.

In 1915 and 1916 he was president of the Washington Florists' Club, which owes much to his connection with it. He was also popular in Masonic circles. He was a member of Columbia Commandery, K. T.; La Fayette chapter, No. 5, R. A. M.; Almas Temple, Noble of the Mystic Shrine, and Kallipolis Grotto.

Mr. Cooke is survived by his wife and his daughter, Mrs. Edward Neidomanski.

Interment was at Rock Creek cemetery. G. V. S.

Charles F. Crosman.

Charles F. Crosman, president of Crosman Bros. Co., Rochester, N. Y., died Friday, June 4, at his home at the age of 73 years. He was well known as a seedsman in New York, having succeeded his father in Rochester.

Mr. Crosman was born in Rochester, January 13, 1847, and was educated in the public schools of that city. He aided materially in promoting the interests of the city and took great pride in its development. He was greatly interested in all that pertained to agricultural and horticultural development. He was a member of the American Seed Trade Association and the New York state and the western New York horticultural societies.

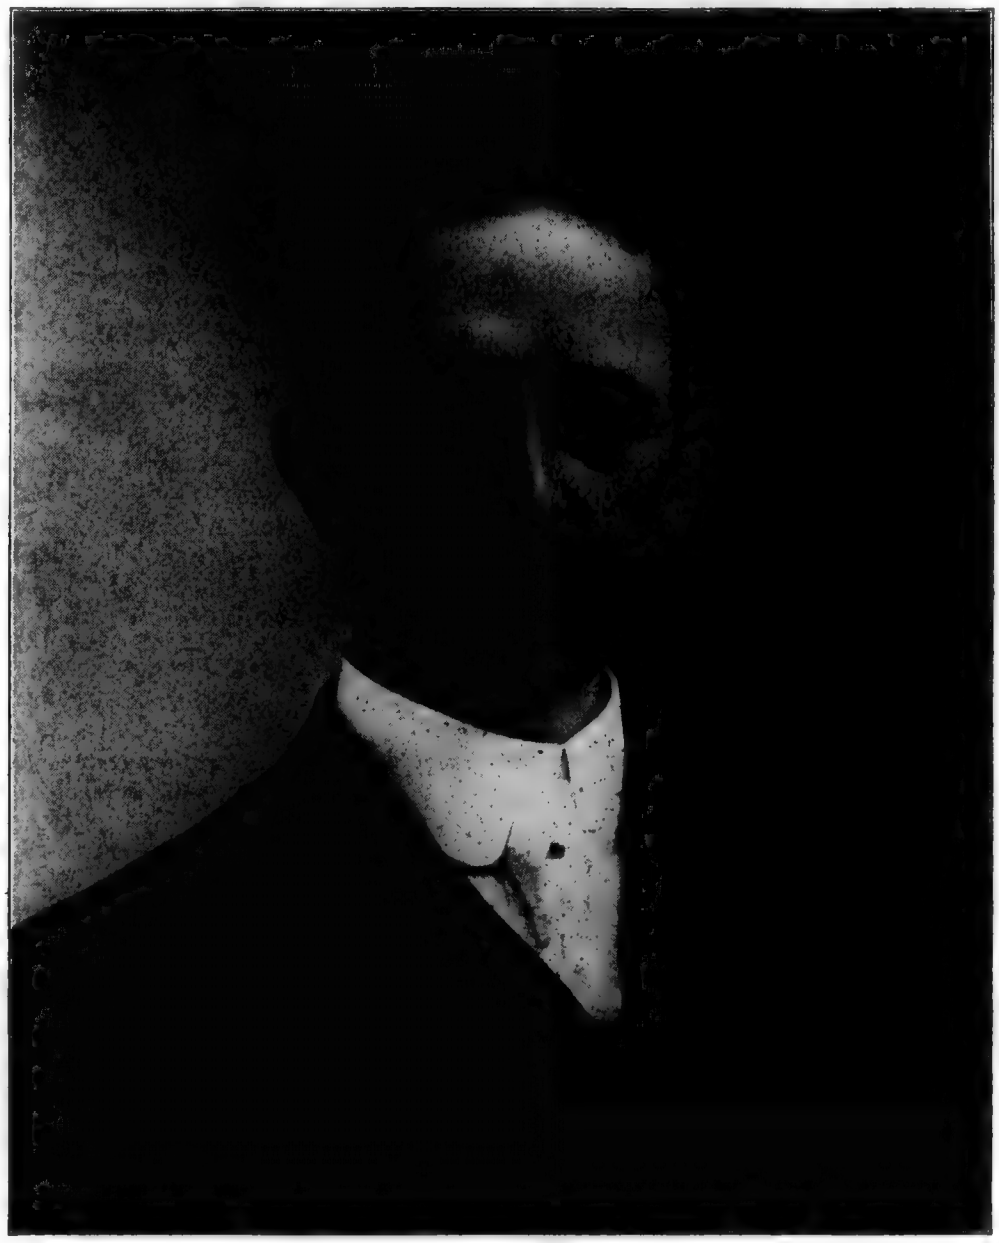
Mr. Crosman is survived by his wife and two children, two brothers and a sister. The funeral was held June 7. Interment was at Mount Hope cemetery. E. C. A.

Alexander Volkman.

Alexander Volkman, president of the Volkman Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo., died in the week ending May 29, after a lingering illness.

Mr. Volkman was 52 years of age and was born in St. Louis. He is survived by his wife, a brother and a sister. The funeral took place Monday, May 31, from the home, 5721 Easton avenue, and many members of the trade attended.

The widow and the brother will continue the business. J. J. B.



Mrs. Harriet Annie Thompson.

Mrs. Harriet Annie Thompson, widow of the late Thomas Thompson, who was the introducer and first propagator of Calla Elliottiana in California, died May 29 at her home in Santa Cruz, Cal. She was 41 years of age.

Mrs. Thompson was first known in Santa Cruz as Mrs. James Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Martin being in charge of the English Gardens at Capitola, Cal. Mr. Martin died in 1911.

Mrs. Thompson's death was hastened by an illness caused by worry over the kidnapping of a child by its father that she had taken care of for five years. She had assumed care of the child when its mother had died and its father was unable to care for it. Mrs. Thompson had reared the child as one of her own and was overcome with grief.

Mrs. Thompson was born in Birmingham, England, September 19, 1878. She went to California twenty-three years ago and had lived in Los Robles county for twenty-two years. The business of Thompson the Florist, of which Mrs. Thompson has had active management, will be taken care of by Ernest A. Isliker, a foster son.

George H. Cooke.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Milwaukee florists are serving the sweet girl graduate and the blushing June bride with many floral suggestions for "Saying It with Flowers." Baumgarten, Inc., has its store dedicated to the bride and her party. In the window is featured the complete floral service for the bridal party. This window has been favored with much attention by the public and members of the trade.

The window of J. M. Fox & Son, as usual, has a novel attraction and shows the touch of a master hand. Words are inadequate to describe the individual treatment given to the floral arrangements. Truly, art is the beautiful way of doing things.

The Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. is helping the graduate in suggestions. An attractive display of foreign potteries is seen here and several elaborate examples of funeral designing.

M. A. McKenny & Co. have been busy in all branches. Several large funeral orders were in evidence.

Mrs. Seeman, of Anderton & Seeman, who has been ill since November, is expected back the first part of July.

Mrs. Baumgarten sails for Europe the latter part of July.

Arrangements have almost been completed to market to florists' clubs in other cities the entire advertising scheme used by the Milwaukee florists, which has gained fame as being the first and most successful advertising campaign instituted by the profession. A. H. MacDonald, manager of the flower department of Gimbel's, is enthusiastic over the possibilities of such a service and believes it will cut the cost more than one-half if florists in other cities will use this tried and proven advertising system. W. T. U.

AFTER MUMS, THEN WHAT?

What varieties of pinks and other perennials could follow chrysanthemums for winter cutting? T. S. M.—Kan.

There are few perennials which are really winter bloomers, but several will bloom well from March until May. The best of these are delphiniums, Shasta daisies, aquilegias, Coreopsis grandiflora and Pyrethrum roseum. Chrysanthemums can be followed by polyanthus, yellow and white. Forget-me-nots and wallflowers are good and there are some useful annuals like lupines, larkspurs, Gypsophila elegans, nemesia, stocks and candytufts. C. W.

WELCOME indeed will be Red Columbia. A good white rose also is needed.

NOW is the time to begin a thorough general cleaning in the greenhouse.

CHICAGO will set its clock ahead Sunday, June 13, in order to enjoy the benefits of daylight saving.

THIS should be a busy summer, in preparation of an adequate supply of flowers for a busy season next year.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT of an order is often of such moment to the customer that it should always be worth while to the recipient.

THERE is no need for becoming hysterical over the fuel situation, but no wise florist will fail to store coal as soon as he can get it.

THE cost of growing has not ceased to rise. It will require more money to run a greenhouse next winter than it ever took before.

THE continued cool weather is looked upon as a business asset, general trade in flower stores holding up much later than is customary.

THERE is almost no chance of overproduction next winter. All the existing conditions in the trade point to heavy production in autumn and spring and reduced production in winter.

WITH reports of increasing unemployment, it behooves florists who have charge accounts with working people to prosecute collections with vigor. It never will be easier than now to get the money.

UNDENIABLY there has been a general slowing up in business, both manufacturing and mercantile, during the last few weeks, but it is a fair guess that most of the trouble has come from the unseasonable weather this spring and from congestion on the railroads, both of which are temporary matters.

FLORISTS who have loans from their banks almost invariably report they are asked to reduce them as soon as possible. The banks undoubtedly are asking nearly everybody else to pay, too, but they seem to feel that a florist has less claim to "accommodation" than anybody else, unless possibly it may be the manufacturers of furs and silk shirts.

WHEN it costs so much to build greenhouses, it is worth more to repaint them well.

TRADE coöperation is a strong desideratum in a good many minds. The uncertainty lies in the best way to achieve it.

HOLLAND bulb salesmen explain the high prices quoted British florists by stating that all of the season's supply could be sold to the American trade.

CHICAGO TO CLEVELAND.

The transportation committee of the Chicago Florists' Club reports that two railroads are available for direct transportation to the convention of the Society of American Florists, which will be held at Cleveland, August 17 to 19, the New York Central and the Nickel Plate. The train schedules and rates on both roads are given below. No reduced or special rates are available for this trip. It will be noted there is a difference of 5 cents in the fares, in favor of the Nickel Plate.

NEW YORK CENTRAL TRAIN SCHEDULE.

HIGH PRICES NOT A BLESSING.

However other lines of business have viewed high prices, they have certainly not been regarded with favor by florists. Most of the trade have not felt able to maintain their old-time ratio of selling price to cost and, to keep their customers, have trimmed their own margin of profit. At the same time, since all that the florist buys costs more, he has felt a need for greater working capital, and the high prices he has had to ask mean a greater amount carried on the books on outstanding charge accounts. The accounts that run past the regulation period give more occasion for worry than they did in the old days. Then, too, there is always the annoyance of old customers and good customers complaining about the high cost of flowers, of which courteous explanation does not always quite remove the irritation.

Extraordinary demand has maintained florists' sales at a figure they have not before enjoyed. So, despite high prices, they have maintained a profitable enterprise. But florists will be among the gladdest of all trades to see lower prices, though higher coal prices, higher transportation rates, higher costs all along the line, make a decline in flower prices not an early prospect.

COAL CONDITIONS UPSET.

Growers who begin at this time of year preparations for receiving next season's supply of coal find their usual calculations upset by the traffic congestion. Most of the immediate troubles in the coal trade are the result of the failure of the railroads to carry freight normally. The lack of enough freight cars is enormously increased when the loaded cars for weeks or more remain on a side track. And in many cases cars which in a fortnight should make two or three trips are taking a month in transit. Both coal and coke are in such short supply that many industrial establishments are shut down and others are operating on a hand-to-mouth basis. Ordinarily at this season of the year coal is dull. But this year everyone is shouting for coal.

Under these circumstances the grower is likely to be forced to wait for his storage supply until the factories whose activity has been curtailed by the shortage have been able to renew operations. This does not mean that the grower should cease efforts to obtain coal—he should sustain them unceasingly if he wishes to secure an adequate supply for next year. But he must do so with patience, realizing the adverse conditions that confront him. Constant efforts, with patience and forbearance, will be necessary to get enough coal for next season. And those efforts should begin now, for results will prove slow.

BUSINESS ARTERIOSCLEROSIS.

Some businesses have arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries, as it is less technically known. As in human individuals, it is superinduced by advancing age, but in the case of business organizations, the disease can be entirely cured and completely eradicated if corrective measures are taken in time. Otherwise the end is the same, a hastened demise.

Are the inner workings of your business vigorous and free, or are the channels of your organization clogged or hindered by constriction brought on by old methods? Sometimes one learns that "the old ways" are not always, though they are sometimes, the best. Businesses, like individuals, need rejuvenation at times, particularly if, as easily happens in so strenuous times as those of the last few years, they have fallen into slack ways and unhealthy methods. Florists have been so busy first with war-time and then with peace-time problems that their businesses are likely to feel the results of such strenuous experience if methods and systems are not given a thorough scrutiny, not to see if they "will do," but to ascertain if they are as good as they should be.

A CLEAN JOB.

There's a great deal of satisfaction in doing up a job clean. When a clean job is done in advertising, three parties are satisfied—the seller who advertised and has sold his stock advantageously, the buyer who saw the ad and has got what he has been looking for and the advertising medium through which the service is performed. Think of the satisfaction implied in this brief letter:

Please cut out all my ads in the Classified. I am about sold out of everything I advertised. —Henry Krueger, Toledo, O., June 5, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

N. J. P., Colo.—Use sweetened bran mash and Paris green.

P. F., N. Y.—Sow pansy seeds in July or August, transplant when large enough to handle and bench in a cool house before freezing weather.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

With an avalanche of peonies from outside the ordinary territory of the market, conditions have been far from rosy for several days. All staples have been affected, and values have tumbled considerably. Of course, such a state of things must be anticipated, but comfortable weather has helped to intensify a situation which, at best, is detrimental to the movement of greenhouse products. Still, with the exception of the early officinalis varieties, not a locally grown peony has reached the market, and it does not look as though any would come in for a week. After a few days of real summer weather, we are back into the sixties again, conditions favorable to outdoor stock. So far, peony prices have not been particularly remunerative. Extra fine flowers have brought as much as $10 per hundred, but the quantity of them has not been heavy; about $1 to $3 has been the clearance range and many have gone to waste.

While roses are not in particularly good supply, the demand for them is not at all active. American Beauty specials Monday commanded only $25 per hundred for the best, with slow movement. Hybrid teas show a marked decline in values. If it were fair to report a general market price, the range so recorded might be only temporarily reliable. Good stock in specials can be had at from $8 to $10, with other grades descending to $1 or less for No. 2. Preferred varieties, of course, bring a little more, if the preference is marked. Hadley, for instance, may reach $15 to $20 for the best, with Key in the same category.

Carnations are rather more than the market can absorb. Arrivals show the usual signs of the end of the season just now, small flowers on long stems. The best bring $2 to $3, with little available at the latter price, but ordinary stock moves sluggishly at $1.

The supply of cattleyas is not generous, and the demand is nothing to boast of. A fairly regular demand seems to take care of the choicest of arrivals, at $1 to $1.50 per flower, and the rest move at anything down to 25 cents.

Valley is in fair supply at $2 to $8 per hundred sprays, with prices strong, as the outside supply has ceased. Easter lilies are plentiful, but their movement is fair at $5 to $8 per hundred. Gardenias are in poor supply, as far as really good flowers are concerned.

There is a wealth of miscellaneous stock available. Iris is plentiful, but of the usual quality, not bringing much. Some fairly good gladioli are to be had, at $1.50 to $2 per dozen stalks. Myosotis, pansies, calendulas, delphiniums, mignonette and antirrhinums are prominent among the offerings.

Various Notes.

An event of last week was a dinner given in honor of Charles H. Totty by a few of his friends at Mouquin's restaurant, Saturday evening, June 5. It was a most enjoyable affair and lasted until nearly midnight. A souvenir menu was provided, the various items in the way of edibles set down having relish given to them by sayings and quotations of the distinguished guest. The toast list was made up of quotations from authors and poets selected for their appropriateness to the occasion, and there was hearty response to all. The following were present: W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., James Stuart, F. R. Pierson, John Young, F. H. Traendly, P. F. Kessler, Joseph S. Fenrich, John H. Pepper, A. L. Miller, Walter F. Sheridan, C. B. Weathered, F. L. Atkins, John Canning, John Donaldson, Leonard Barron, Eugene Dailledouze, A. M. Henshaw, Joseph A. Manda, Charles Schenck, Julius Roehrs, A. Herrington, C. Lowther, B. Hammond Tracy, L. J. Reuter, John Miesem, George Hildenbrand, Charles Weber, Henry Weston and A. F. Faulkner. John Young presided and John H. Pepper was the toastmaster. The dinner arrangements were in charge of Messrs. Kessler, Fenrich, Young and Pepper. In the course of the proceedings Mr. Totty was presented with a gold-mounted cigar case of 25-cigar capacity and filled with a choice brand. The dinner was really a send-off to Mr. Totty, who, with Mrs. Totty, is to sail for Europe June 22, meeting their daughter, Helen, in France, where she has been studying for some time. The tables were set in E form, and the floral decorations were of roses.

B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., and L. J. Reuter, of Boston, motored to New York to attend the Totty dinner.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held in the club's rooms, in the Engineering Societies' building, Monday evening, June 14. This will be the last meeting prior to the summer vacation.

Roman J. Irwin has been enjoying a few days' vacation. Mrs. Irwin, who has recovered from a shake-up due to an automobile collision near their home, in Larchmont, May 24, is accompanying her husband on a short trip.

P. J. Smith, Sunday, June 6, celebrated the tenth anniversary of his establishment in business.

Max Schling, Saturday evening, June 6, celebrated at his home at Tuckahoe the sixteenth anniversary of his wedding. J. H. P.

An exhibition is to be held in the Museum building of the New York Botanical Garden, at Bronx park, June 12 and 13, containing six classes for peonies and several for hardy roses and other hardy plants and shrubs.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

The market is flooded with flowers and the demand is poor. Peonies, arriving too late for Memorial day, are abundant and cannot even be given away. Carnations are also abundant and the quality is not so good. Sweet peas are also plentiful and move slowly. Snapdragons and daisies are available in large quantities and at reduced prices.

Roses are the only flowers in season that are not in oversupply and these continue to be just about equal to the demand. Garden flowers have been putting in their appearance. Among this latter class are delphiniums, pyrethrums, irises, daisies, etc.

Bedding stock has had an active boom and the majority of florists have moved practically all of their stock. This has been higher than in previous years, but has sold exceptionally well.

Decorations for social functions have also been an important item in the last few weeks. Numerous weddings have taken place, calling for more elaborate decorations, not to mention the prenuptial social affairs, calling for corsages, etc.

Various Notes.

Indianapolis was 100 years old June 7. The city was gay with decorations. The downtown streets were lined with flags and a number of the stores had effective floral displays. One of the department stores had its windows decorated effectively with palms and other greens, featuring the dates 1820 and 1920. In the evening was witnessed one of the longest parades ever held in this city. Each school was represented by a float in which the school children participated. The various city enterprises, large and small, were represented and many of them showed that they had learned the value of "Saying It with Flowers."

The convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs is being held in this city this week. Several of the flower stores have special welcome decorations for this convention.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Temperley leave Sunday, June 13, on the Shriners' special for the convention at Portland, Ore. They will also make stops in California before returning home. Mr. Temperley is a member of the naval patrol.

O. E. Steinkamp, as a member of the gatling gun squad, will also take the trip to Portland.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The Chicago market has had another strenuous week. The conditions have not been wholly satisfactory to any branch of the industry, but an extremely large quantity of stock has been moved, if at low average prices. It has been seldom that the market has received such large quantities of good flowers. This is not saying that all the stock has been of first-class quality, but, considering that we are "knee deep in June," the weather has been cool and it has maintained the quality of cut flowers above the average grade for this season of the year. The retail demand, neither shipping nor local, has been sufficient to consume the daily receipts and it has been necessary to seek outlets of other than the usual character. This condition always means low average prices, not pleasing to the grower, and it also means that the retailers meet exasperating forms of temporary competition, so that they join with the growers in making life more or less burdensome for the wholesalers, whose position is that described as "between the devil and the deep sea." It is the fact, however, that by one means or another the extremely large receipts have been moved; only the lowest grades of flowers have been thrown away and each day's arrivals have been sold by night, except peonies, large quantities of which have gone into cold storage. With a majority of the wholesalers May was a big month and June thus far has run considerably ahead of the corresponding days of June last year.

Roses have suffered more than other flowers, because the crop has been heaviest. Nearly all the growers are cutting in quantity and weather conditions have been so favorable that there are extremely large receipts of first-class stock, affording, at the prices, exceptional values. There are many special retail sales, in flower stores and in other places where the public can be reached in larger numbers. There are good supplies of fine Beauties from two or three sources, but the market's principal offerings are Premier, Columbia and Russell. White and red are comparatively scarce.

Although there has been no great increase in the cuts of carnations, prices have gone down along with those of other flowers. A good many of the carnations are beginning to show the approach of the end of the season and are unsalable except for the cheapest work.

Sweet peas also are nearing the end and the supply is much smaller than in recent weeks; also, the average quality is deteriorating. It would take only a few hot days to finish off most of the indoor crops and the outdoor peas, of course, are not yet ready. There is a wide range of prices.

Cattleyas are scarce, all the principal growers being off crop at present. Outdoor valley never has been so plentiful and never better than within the last few days. The market receives considerable supplies of snapdragon, but a large part of the stock shows the effect of the scarcity of greenhouse labor. There still are considerable quantities of Godfrey callas, but the supply of Easter lilies is not large. Yellow daisies sell rather well.

Green goods are in small supply and the list is more limited than usual.

The Peony Situation.

This has been a most unusual season for peonies. The cuts are about two weeks late. Since Memorial day the central Illinois arrivals have been heavy. There has been a notably good sale, considering all conditions, but it has been necessary to send to cold storage a considerable part of the arrivals. The Gould cut at Onarga is off. Klehm's Indiana crop is in. Local peonies will be ready this week and the crop close to Chicago seems to have suffered less from the backward spring than was the case in any other section. According to all reports, there will be many hundreds of thousands of local peonies to be absorbed next week.

Pink Roses Predominate.

Pink roses will predominate to a notable degree in the Chicago market next season. Growers' replanting operations are nearing an end and it is apparent that the list of varieties grown in quantity for next season will be the shortest in many years. Almost without exception the growers have increased their plantings of Premier and Columbia, at the expense of Russell, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney and Richmond. Killarney has been discarded by most of the large growers. If White Killarney remains, it is in extremely small quantity, and the same can be said of Richmond. Ophelia also has given ground to the newer pink sorts and Sunburst is joining Mrs. Ward in the limbo of forgotten things. Many growers will have nothing but pink on their places.

meeting and stag banquet of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, to be held at the Randolph hotel, Thursday, June 17, at 7 p. m. The evening promises to be full of both business and recreation. Annual reports will be read and the election of officers will take place; members are urged to bring their membership cards with them, so that there will be no difficulty in voting. H. V. Swenson, secretary of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, will tell how the money contributed for advertising is spent. After other speakers have addressed the meeting the evening will come to a light-hearted close with a program of vaudeville arranged by Paul E. Weiss, chairman of the entertainment committee. The meeting is open to all growers and their men friends and employees. Tickets, at $2.50 per plate, are on sale at the wholesale houses.

"Boost Your Business—Advertise."

That is the headline of advice over the paragraphs by August F. Poehlmann which appeared under his portrait on the cover of the folder announcing the June meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club. They read:

Summing up the results obtained by collective advertising thus far, I feel encouraged to go on with it, and I hope to see every retailer, wholesaler and grower tied up with this advertising campaign.

Organization is the keynote of success to any business. Loyalty to that organization cannot help but improve general conditions and will eventually make your business a pleasure instead of worry. Boost your business by boosting your organization.

Any movement to curtail the sale of flowers should be promptly discredited. You had an instance of this lately—when Miss Jarvis was busy. Individually we could have done nothing. Through our organization we were in position immediately to counteract any injurious influence on the minds of the public.

By concerted action of the wholesalers, the express shipping orders were modified so that express shipments could be resumed, again demonstrating that united action counts for something tangible. Other problems of a vital nature will soon have to be met. The fuel situation is becoming worse daily. What is in store for the grower?

The announcement stated that the July, August and September meetings would be omitted. Attention was called to the Republican convention and the national gathering of Elks, July 5 to 11, as florists' opportunities.

supply of stock is so heavy just now, because everyone in the market would like to lay off to talk politics. The Republican national convention, in session here this week, seems to have done nothing in the way of increasing the use of flowers; excitement never helps our trade, because it occupies the minds of the people to the extent that flowers are forgotten. One fact has developed, however: A large number of those in the market who generally vote the Democratic ticket say that this year they want to see a change and will vote for whoever is nominated at the Coliseum this week.

Following the Republican national convention, July 5 to 10 we shall have with us the Elks. Crowded as the city is with political visitors, it is predicted that still larger crowds will come with the Elks. The politicians do not include many florists, but there will be scores of members of the trade here for the big gathering of Elks. T. E. Waters, president of the Florists' Club and manager of the supply department of Poehlmann Bros. Co., has hung a big sign, "Welcome B. P. O. E.," in the store. Incidentally it shows the retailers a new method of making large work. Mr. Waters took a huge sheet of beaver board and on it glued the familiar white capebloomen, making a solid background. A border and the lettering went on with purple chenille. On the reverse side, the background was painted with the Elks' purple and the lettering and border put on with a white capebloomen.

The window boxes around the main floor of the Blackstone hotel, which made their appearance last week, are John Mangel's handiwork.

How favorable May was for the production of greenhouse cut flowers is shown by the report of the official meteorologist, who shows seventy-five per cent of the possible number of hours of sunshine, against sixty-three per cent as the normal for the month. There was less than half of the average precipitation.

The growers are becoming alarmed over the difficulty they experience in starting the summer's accumulation of coal. Many fuel dealers will not take orders except from regular customers

Memorial Day.

The market until Thursday, May 27, was dull. Owing to the warm weather, stock was in oversupply and hard to move at any price. On that day cut flowers began to move and by closing time Saturday, May 29, the market was cleaned up at fairly good prices, especially for peonies, which were scarce.

The Market.

The first week in June has seen a disastrous change in the market. There is business, more than usual at this time, but there are three times too many flowers. This is due to the arrival of the peony army in full force. Add to this that many peonies are going into cold storage as soon as they arrive and that many more will never be cut and the situation is clear.

The market started well on the holiday proper, Monday, May 31. It was a half day with many florists, yet there was enough business to absorb much of the stock offered. Despite any number of weddings and commencements, for which flowers were freely used, a change was apparent the following day. By Wednesday the peonies were coming so freely that, added to the already large supply, the accumulation in the wholesale houses became hopeless. They came from Maryland, they came from Delaware, they came from New Jersey, they came from Pennsylvania. They came in such numbers that there was no price for them. Before Memorial day good peonies brought $15 per hundred, while really select stock that was open brought $20 and everything fit sold. After Memorial day the best peonies brought $8 per hundred and if that offer was not instantly taken some one else would offer some nearly as good at $6, ditto at $5, ditto at $4. Peonies could be bought on the wharf, it was said, and I do not question the truth of the statement, at from $1.50 to $2. Probably they were a bit mussed and not even as to openness or choice as to varieties; still they were peonies and they had their voice in the general market.

The result of all this deluge of stock was that the wholesalers rose to the occasion; they acted in self-preservation. Confident in the market throughout June and July, they put all the peonies possible into cold storage. Then they accepted every kind of order, simply seeing that their regular customers got the cream of the stock; in other words, that they got full value.

Then they checked production; that is, they stopped receiving peonies. First they declined all proposals from new shippers; then they limited their peony shipments to their shippers.

Other flowers have, of course, sadly fallen, carnations most of all. The street gets carnations now—a surprising change.

Roses are doing a little better. Oddly enough, there is no special demand for Beauties.

Sweet peas are almost out of the market save for a few early outdoor flowers, which sell readily. Snapdragon is doing much better as the season draws to a close. Orchids are in demand at unheard-of prices. Valley is over outdoors. The market is supplied by frame-grown and greenhouse-grown stock in moderate numbers.

There are centaureas and feverfew as heralds of summer, also lots of cornflowers.

Lilies do not sell; greens do.

The Club's Party.

The Hotel Adelphia was the scene of a delightful gathering the evening of Wednesday, June 2. The powers that be sensibly decided that, as the Florists'

Club members had just completed a pretty strenuous season, they were entitled to a little mild diversion. It was so ordered. The dyed-in-the-wool business men had planned a curtain-raiser in the shape of a meeting to organize a Philadelphia chapter of the National Flower Growers' Association, but this was afterward given up. Every member was granted the privilege of bringing his family or friends. The program was arranged with the idea of pleasing the friends, many of them of the gentler persuasion, as well as affording much needed relaxation for the members themselves.

The corridors are liberally sprinkled with the adherents of the house of Niessen, each doing his utmost to assist their chairman to make a brilliant success of the maiden effort. Inside there are well over a hundred seated in the chairs facing the piano on the impromptu stage. As it lacks a few minutes of half past eight, there is time for a glance around the room to see who's here.

Modestly seated in the rear is the treasurer, George Craig, who believes that a grower is as good as a wholesaler. Near him is Stephen Mortensen, of Southampton, a recognized leader in the profession. That young man speaking genially to a friend is Robert B. Bragg, of Edward Reid's, a rising wholesaler. In the middle of the room are Emil H. Geschick, Mrs. Geschick and Miss Mary Geschick, all three recognized stars in Pelham. The man who has just entered is James Cochran, with his host, J. M. Deutscher. Mr. Cochran is a talented musician, an amateur pianist who is present to assist in the entertainment. Over there is Edgar W. Bayley, on the eve of his greatest undertaking. Here are William Swayne, of Kennett, and his son Lawrence, who is now nearly though not quite in the fold.

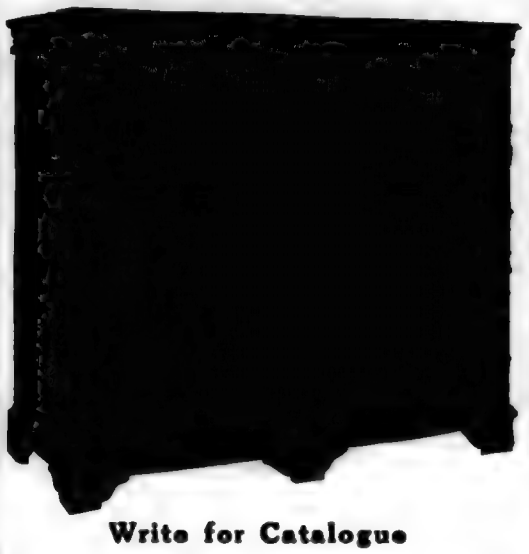
Attention! E. P. Klinger, chairman of the house committee, has just mounted the platform. You feel instinctively that he is going to make the thing go, and he does.



From the singing of all the ladies present, through the tales of O'Brien to the song directed especially at an embarrassed member, things went swimmingly. The business side was touched but once, when our own Charlie Grakelow told some funny stories in his inimitable way and then, growing serious, asked that each one of us make our chosen profession a little better for those who will follow us and the world a little better for our having lived in it by giving $1 a week to the publicity campaign. It was exceedingly well done.

There are those who delight in describing an appetizing supper—the savory salad, the cooling cream, the refreshing beverages. These you must imagine, and how even the last man up got something and how eloquently Allie Patterson discoursed and how everybody went home happy.

place. It was a treat to have them. Their interest in plant life and their knowledge of botany were stimulating; they were well posted on the latest achievements in floriculture, making it clear that the florist who wants to keep abreast of the times must read and study as well as work. While the young women from Ambler were too modest to know it, they taught fully as much as they learned, besides giving pleasure by their visit.

The Lansdowne Show.

In conjunction with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, the Lansdowne Flower Show Association gave its annual exhibition of outdoor flowers, mainly roses and peonies, in the Twentieth Century club house, the afternoon and evening of June 5.

This show is the work of Samuel S. Pennock. It has been successfully carried on for about five years. A band of enthusiastic amateurs have been gathered together. They exhibit fine flowers, the product of the garden, and they do it artistically.

The competition is so keen that a body of expert judges is necessary to decide the honors. Rain marred the pleasure of the day.

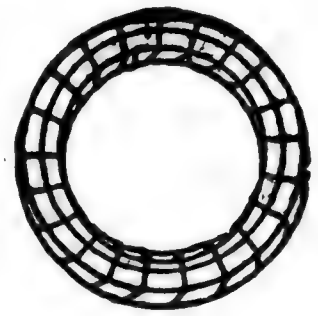
The Market.

Memorial day was never considered much of a flower day in the past, but Monday, May 31, every wholesale house in the city was cleaned up and closed by noon. At some of the stores I was told that they had noticed more Memorial day business than ever before, but unfortunately time would not permit me to get around to the smaller stores, where most of the stock from the wholesale houses had gone. But there was one significant fact, which anyone interested could not help but notice, that on every street car you were sure to find passengers en route to the various cemeteries with baskets of cut flowers and plants, and these were not for the graves of soldiers only. This goes to show what is possible in this day. The advertisement of the Associated Florists certainly brought good results, but even this might have been made much stronger.

Aside from Monday, the market last week was about as usual for this season of the year. There is plenty of stock of all kinds, but the indoor stock is beginning to show the effects of the warm weather. Roses, however, hold exceptionally well. Carnations, perhaps, appear worse than any other article, being smaller and becoming "sleepy" soon. All sorts of shrubbery are to be had in any quantity desired. Green goods continue to be scarce.



The plant trade is now at its height and we continually hear of the shortage that exists. Anything in a pot is being

The Advertising Campaign.

The committee feels that it has demonstrated beyond a doubt that the advertising campaign has shown splendid results, both in the Mothers' day and Memorial day business. There was a much larger volume of business done on both of these occasions than ever before. This was especially noticeable Memorial day. In the past there had never been much of an increase noticed, but this year everything on the market was used up. Retail stores reported that they had never done any business for this occasion; that they had some work, but attributed this to the late war. The Associated Florists attribute it to their advertising campaign. There is no reason why, if the public were properly educated, May 30 could not be made a big flower day. Soldiers' graves were not the only ones that were decorated this year, by any means. The committee is now going after the commencement and wedding business for June. May 31 they carried a fine advertisement in the Evening Sun, reminding the public of the girl graduate and the opportunity to show appreciation of her by "Saying It with Flowers." This was followed June 2 with another along the same line. In the next the bride will be remembered. There are wonderful possibilities in this campaign; get in and do your bit.

The Next Club Meeting.

The greatest meeting in the history of the club will be held June 14. The special business of the evening is going to be the plans of the National Flower Growers' Association and the organization of a Baltimore local. J. Fred Ammann, a man with a vision of the future of the florists' business, will be there to tell you all about it. We especially want the small growers to be present. I am going to send you literature on the subject; study this, and if you don't understand, ask questions. The whole thing is young and not yet permanently organized; your views are wanted. There are many big, broad-minded florists at the head of it. If you have a good idea, they will be quick to grasp it. I understand a local has been organized in Philadelphia and I feel sure that when you understand its aims, one will be organized in Baltimore June 14.

We had a birthday in the club last week. June 2 Mayor Broening was 50 years of age. Our president, W. F. Ekas, who is always on the alert to "Say It with Flowers," had a bunch of fifty American Beauties on the mayor's desk, with the club's card attached, when he arrived at the city hall.

SEED FOR HARDY PERENNIALS.

I am anxious to procure seed for some good hardy perennial carnations or pinks which can be planted in the field and will bloom from May on. I have read of Dianthus Her Majesty and Perpetual Snow in white, but have not been able to find the seed listed in a catalogue. I should like to have a good white, a good pink and a good red one. Can you give me the cultural directions and refer me to someone who can furnish the seed?

W. S. C.—Ore.

I do not know of anyone listing seeds of the carnations or hardy pinks you refer to. Consulting a number of seed lists, I can only find mixed hardy carnation seeds offered and think that it will be necessary for you to procure the plants of the varieties Her Majesty, Perpetual Snow, Napoleon III, crimson, and others of this type. Propagation is usually either by cuttings or layers. The various forms of Dianthus plumarius, spice, or hardy border pink, are procurable from seeds, but come more easily from layers. In your latitude the race of hardy carnations which thrive so well in Great Britain would do well. These come in about every color but blue and the double flowers in nearly all cases have a delicious clove scent. Unfortunately, these cannot be imported now, as the Federal Horticultural Board fears that they may bring in some dangerous enemy alien insect pests.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Oakland, Cal.—T. Takayama, who grows roses and carnations, has a greenhouse 700 feet long.

Vancouver, B. C.—Recent incorporations reported from Victoria include that of the Richmond Gardens, Ltd., of this city. This company has a capital stock of $15,000 and is a private corporation.

Bellingham, Wash.—Where in 1916 the United States government took over sixty acres of virgin forest land near this city now appears an experimental farm, with thirty acres of highly cultivated land. On it 150 varieties of tulip and 150 varieties of daffodil and narcissus are being grown. This farm is in charge of Dr. David Griffiths, who keeps four men busy the year around and superintends the semiannual harvesting of bulbs for the government. Every Sunday during the blooming season there are at least 2,500 visitors to the farm, although no blooms are for sale.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The clean-up for Memorial day was apparent in the market the morning after, there being hardly any of the regular growers in and almost nothing on the tables. The autoist who goes out looking for flowers on special occasions was well to the fore May 30 and 31, a regular line-up being seen in front of many of the Japanese stands along the principal boulevards. This was followed by a run on the growers and they were quick to take advantage of it, with the result that early last week shippers could get little stock. Roses held out fairly well till after Memorial day; then they slumped and looked in bad condition afterward.

Memorial day will go on record as the biggest in the history of the trade in this city, the only trouble being the excessive heat a few days before, which made shipping extremely difficult. A large number of carnations must have been spoiled en route to the warmer points, for even in Los Angeles the doors of the wholesale houses had to be closed and the stock kept on ice until the last minute. Luckily, it became cooler later and the retailers had a better chance to keep stock in good shape. Apparently there was no great shortage, though more carnations could have been sold. The demand for wreaths, crosses and other designs of statice and strawflowers was good, especially in the cheap and medium-priced grades. There was little call for the higher-priced ones.

Various Notes.

George J. Hall & Co. have put in an extensive line of baskets and report the demand good. According to George Hall, many of the best orders for Memorial day did not come in until late, but they made a wonderful clean-up.

Paul Miller, of the P. C. Miller Co., says that it was the best Memorial day they ever had. This firm is to be congratulated upon the excellent showing made in the short time it has been in business.

The L. A. Floral Co. cleaned up well in all lines and since Memorial day has had many repeat orders for the wreaths which proved so popular for the holiday.

Mr. Williamson, manager for W. Armacost & Co., calls attention to the increased importance of all the holidays in this section and says that the Memorial day business was far beyond their expectations. This firm is showing fine pot hydrangeas.

S. Murata reports a big clean-up for Memorial day. The shipping department was kept busy all through the week.

The Market.

Tulips and peonies are the main features in the market at present. Carnations are somewhat scarce; they have been more or less so all winter and spring. Because of the cool weather this spring, the outdoor valley is unusually good; it is also especially welcome. Some fine snapdragons are to be had and they helped to relieve the carnation shortage for Memorial day.

Although there were a large number of outdoor flowers, such as tulips, lilacs and bridal wreath, in the gardens of many homes, Memorial day business this year was at least one-third better than that of any previous year. Some fine peonies were shipped from Oregon for Memorial day and sold well; their being the first of the season helped to move them faster than other flowers. Wild rhododendron was also shipped in, but it moved only fairly.

Various Notes.

The members of the trade all extend their sincere sympathy to Miss S. McInnis, with Hoyt Bros. Co., in the death of her brother, Daniel.

Hot Weather Flowers

By careful selection of stock and suitable packing we eliminate much of the loss consequent on long distance shipping in hot weather.

We also carefully watch train schedules and shipments are not allowed to leave our store until a short time before the train leaves.

It is for these and other good reasons that we get many letters from our customers testifying to the good condition of the stock on arrival and merit the title of Jack Burt has bought a limousine; evidently business is good at his store. Recent shipping business there has been comparable to that of Christmas and Easter.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

June was ushered in with hot weather, an abundance of stock and a decreased demand after an unusually heavy Memorial day business, which has resulted in a slump at the local market. Offerings were little if any more plentiful June 1 and 2 than they were the week before, but they seemed much heavier, owing to the difference in demand. Prices have receded on practically all items and a great deal of surplus stock is being offered by the street venders at low figures. As one of the wholesalers remarked, the market is sick, but in diagnosing the symptoms one finds nothing more alarming than the well known disease which takes hold of the florists' business every year about this time and may be called summer fever. Its cause is a heavy supply of seasonable outdoor stock and a light demand. There is little ground for complaint, the trade here having enjoyed an unusually brisk winter and spring

H. & S. Prize Mixed, The Finest Strain in America.

See page advertisement, page 53 of The Review for May 27

Sow them now for midwinter and early spring blooming. Seed saved from an unrivaled collection of pot-grown plants, remarkable for their compact habit, enormous size of blooms and splendid range of colors.

We have spent years of patient labor in bringing this strain to its present state of perfection. Flowers four to four and one-half inches in diameter are common and in some of our latest types, petals are three-quarters inch across.

Colors include all shades from purest white to darkest crimson, with all intermediate shades of blue, lavender, pink, purple, scarlet, and gorgeous giant-flowered bicolored varieties. Seed carefully hand-picked, strong in germinating qualities, the very best you can buy.

Azaleas and similar plants will be scarce during the coming winter. A batch of Cinerarias will find a ready sale if well grown.

Calendulas

Calendula Orange King—For a Fall catch crop make a sowing of our superb strain of this well known Calendula. It is something different. Blossoms of giant size, perfectly formed, absolutely double. Color rich dark orange. No better strain procurable. Well worth while.

Large Trade Packet.....$1.00
Half Size Trade Packet..... .50

Calendula Lemon Queen—A superb selection with immense double flowers, rich lemon yellow in color. This will prove a fine companion to our Orange King. Although the seed has been carefully selected from the finest double blossoms, this variety will always throw some semi-doubles, but our strain may be relied upon to produce not less than 85 per cent of perfect flowers. At any rate, we doubt if you can get better.

Aquilegia

Columbine

We are offering for the first time the following strains of these elegant, long-spurred, large-flowered Columbines. The blossoms are of remarkable size, elegantly formed, with spurs of extraordinary length. Sown now they will give you fine clumps for Spring sales. Useful for cut flowers, easily grown, popular everywhere.

H. & S. Selected Pink Shades

A splendid selection producing about 85 per cent true to color. Includes all shades from apple blossom pink to darkest rose.

Trade Packet.....$1.00

H. & S. Selected Blue Shades

All colors from palest sky blue to deepest purple. The intervening shades and bicolor varieties are handsome to a degree. 85 per cent true.

Trade Packet.....$1.00

business, with indications that the summer demand will likewise show some improvement over former years, as soon as the market recovers a little from the post-holiday slump.

It is pointed out that better values will prevail when the rose and carnation growers begin to dry up their ranges, thus greatly reducing the supplies of these staples. Both have been in heavy supply for several weeks and the large shipping demand for Memorial day was all that postponed the slump until the first week in June.

Peonies are about gone, the crop having been light and their season short this spring. Large-flowering gladioli are arriving in fair quantity and it is regretted they could not have appeared a week or ten days earlier. The small-flowering varieties are plentiful. Neither orchids nor gardenias are plentiful, but there are enough for requirements. Sweet peas manage to clean up well, considering the strong competition with other small outdoor stock. There is still a heavy cut of Easter lilies. Strawflowers constitute an important item on shipping orders, with the advent of hot weather, which makes it impossible to ship many other kinds of flowers long distances without refrigeration.

The growers report asters and chrysanthemums both looking well. About the same acreage of the former is under cultivation this year as was grown last and the outlook is for a fine cut. It is expected that the flowers will be ready for market early in July. The acreage of chrysanthemums has been increased about twenty-five per cent. Everything looks most promising for a fine crop. An early season is counted upon, Golden Glow being scheduled to appear in July.

now well stocked with these goods. While the company will concentrate on this kind of business in the future, it will continue to handle cut flowers the same as usual.

Mrs. Copeland did well Memorial day and has been busy with commencement and graduation work, mostly baskets and bouquets. June 1 she had a large wedding decoration, which will be followed by others in rapid succession during the remainder of the month. Mrs. Copeland is still receiving compliments on her handling of the foreign trade convention banquet decoration. It has been directly instrumental in bringing her some other nice decorations.

David Lichtenstein, Terminal Florist, did a big Memorial day business and reports trade holding up as well as can be expected for June.

Cohen & Figone, in the Ferry building, supplied a big demand for flowers to people leaving town for the Memorial day week-end.

P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., says that wedding decorations are the principal activity this month.

Enomoto & Co. report fine business all through the month of May, with no grievance if shipping does drop off materially for the next month or two. They consider the outlook splendid for a fine season with both asters and chrysanthemums.

C. Kooyman says that business is settling down to the usual summer lull, but that it is some consolation that florists in this vicinity, as a whole, have done well during the first part of the year. M. M.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The largest and the best Memorial day business that has ever been listed, was the report of the trade. Big shipments of California flowers were necessary to take care of the holiday trade and all the stock that local and Portland growers could deliver was handled in nice shape. The spring flowers were brisk sellers, leading roses and other annuals. Early Monday morning, May 31, saw practically every house cleaned up on carnations. Potted plants for cemetery decorations were big sellers. Petunias, begonias and calceolarias probably were the heaviest sellers. Potted lily of the valley was sold readily to the buyers of higher-priced flowers. Potted geraniums also met with a steady sale.

Roses were popular with the general trade during the last week. Ward is arriving with excellent color. Some extra fancy short-stemmed Russell has been received from California and locally grown Ophelia is all that could be asked as to stem and keeping qualities. The color could be improved with a little more sunshine.

There have been lighter deliveries of snapdragons, but these flowers are being replaced by lupines, so that no shortage is created. The local crop of gladioli has shown splendid quality, but has not filled the demand. Local carnations are between crops and the greater share of the supply is being shipped in by Spokane growers. Some fine Laddie in pink and red is being shown. Sweet peas are plentiful. They have longer stems and are available in some choice orchid shades. Peonies, gladioli, statice and lupines have been the principal items in southern deliveries.

There is a steady demand for baskets and boxes and retailers who make a specialty of making up window boxes say that there is a nice run of business of this sort. The cut of narcissi is running short, but there are plenty of tulips to be had. Iris is arriving in nice shape. Asters are selling well. Orchids and gardenias are both in plentiful supply.

The Thomas Floral Co. has made a number of improvements of late. It is sending in some fine stock. A number of new varieties of roses are to be grown this season, including Butterfly, Dunlop, Cornelia and Cook, and the space devoted to Ward is to be increased. Some nice orchids are being cut and the supply of gardenias and lily of the valley is large.

centered on the flags. This firm is getting the best of the local carnations from its own greenhouses, but the supply is not sufficient to meet its needs.

Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., has returned from a short trip to Oregon. This firm enjoyed the heaviest Memorial day sales in its history and the combination of holiday demand and funeral work cleaned up its stock early Monday afternoon.

The Washington Florists have been featuring a fern ball filled with various spring flowers, with splendid results. This firm is showing some fine potted petunias and some nice ferns of the Boston and other varieties.

The decorations for the Rainier Club banquet to ex-President Taft last week were handled by Kenney's Home of Flowers and attracted notice in the local press. The diners were seated about a hollow square filled with palms and greens and a large spray centerpiece was placed in the center of each side of the square, made of Ophelia roses and ferns. William Goldsbary, of this firm, is at present in Vancouver, B. C., on a business trip.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop has shown a number of spring novelties recently and reports good sales. This house has received some of the best colored Cecile Brunner roses and finest iris in the market. Anemones were also shown in profusion.

The Orpheum Floral Co. handled probably the largest shipment of California gladioli received by any local house and cleaned them up at nice prices.

The Market.

Many marriage licenses have already been taken out for June weddings and this will help to make business good this month. Late sales of seeds, bedding plants, etc., have added to business. Cut flowers are much cheaper than they were. Roses may be purchased for $1 per dozen and up. Seconds have been sold as cheap as 50 cents or 75 cents per dozen at special sales. Peonies are now arriving on the market and are bringing from $2.50 to $3 per dozen.

Various Notes.

This Jardiniere costs but a few cents

Yet it adds many times its cost to the appearance of any potted plant, and it may be used to equal advantage for cut flowers, artificial flowers, baskets and ferns. Made of wood fiber, waterproofed, handsomely decorated in Wedgwood colors. Send for illustrated folder and prices for 4, 5 and 6-inch standard flower pot shape sizes.

The Market.

The market during the last week has been steady. All stock went well and prices were normal. Peonies seem to be at their best and promise a slight oversupply; consequently some are selling as low as $2 per hundred. Lilies, both Harrisii and callas, are arriving in strong supply and find a ready sale, bringing $12 to $15 per hundred.

Some good Spanish iris is finding a ready sale, as it is just the thing for spring decorations. Sweet peas have seen their best days and are showing the effects of the cloudy and wet weather. Carnations are just about holding on, but still help to fill in on orders.

Valley has been better the last week than ever before this year and is cleaning up readily, the best bringing $10 per hundred. Cornflowers are in full bloom now and are just in time for graduations. Good yellow daisies have found their way into the market and are surely welcome, cleaning up well.

Various Notes.

Julius Baer has been busy the last week on weddings and receptions.

R. D. Ruttle, of Covington, O., has had plenty of funeral work, keeping him busy far into the night.

Louis Kyrk has been getting some fine calla lilies from Walter Gray lately. He says that business is good.

E. G. Gillett has been receiving some excellent White Killarney and Mock roses.

George Durban reports a good bedding plant season. G. H. K.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Carl Jurgens has sold his real estate on the Bliss Mine road.

Oscar Schultz supplied the flower committee of the G. A. R. with 800 palms for Memorial day, at 20 cents each. W. H. M.

Dubuque, Ia.—The A. L. Glaser Sons were recently incorporated with a capitalization of $100,000, with Louis Glaser as president. This firm is building greenhouses on a farm recently acquired and rebuilding the old range in the city. An up-to-date and well equipped retail store is operated on Main street. A Federal truck has been added to the delivery equipment.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

ARTISTIC FUNERAL WORK.

Tendency of New Era.

Just as the florists' business is becoming a profession worthy of rank among the best, as the old-fashioned methods of drudgery and slight recompense are being slowly but surely replaced by modern ideas in selling, in advertising, in decorating, etc., so is funeral work gradually breaking away from the stiff, set, artificial-looking designs, to become truly artistic offerings.

This tendency has been particularly noticeable in the larger cities, but in smaller towns there is an appreciable lack of change from the old-fashioned methods. The flat spray, with its flowers laid in regular rows upon a thin covering of flat ferns; the star or pillow, covered solidly with carnations or roses without a vestige of green to break the monotony of color; the magnolia wreath, with a flower stuck here and there without any particular effect—all these are still common in the smaller cities.

Learn from Leaders.

It would be an immeasurable benefit to the florists with small businesses to visit larger establishments, to absorb the newer ways and tendencies and in this fashion to educate the public in their own towns to the possibilities of artistic arrangements. The presence of flowers at a funeral serves as a fitting tribute to the deceased; it is a mark of respect as well as of beauty. But how can a flat spray or a stiff piece answer such a purpose? Flowers strewn about loosely would be far more artistic and desirable. This is not intended as an indictment of floral designs as such, but merely as a suggestion for their betterment. Observation of the work of some of the best establishments in the country and personal experience warrant the following suggestions:

Advantages of Wiring.

The tendency in most establishments is to wire all flowers that are used in making up designs. Contrary to some opinions, the wire does not stiffen the appearance of a piece, but aids in making it graceful. In addition to that, it allows for placement in any desirable position, as well as keeping the flowers in a fresher condition. This freshness of course is merely deceptive, the wire serving to hold up stems which otherwise would droop upon wilting. The stems are usually the first to show indications of lack of water, the flowers, when properly supported, appearing fairly fresh.

The making of a spray built up high to resemble a bunch of flowers apparently growing out of a bed of ferns may appear difficult to the beginner or to one used to making flat sprays. However, it is simply a matter of using sufficient greens between the flowers to force them to stand up and out. A common fault found with many sprays is their lack of stability and sufficient stiffness at the back, preventing convenient handling. This may be secured by tight tying with wire or thread or by the use of a stick for support. In finishing a spray, a short tail-end of ferns, leucothoe or galax may be used to cover the cut ends of the flowers and background greens. The high cost of chiffon and ribbon has eliminated the usual bows unless directly requested by the buyer. An additional charge should be made for these.

Effective Wreaths.

The wreath is the most common design in demand and may be made a quite artistic piece of work, provided a proper combination of flowers is used. Galax leaves stemmed on toothpicks one above another, magnolia leaves, oak leaves and leucothoe are all suitable for the groundwork. Leucothoe and boxwood are especially desirable for larger wreaths in which a cluster of flowers is arranged at the base. To obtain the loose, artistic effects, flowers should be stemmed high on picks or sticks in varying lengths. Their color combination, form and arrangement, together with the saving grace of Asparagus plumosus, Asparagus Sprengeri or adiantum, will determine the beauty of the piece. Once tried, such an arrangement will demonstrate its superiority over the solid effects which require less skill and more material. The same size of a wreath may be made to appear twice as large and good-looking, thus satisfying the customer's desire for a big showing for the price paid, as well as educating the public to an appreciation of the skill of a good designer.

The same principles may be followed in the construction of other set pieces.

Baskets Increasingly Popular.

Baskets of mixed flowers or roses are in continually increasing demand and their use should be encouraged by the florist. They are quite advantageous from many standpoints. Their grace and effectiveness are beyond question, their keeping qualities are notable, the rapidity of their make-up is obvious—all qualities of distinct importance to the florist. The inconvenience of packing such arrangements for shipping has precluded their use in this respect. Their other drawback is the impossibility of using short-stemmed flowers.

There is no question that the use of artistic effects in floral offerings for funeral work will stimulate a greater desire for them for other occasions and produce an impetus in the use of flowers equal to that of the advertising campaigns conducted by many up-to-date florists.

Alex. Lurie.

Other Flowers Add Variety, While Callas and Cattleyas Are Prominent.

CHARM IN VARIETY.

In funeral work the florist is constantly searching for new ideas and new effects. Though the old set forms satisfy his customers, he himself wants

John Powers
The Lumber Box Philosopher

John Powers is an Irishman.
He owns a lumber box wagon and his horse Billy.
Is married and has a daughter Annie.
Every time he meets me, no matter if it's raining like blazes, he always says: "It's a foine day, indeed it is, it is."

Last week, the day of that drizzly cold rain, met him and he got off that "foine day" stuff and, by heck, I called him for time.
Told him it was darn nonsense.

"Now I tell you, Mr. Stumpp, it do be loike this. I've got me wife Mary, and me daughter Annie, and me horse Billy, and me wagon, and me land, and me crops. And when I don't have me crops, or me tire comes off the old wagon, or it rains, or it does whatever the devil it does—what do I care?
"Haven't I always me wife Mary, and me daughter Annie, and me horse Billy, and me wagon, and me land?
"And sure, Mr. Stumpp, every day do be a foine day; indeed it is, sir; it is, it is."

After which I went straight to the shop and gave all the boys merry hale for kicking because the rain might hurt our business for a day.

But it didn't. By eleven, the sun was out and most folks hopping mad because they had to lug an umbrella.

Some—quite some in fact—came in and left theirs—and went away with flowers.
Drop around and I'll introduce you to my Irish friend John.

to get away from what threatens to be the monotony of making up one piece after another of the same pattern and composition.

Too frequently one flower is used exclusively, with the addition of greens, in a piece, giving an effect too solid and cramped to be artistic. A greater variation can be used and is used by florists whose patrons' demands have compelled them to think out new ways.

An example is the spray shown in the accompanying illustration. While the calla lilies and cattleyas are sufficiently prominent to give a central note, serving to unify the effect, other flowers are employed so freely and in such variety that a pleasing distinction is attained in the result. Grace and freedom of this sort is something that appeals to well-to-do patrons, whose artistic taste is well developed, more than closely packed pieces of expensive blooms.

Such patrons make up the clientele of W. J. Smyth, whose store is located in the heart of the old, established fashionable district of the south side in Chicago. In response to their demands, the work from that store bears generally the same mark of charm in variety that this specimen does.

MUSIC AND—

"Say It with Flowers."

Much music down south! Well, a convention held in Fort Smith, Ark., by the Columbia Graphophone Co., May 20, brought together over 300 delegates and dealers from eastern Oklahoma and western Arkansas. But music is often helped by something else, often needs it. Many a time music and flowers have worked together.

So, at the request of the committee on arrangements, George Rye and his assistant, Espy O'Neil, decorated a window in the store of a local music dealer, featuring the "Say It with Flowers" song. And to prove that the words were as good as the window, Mr. Rye sang the song at the convention.

The window display contained, in well arranged grouping, a large basket of peonies, a vase and a basket of carnations, a tall wicker vase of snapdragons, a potted hydrangea and palms, together with a large Grafonola, two or three "Say It with Flowers" records, several copies of the song, with its attractive, violet-decorated cover, and a sign announcing the fact, already alluded to, of "Say It with Flowers" being sung by Mr. Rye at the convention. A wicker table and a tall standard electric lamp helped to strengthen the effect of the display.

The appeal of the music dealers to a florist for his assistance is considered by George Rye as a strong compliment to the advertising capacity of our trade.

The florist is probably too busy to dream much about what the ship of the future will bring him. He may do his planning rather over the ship that is going out.

That is the way it was in the Carolina Floral Store, Charleston, S. C., of which F. L. and F. J. Aichele are proprietors, when an order came from a Pennsylvania retailer for a ship for a funeral in Charleston. The store's designer, Edward L. Loyet, at once set to work and produced a ship which was both artistic and realistic. The hull was composed chiefly of narcissi and carnations, with bunches of lilies of the valley fore and aft and with broadsides of callas.

volved and more suitable for companies with a large capitalization than for smaller firms. This provides for payment of the dividends due employees under a profit-sharing plan, not in cash but in the company's stock. For illustration, one may take a concern closely allied to florists, the Lord & Burnham Co., which put such a plan in force January 1.

Under the plan of this greenhouse building company the profits of the company for the year, after deduction of seven per cent on the capital employed in the business, will be divided, half to the company and half to the employees. Each of the latter will receive a share in the same ratio to the employees' half of the profits as his year's wages bear to the total annual pay roll of the company. This sum is not to be paid the employee, but credited him on the books of the company. There it will draw four per cent until there is a sufficient sum to purchase a whole share of common stock in the Lord & Burnham Co. The employee then has received, not so much cash, but a stock interest in the company for which he works.

Profit Saving.

The advantages in this sort of plan have been pointed out by a widely known and well posted man of business in the following terms:

"Many profit-sharing plans have divided profits with employees on a cash basis and turned the money over to the employees every so often, usually once a year. The result has been that if a man earning $1,000 a year received $200 at the end of the year from a profit-sharing plan, he promptly lifted his living expenses from a $1,000 basis to a $1,200 basis and began to look upon his income as $1,200 rather than $1,000. The extra $200 did little to increase his activity and efficiency, or to promote his intellectual efforts in the business concerned. Then, if a period came when business was dull or poor and he did not get the extra $200, he found fault with the owners of the business and became grouchy and inclined to lose interest in his work. If he did not use the $200 for his living expenses, he probably invested it in a suburban lot, or in some stock that was recommended to him, or in something that he knew little or nothing about. Then, if his investment began to go wrong, he worried about it, and part of the time which he was being paid to devote to the business in which he was engaged would be expended in worrying about his investment in the business in which he was not engaged; whereas, if his money were invested in the business in which he was engaged, his desire to see his investment succeed and bring him further profits would be converted into efforts that would be of some practical benefit, not only to himself, but to the stockholders and his co-workers. In short, little real substantial benefit comes from a profit-sharing plan where the profits are paid out in cash, except perhaps where a man uses the money toward buying a home. There is, therefore, a serious weakness somewhere in such a plan, and the weakness lies in the fact that profit-sharing cannot be really beneficial, either for employer or employee, unless conducted on a partnership basis and coupled with profit-saving.''

Still Experimental.

Reviewing the profit-sharing plans which have been instituted by the trade, one concludes that they are all still in the experimental stage. Several have been completely abandoned after trial, others have been much altered and none has been in existence long enough to be pronounced perfect enough to warrant imitation, though in a number of cases the originators have high hopes of their plans' success. One must remember that the occasion for profit-sharing plans in this trade has been recent and they aroused little, if any, interest until about two years ago.

There are, however, some points of important value to be gathered from these trials by other florists, which, with principles obtained from a general study of the subject, would assist one in formulating such a plan for himself. Some of these have already been tion in accordance with size of salary and length of service and not per capita, and the wisdom of a plan that maintains full management in the head of the business.

Difference of opinion is held in regard to some other phases of profit-sharing. These are the result of varying experiences, due to varying conditions and varying reactions on the part of employees to the profit-sharing system. Some believe that only heads of departments, or individuals upon whom direct responsibility rests, should share in the earnings, while others include everyone on the staff who has been there for a certain length of time. It should be noted that the choice be-lege would not be so successful as the inclusion of the greater number.

Other points on which opinion varies arise also from a difference in the object of profit-sharing plans or from a difference in conditions. One may generalize a good deal on this subject, but the results of such generalization are not of such value as are the descriptions of actual trials by members of our own trade. The statements made in a theoretical way by exponents or opponents of profit-sharing are often found in actual practice to be beside the point or so qualified as to be of slight worth. So this article has been confined to experiences in this trade, as the most practical sort of help to those interested.

Why Not Better Wages?

One is often confronted with the question in studying profit-sharing plans as to whether it is not simpler and equally effective to add to employees' wages what a firm would pay in dividends under such a plan. If you have calculated that, under a system you might put into effect, you would pay a certain employee $250 at the end of the year, why would it not be as well end of the year? Would not an employee do a little better to hold a job that paid somewhat more than ordinary? These are questions advanced by employers who are not in favor of profit-sharing plans, but who are liberal in their treatment and pay of employees. The success of such a policy is marked in some establishments, though not in all. This fact serves to establish the truth of what has already been stated, that much depends upon the personal equation and upon conditions peculiar to different ranges or stores.

No doubt one business runs smoothly without such aid, while others profit markedly by the adoption of a plan whereby employees are stimulated to greater effort, loyalty and interest in the company. Thought should be given, first of all, to what one desires to accomplish and, then, to the best means, from the methods outlined above, of securing the results one wishes. By this method of procedure one is able to progress most rapidly in the selection of a plan that will aid his business in the way it is possible for tailers was especially heavy in wedding work and choice stock was in big demand.

Prices during the week were not quite so high, while several hot days brought the quality down considerably on all indoor-grown flowers.

The wholesale markets had a fine lot of gladiolus spikes coming in daily; America, Panama, Pendleton, Chicago White and Mrs. Francis King had the chief call.

Large shipments of excellent roses came in daily. White Killarney had a great call, while Premier, Russell and Ophelia had their usual good demand. Carnations are still fair in quality and have been much in demand all week; the light shades had the greater demand.

Sweet peas are of poor quality at present and the arrivals have greatly fallen off. The supply in Easter and candidum lilies, callas and jasmines was equal to the demand.

Large receipts of outdoor flowers are coming in daily. Iris, field daisies, delphiniums, poppies, cornflowers, calendulas, white and yellow daisies and snapdragons have a good demand.

The receipts in greens are taken daily and the demand has been heavy in all lines.

Gardeners Meet.

The second outdoor meeting of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners was held at the country estate of Joseph Pulitzer, in Clayton, Mo., June 6. There was a large attendance when President Jensen called the meeting to order.

The reports of the committees which have in charge the affairs of the coming convention of the National Association of Gardeners showed that the work of these committees was nearly completed.

The discussion of insects by Herman Schwarz at the last meeting was continued this time by Professor H. C. Irish, who lectured on "Control of Noxious Insects" in a way to interest greatly the members present.

After the business had all been transacted, the members inspected the grounds of this well kept estate, on which is grown a large quantity of outdoor stock.

President Jensen and Secretary Schaff are much elated over the great amount of interest the members are taking in the meetings and say that all those who attend the convention of the national body here next September will never regret their visit, as the business program and entertainment features will be the best they ever had.

acted was the installation of the new officers, as follows: President, Martin Udi; vice-president, C. E. De Wever; secretary, Joseph Deutschmann, and treasurer, August Hartmann.

Final reports from all of the old committees were heard. All new committees will be appointed at the next meeting by the chair. The coal situation, publicity and Memorial day business then came up for interesting discussion, in which many good points were brought out.

The national growers' association was considered and the business transacted at a recent growers' meeting was discussed; delegates were appointed to attend the meeting of the national association at Cleveland next August, as follows: W. A. Rowe, L. Jules Bourdet, W. J. Pilcher, George Deutschmann and William Winters.

The arrangements for the annual picnic will be taken up at the next meeting, which will take place July 7.

Rowe at his Denny road home Saturday evening, June 5, was decidedly successful. Everyone in the trade had been invited to attend, with their ladies, and the attendance was large. Everyone had a most enjoyable time.

The officers of the Missouri state fair have announced that the premiums offered this year will amount to $511.91, an increase of $70 over last year, but one of the sadly neglected features in the increase is floriculture; only $175 is offered in premiums in this division. Professor H. C. Irish will again be the superintendent of this department.

A. Brix, president of the Brix Floral Co., has been at Union, Mo., for the last ten days on a fishing trip, his favorite pastime. Frank Plotz, his manager, reports a splendid season.

The June meeting of the Florists' Club has been planned for Thursday, June 10, at the Missouri Botanical Garden in the lecture room.

The stork paid a visit to the home of Arthur Beyer June 2 and left a fine baby girl. Mr. Beyer is the buyer for F. C. Weber in the wholesale district and his many friends in the trade congratulate him.

Dan Cupid accomplished his task when the announcement was made last week of the engagement of Frank A. Windler, president of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., to Miss Frances Kaletta, who is a graduate of the Loretto academy. The wedding will take place in the late summer.

June 1 a record was again broken in the issuing of marriage licenses, which totaled 150 on that day, with many more since then. This June promises to be a record-breaker for weddings and the local florists should reap a big harvest this month.

Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Rothenheber, proprietors of the Blossom Shop, report that they recently bought the property at 4110 Manchester avenue, their present location, and that they contemplate many changes during the summer. A large conservatory will be added in the rear of the store and a new front with attractive display windows will be another of the chief improvements.

According to many of the county florists, especially in Kirkwood, much new glass will be added this summer.

The building of new houses and the remodeling of old ones will begin July 1 or sooner. Some have already started new buildings.

The death of Alexander Volkman, president of the Volkman Floral Co., week before last is recorded in this week's obituary column.

Alexander S. Halstead, formerly prominent in trade circles in Belleville and president of the Florists' Club in 1898, is nearly blind and has the sympathy of the trade. Mr. and Mrs. Halstead are visiting their daughter in Detroit during the summer months.

Oscar Ruff, Jules Bourdet and W. A. Rowe, the trustees of the Florists' Club, were out in the county June 7 selecting a place to hold the annual florists' picnic; they will report at this week's club meeting. Since Ramona park is not available this year, a new place had to be found. J. J. B.

rists, as they have a large selection to pick from. Roses are plentiful, but the quality is poor. Sweet peas are also a glut on the market and many are going to waste. Ferns are scarce here. Only ten per cent of the florists had a supply on hand last week. Most sprays are being made up of peony leaves and asparagus.

Various Notes.

T. J. Ludwig's new greenhouses are now housing some fine sweet peas, as well as carnations and calendulas. This firm is doing a small wholesale business along with the regular retail business, as more flowers are being grown than can be used at the present time.

The Acme Floral Co. is now being managed by E. E. Stoughton, who succeeds W. C. Holstein. Mr. Stoughton was formerly secretary and treasurer of this firm. He is being assisted by his wife and reports business fair in bedding plants and novelties.

The Munk Floral Co. is cutting many good roses and has a fine window dis-

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, B. G. Duncan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THERE appear to be plenty of cold-storage giganteums still in dealers' hands.

IT develops that many of the commission boxes are not so nearly empty as they were expected to be at this date.

THE death of Charles F. Crosman, president of Crosman Bros. Co., Rochester, N. Y., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

CALIFORNIA seed growers, who built up a big export business during the war, find the present rates of exchange a practically insurmountable barrier.

IT is reported that the Hotel Pfister, convention headquarters of the A. S. T. A., at Milwaukee, is booked up for the convention dates, June 22 to 24.

AFTER an illness that has kept him from his office for seven weeks, James McHutchison, head of McHutchison & Co., New York, is recovering and expects to be back at his desk soon.

AN injunction has been obtained by D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, preventing Oklahoma state officials from interfering with the sale of the company's seeds in packets marked with a germination of ten per cent.

AT the annual meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association at Des Moines last week the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, C. G. Ouren, Council Bluffs; vice-president, H. W. Talbott, Osceola; secretary, A. M. Eldridge, Shenandoah; treasurer, John T. Hamilton, Cedar Rapids.

AT its annual meeting at Galveston, May 29 and 30, the Texas Seed Dealers' Association changed its name to the Texas Seedsmen's Association and decided to meet at Waco next year. As officers the following were elected: President, Mel. L. Webster, Waco; vice-president, F. E. Furry, Beaumont; secretary and treasurer, O. N. Templeton, Waco.

SEEDSMEN who have tried to buy paper for 1921 books have found "food for thought." Few sources of supply will accept orders from other than old customers and none has until recently been willing to quote prices for future deliveries. Recently, however, prices have become so high there is a feeling in the paper trade that they will not advance much farther.

A RECENT addition to the staff of the Seattle Seed Co., Seattle, Wash., is Alex Galbraith, who has resigned his position as head of the seed division of the Washington state department of agriculture. He entered the state's service in May, 1918, and is thoroughly familiar with the growing districts of the state. He will be succeeded in the department by J. E. Currey, graduate of the Oregon Agricultural College, who was in charge of grain inspection for the federal government during the war.

STARKS GO INTO SEEDS.

A seed department is to be established by Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo., and the company is now preparing a catalogue to be issued. The business in seeds will be retail catalogue trade.

NEW EARLY-FLOWERING or WINTER-BLOOMING

Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March, or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

No. 4. JOVE. Lower petals violet; upper ones light blue.
No. 5. MARS. Cornflower blue.
No. 6. NORTH POLE. Pure snow white.
No. 7. WODEN. Quite black.
No. 8. HELIOS. Pure yellow.
No. 14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
No. 15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
No. 16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
No. 17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
No. 18. MIXED. The above colors and other shades.

500 Seeds, 25c; 1000 Seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50.

For list and price of other Kenilworth Pansy Seed, see my ad of the previous week.

Chas. Frost
Kenilworth, N. J.

Carl Barto, for many years superintendent of the seed department of the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O., has resigned his position with that company to take charge of the new department. Mr. Barto entered the trade when a schoolboy, working Saturdays and during his vacation in the seed department of the Storrs & Harrison Co., under the supervision of W. H. Nichols. He was later the assistant of W. F. Therkildson, whose place he took a few years ago, when Mr. Therkildson went to the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia. Mr. Barto is a nephew of both Robert George, general manager of the Storrs & Harrison Co., and J. E. Barto, who is in charge of that firm's shipping department. He left Painesville June 3 to take up his new duties. T. J. M.

FREE SEEDS, NOT SERVICE.

Though the agricultural appropriation bill passed by Congress for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1920, is approximately $6,000,000 less than the estimates of the Department of Agriculture and $2,185,000 less than the amount provided for the current fiscal year, the House's insistence that $239,000 be expended for free seeds conquered the Senate's opposition and the department's urging that this item be discontinued.

Among the branches of the department's service which are to be curtailed is that of the bureau of crop estimates and of the bureau of market reports. Seed reporting has shrunk already to a corner of a page in the department's weekly publication and rarely includes more than the market quotation on forage crop seeds. The disappearance entirely from the department's weekly bulletin of seed reports will not occasion great regret among the trade. But the inability of the Department of Agriculture to be of the material assistance it might be to seedsmen, while nearly a quarter of a million dollars is spent for so useless a purpose as free seeds for congressmen to send to their uninterested constituents, does not increase the trade's estimation of the perspicacity or public-spiritedness of the gentlemen who sit at Washington.

That Congress, not the Department of Agriculture, is responsible, is clearly indicated by Secretary Meredith's remarks on the subject in the 25-page mimeographed statement he issued ex-

The Giant Show Dahlia

ELSIE BURGESS

Color: Delicate white ground tipped and suffused with a beautiful lavender and light pink

G. E. M. STUMPP
761 Fifth Ave.

New York, April 8, 1920.

Long Island Dahlia Gardens,
Hicksville, Long Island.

Gentlemen: In regard to the Dahlia "Elsie Burgess," those that we grew last Summer at our Southampton Nursery produced many very large blooms; when I say many, I mean all the word implies. The stems grew very strong and long.

We shipped boxes of Dahlias to the New York store, and of the many varieties we shipped, the "Elsie Burgess" was the most satisfactory; they did not bruise and flowers kept an exceptionally long while and our customers seemed to prefer them to other varieties. Whereas they are very showy, they are adaptable for any type of display.

We certainly used them to great advantage and are now advising this variety for the private gardens, and thank you for having sold me a most satisfactory Dahlia.

Yours very truly,
G. E. M. STUMPP.

On account of the scarcity of help we have decided to offer part of our stock of Dahlia ELSIE BURGESS.

We had intended to plant 50,000 for cut flowers but have changed our mind for reason stated above, and offer 20,000 to the trade.

We have always planted more of this variety than all other varieties combined, for the simple reason it has been our best paying cut flower Dahlia.

Cut blooms of this sort are always in great demand and under the most extreme conditions will always produce a paying crop. Read the testimonials. Enough said.

Price 25c each. $2.50 per doz.

Long Island Dahlia Gardens,
Hicksville, New York.

Dear Sirs:

During the several years in which we have handled your cut Dahlias there has been no better variety for all 'round commercial purposes than "Elsie Burgess."

It has color, form, stem, and keeping qualities which make it very valuable to the retail florist.

Very truly yours,
A. M. HENSHAW.

plaining the curtailment of the department's activities:

"Notwithstanding the recommendation of the department that it be eliminated, the item of $239,000 for congressional seed distribution has been included in the appropriation bill. A special letter was sent, February 26, 1920, to the chairman of the Senate committee on agriculture and forestry, strongly urging that the appropriation for free seed distribution, which has been carried in the bill for many years, be discontinued and that the funds thus saved be used for the prosecution of urgently important investigational work on problems of crop production. The Senate committee adopted the department's recommendation and its action was confirmed by the Senate. The conferees, at first, were unable to reach an agreement on the matter and so reported to both Houses of Congress. It was then considered by the House and the House conferees were instructed to insist on the retention of the item in the bill. The question was reconsidered by the conferees, but they were unable to agree and again reported a disagreement. The House again insisted on the inclusion of the appropriation in the bill. At this stage the Senate suggested, as a compromise, the reduction in amount to $75,000.

"The House, however, refused to accept the proposal, and the Senate finally receded from its amendment striking the item from the bill. The congressional seed distribution, therefore, carrying an appropriation of $239,000, will be continued during the next fiscal year."

SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION.

Meets in Florida.

The Southern Seedsmen's Association held its second annual convention at Jacksonville, Fla., June 7 to 9. The value of the morning business sessions was decidedly increased by the interspersed afternoons of outdoor recreation June 7 and 8.

The convention opened with the address of welcome delivered by Hon. John Martin, mayor of Jacksonville, to whose remarks Dick O'Bannon, Claremore, Okla., second vice-president of the association, replied. Then followed the president's address, by E. A. Martin, of Jacksonville, and the secretary-treasurer's report, by Frank S. Love, of Montgomery, Ala., both the address and the report being full of encouragement for the future, based on the achievements of the past year. Monday morning's session closed with an instructive address on "The Advantage of Illustrations in Catalogues" by L. B. Reuter, of New Orleans, La. In the afternoon everybody attending the convention went on a trip to the Atlantic beach, giving the ocean breezes a chance to blow away any business worries and give the members of the association an appetite for the four addresses of the following morning.

Business, Barbecue and Boating.

The session Tuesday morning was full of interest. An address by A. W. Cockrell, Jr., president of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce, was followed by papers on "The Benefits of Our Association," by D. R. Mayo, of Knoxville, Tenn.; on "Forage Crops," by John M. Scott, vice-director of the Florida Experiment Station, and on "Growers' Contracts," by Frank S. Love. This second session ended with the election of members. Tuesday afternoon the Jacksonville hosts had another opportunity to "point with pride" when they and their guests, after a barbecue at Roseland Farms, took a boat trip on the St. Johns river.

Wednesday, June 9, the final day of the convention, was devoted to an executive meeting, committee reports, the election of officers and general talks on the benefits of the association.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

Blatt & Markle, successors to Milton T. Jones, the pioneer seedsman of Utica, express satisfaction with this, their first season's experience.

Charles F. Saul, Syracuse, N. Y., commenting upon the uncertainty of the Dutch bulb market, mentioned that he had received two quotations, the later one lower than the other, from a thoroughly reliable source, which leads him to think that ultimately the bottom will be reached and it will be a flat one. The seed season has been good, though brief, with prices still maintained.

Manager Day, of the F. H. Ebeling seed store, Syracuse, N. Y., believes fully as many gardens are being planted, judging from the big sales of vegetable plants and more than the usual sales of garden seeds, with less flower seeds.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

ST. LOUIS will send a good-sized representation to the forty-fifth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at Chicago June 23 to 25, according to Frank A. Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., St. Louis.

THE spring season has been a decidedly good one, despite the drawbacks of the transportation situation, the labor shortage and, to some extent, the weather, according to S. G. Nelson, president of the Swain Nelson & Sons Co., Chicago.

THERE is little chance of assistance in reporting service such as the A. A. N. discussed with Department of Agriculture officials last year, since the department's activities are being so decidedly curtailed. Report of commercial fruit crops will be dropped and gypsy moth control will be diminished.

PENNSYLVANIA nurserymen have suffered with the rest, according to William A. Peterson, of the Peterson Nursery, Chicago, who recently returned from a trip to Philadelphia in connection with the show of the American Iris Society, of which he is vice-president. One large establishment had lost half of its evergreens, because of the injurious effects of the severe winter. Another was 120 men short of its needed number just in the busy season. The third prevalent evil, inadequate transportation facilities, had also shown itself there as elsewhere.

FIRST IRIS EXHIBITION.

The first annual exhibition of the new American Iris Society was held in the store of John Wanamaker, at Philadelphia, June 1 and 2, in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. Most of the exhibits were by amateurs, but splendid displays were made by the Wyomissing Nurseries, Wyomissing, Pa., and the Movilla Gardens, at Haverford, Pa. Some seedlings of interest were shown by B. H. Farr, Arthur H. Scott and Mrs. M. W. Jacob.

The annual meeting, held June 1, resulted in the election of the following officers: President, John C. Wister; vice-president, William A. Peterson; secretary, R. S. Sturtevant; treasurer, Frank H. Presby.

HACKER JOINS KOHANKIE.

Charles Hacker last week resigned his position with the Storrs & Harrison Co., at Painesville, O., after being in that company's service for over thirty years. He has accepted a position as general manager for Henry Kohankie & Son, at Painesville, widely known as ornamental growers. Mr. Hacker held an important position in the employ of the Storrs & Harrison Co.; he had charge of all the hardy roses, azaleas, rhododendrons, etc.; in other words, of practically everything in cold storage.

Mr. Hacker is a son of the late Otto Hacker, who also worked for the Storrs & Harrison Co. for thirty years, as botanist and propagator. He was the originator of the well known begonia which bears his name, Otto Hacker, which was first sent out by the Storrs & Harrison Co. Although it was new a score of years ago, it still holds a place in the front rank of large-flowering begonias and is always in demand.

FRUIT GROWING IN FRANCE.

[In the first section of Major Lloyd C. Stark's account of "French Orchards and Nurseries After the War," which appeared in last week's issue of The Review, he described the conditions he saw in Burgundy and in the northern part of France, where the cider and apple industry is of considerable importance, touching also upon pear growing. This week he proceeds farther towards the battle front.]

In many sections of France fruit trees are used to line all the highways. This is a practice that should be, and some day will be, carried on in our country. Think of the millions of acres now entirely idle that could be producing fruit here in America if we planted hardy varieties of fruit trees along all the state and county roads, as well as the national highways. Many claim that it cannot be done satisfactorily in this country, but there is absolutely no argument there. We have better varieties and just as good soil and climatic conditions.

Up in the country to the north of Verdun, in the edge of the Ardennes mountains, as we pushed the German armies back through the Argonne and Woevre forests we saw many fine apple orchards that had been uprooted and wantonly destroyed by the enemy. It will take a long time to bring these orchards back again and a great many of the fruit-tree stocks that formerly came to America must now be used to replant the destroyed orchards of France and Belgium.

In visiting the nurseries throughout France where they grow the apple, pear and cherry seedlings, we found a pitiful state of affairs. Many of the men had been killed in the war and the nurseries had been kept going by the older men and women left behind. It will take several years before they are back to their former standard. In the meantime the great shortage of the seedling crop is being felt not only in Europe but in America as well.

For instance, apple seedlings that used to cost us $5 or $6 are now worth this spring? Every plant bright and green—not a dead one. A strong contrast to the northern Buxus bordered garden, now either dead or sadly winter injured, brown and dejected looking.

Mr. Siebrecht, the veteran plantsman, on seeing the garden the other day shown in accompanying illustration, exclaimed with his characteristic enthusiasm: "Magnificent! There is a fortune in it for the nurserymen."

We offer you well rooted dormant summer frame cuttings ready to set out direct into the nursery without further expense to you at $50 and $60, and we can get only a few at any price. Some of the other sorts are even higher. In other words, in the world today there is probably less than one-fifth the normal supply of stocks for the purpose of producing fruit trees. It will take a good many years to get the production back to normal, especially in France, where out of about 10,000,000 able-bodied men they have lost about 2,000,000 killed and as many or more crippled for life. Of course a lot of others have been ill and will not get back to work in normal shape for years; some of them never. Then, in addition, in many sections they have not recovered from their suffering and malnutrition during the war.

The seeds used to produce American-grown fruit-tree seedlings nearly all come from France and, as there has been no seed to amount to anything coming from France, the American crop has been reduced to a small proportion of the former output. This terrific scarcity of fruit-tree stocks, coupled with the fact that nearly all nurserymen turned their acreage into producing cereals during the war, has greatly reduced the supply of fruit trees in this country and this situation is even worse in other countries. In three or four years it is to be hoped we shall be back to normal in America, but it will take them much longer than this in France.

The French people love their fruit trees and orchards almost as their children and that is why there was much indignation and horror when the enemy deliberately destroyed all the fruit trees as they retreated. The French government post office issues calendars each year. On these calendars they have two or three pictures. On last year's set one of the pictures showed a French orchard with all the trees cut and fallen on the ground, with the bare stumps glistening in the sunlight; with it was a statement showing the French hatred for an enemy who kills harmless, helpless fruit trees. I saw this calendar displayed prominently in nearly all the homes and shops throughout France. I mention this merely to show how close the heart of the Frenchman is tied up in his fruit trees.

America's Growing Interest.

Since the war America has realized the great value of her orchards and the great necessity of maintaining them. She knows the tremendous food values and health-giving qualities of her fruit products. The war accentuated more than ever before in the minds of the people in general not only the value but the absolute necessity of plenty of good ripe or well canned fruit for the proper development of children and the maintenance of health.

The tremendously increased interest in orchard planting and fruit growing in general is the result. The central west, especially, is realizing the enormous profits to be made from well cared for orchards of the best modern varieties of fruit, and more and more of the far-seeing orchardists are planting high quality varieties and varieties resistant to disease and eliminating such weakling trees as Ben Davis. In one of our leading central western states the state horticultural authorities have reported that in the last ten years there has been a loss of fifty per cent in bearing orchards.

French Emphasis on Quality.

There is one thing that stands out when one investigates the French fruit industry and that is that the Frenchman appreciates good quality in fruits. In America our buyers in the past have paid too much attention to appearance and too little to what was under the skin. In France the popular varieties are all high quality varieties. They will not grow or use poor quality ap-

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases	$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases	1.00 each
Small size cases	.50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

ples, such as the Ben Davis, and the popular peaches are the high quality peaches and the popular pears the high quality sorts.

In America we are learning and the public is rapidly coming to appreciate the difference in quality of the various varieties of fruits. This is especially true in the larger cities and is getting more and more true in the smaller towns, as well as among our farm population.

We can learn much from the French when it comes to producing large quantities of fruits on small acreage, back yard gardens, etc., but from a commercial standpoint their orchards are not so well systematized and cannot compare with our American orchards. Also I feel sure that our varieties are fifty years ahead of the French varieties. There seems not to be in France so great a desire for improvement as is apparent among American nurserymen and orchardists.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

During the last few weeks we have jumped from winter weather to summer. The bright, warm days of last week have inspired people to finish planting their flower beds, veranda boxes and gardens. The demand for bedding plants, vegetable plants, etc., has been so great that some of the florists are about cleaned out. Now that the Memorial day rush has cleaned out some of the greenhouse benches, some of the local houses are being prepared for the fall trade and chrysanthemums are being planted.

Most of the members of the local trade report that this was the best Memorial day on record. Some were completely cleaned out. Large numbers of wreaths, cemetery bouquets and potted plants were disposed of. Carnations, roses, snapdragons and sweet peas were plentiful and went well. On account of the late spring, no peonies were in bloom at the local greenhouses; consequently indoor flowers were used almost entirely. People did not complain about the prices of cut flowers. Carnations brought $1.50 and $2 per dozen and the other cut flowers were also reasonable in price. In many cases geraniums sold at $4 per dozen up, although some sold them for $3.50 per dozen. Some people thought that they should not pay any more for geraniums than they did several years ago. Although a number of graves were completely covered, some people only bought made-up pots containing geraniums, etc., for the graves, thus buying fewer plants on account of the higher prices, but, as more people bought, even more plants were disposed of than usual.

Aside from the bedding plant sales, business now would be quiet if it were not for a number of weddings, which keep cut flowers moving. Some orders for wedding decorations are also booked for the near future.

Various Notes.

James Beach reports that his Memorial day sales exceeded those of last year. He was completely cleaned out of everything. His carnations are plentiful now, but were short for the holiday trade.

Robert Hawkins designed a number of large pieces for the Rickard funeral. His Memorial day business passed all expectations.

John Reck & Son are still busy filling orders for bedding plants. Memorial day sales were excellent.

James Horan & Son say that on account of the late spring all of the indoor flowers were sold for Memorial day. There were no snowballs or peonies in bloom outdoors, as in former years. Sweet peas, snapdragons, carnations and roses were plentiful and cut flower prices were lower than at Easter time.

The Arcade Flower Shop reports that it furnished flowers for several weddings last week. I. L. B.

MARION, O.

F. E. Blake had a fine business Memorial day and had some fine blooms for this occasion.

Wilson & Sons were completely sold out by noon Memorial day.

The Boy Scouts gathered flowers for the soldiers' graves Memorial day and the cemetery here was a mass of flowers. J. W. T.

Clinton, S. C.—Mrs. N. D. Young is starting in business.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

CAPACITY OF 40-H. P. BOILER.

My present boiler, 40-horsepower, heats two houses to carnation temperature and two to lettuce temperature. The four houses are each 26x100 feet and are attached. Each has two lines of 2-inch pipe and 6 lines of 1¼-inch pipe. Will the same boiler carry another house, 26x100 feet, heated to lettuce temperature? The mercury seldom goes below zero here. The new house would have two flows of 2-inch pipe and two coils each of three lines of 1¼-inch pipe.

What horsepower of boiler would be required to heat my present range of houses, as described, and two additional houses, each 26x100 feet, piped as are the present houses?

R. E. M.—Okla.

When a boiler and the piping are properly installed and the chimney is of suitable size and height, it is customary to reckon that it is possible to heat 100 square feet of steam radiation for each horsepower of the boiler, but for boilers of less than 100 horsepower it is safer to make a reduction of at least twenty-five per cent from this ratio. On this basis the 40-horsepower boiler would take care of 3,000 square feet of radiation, including the mains.

Without knowing just how the coils and connecting pipes are arranged, it could be estimated that two 2-inch flow pipes and six 1¼-inch returns in a house 26x100 feet would supply 375 to 400 square feet of radiation. If the houses are well built and the glazing is tight, this should be ample for maintaining a temperature for carnations, unless there is glass in the exposed walls.

From the above it might be seen that it should be possible to heat not only five or six 26x100-foot houses for carnations and lettuce, but that, under favorable conditions, seven or even eight houses of this size might be heated by means of a 40-horsepower boiler in a climate where the mercury occasionally drops to 10 or 15 degrees below zero.

I should think it safe to add two more houses, making six in all, but do not feel like advising a larger number without knowing more regarding the construction and arrangement of the houses. One should be able to judge fairly accurately of the reserve power in the boiler.

HEAT FOR PIT.

I intend to make a sunken pit five feet deep in which to grow rooted shrubbery, rose, carnation and geranium cuttings. I plan to erect a shed over a basement at the north side, to rise twelve feet above the level of the sashes on the pit. In the center of this

Mr. Frank Carek, of Lorain, Ohio, writes:

"In regard to your patent LEAK-PROOF gutter, we can say it is there with the goods. It is all that we want; it does our work with great satisfaction and is a good job. We put it all through the annex and it is tight and most satisfactory."

We are the patentees and sole manufacturers of this LEAK-PROOF gutter which is giving so much satisfaction.

GREENHOUSE MATERIAL GREENHOUSE HARDWARE

pit, unless bottom heat is required. In that case, I shall have to raise them.

Do you think that my plan will be successful? Would a boiler heat such a place from evening until morning with no attention, using soft coal? Is bottom heat necessary for successful growing of lettuce, rose and shrubbery cuttings? Would such a place, if arranged so as to be ventilated, be too damp for lettuce? Where can I get a book on growing garden plants under glass?

W. N. L.—O.

The general plan suggested should give good results.

Lettuce can be grown to good advantage without bottom heat, but for the rooting of carnation, rose and other cuttings it is desirable. With proper ventilation, lettuce can be grown in a pit such as the one described.

"Greenhouse Management," by L. R. Taft, describes in detail the growing of vegetable and flowering plants under glass and gives directions for rooting cuttings of various kinds.

For use with soft coal, especially if to be left for eight or ten hours at night, a greenhouse boiler should have a large fire pot and one should be selected with a rating about twenty-five per cent greater than the amount of radiation needed. This is because the rating usually given is based upon the capacity of the boiler with hard coal. Not only is the weight of hard coal per cubic foot more than that of soft coal, but it will generally furnish twenty-five or thirty per cent more heating units.

Ionia, Mich.—M. Wetterling has sold 20,000 pansy plants in the last three weeks. Mr. Wetterling has been unusually successful with the growing of these flowers. He grows them outdoors entirely.

The Market.

Memorial day business was good, perhaps the best in years, in spite of the lack of outdoor stock and the high prices. The volume of trade was perhaps not so large as in some previous years, but the demand was good at good prices. Carnations sold for $2.50 to $3 per dozen. Roses were almost too high. Sweet peas were scarce, but brought about the same prices as during the last month. Shipping business was good and nearly everything was cleaned up. Cooler weather the latter part of the week has kept the market stiff.

Various Notes.

George Zimmer has leased the Hortop range and has it planted principally to roses.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports a splendid Memorial day trade.

Fred Maler has just completed a new orchid house. It is equipped with all the latest devices necessary for orchid culture. He has about 1,500 standard and new varieties. Last week one plant had at one time thirty-six blooms. This firm also has a new White truck.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hill spent the holiday above Deckers, Colo., on the South Platte.

The Bright Spot Greenhouses had a good crop of sweet peas for Memorial day.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Memorial day business was good, but there were not as large quantities of outdoor stock sold as in former years. Because of the backward season, snowballs, irises, peonies, lemon lilies, etc., were not on the market in time for the holiday. Large quantities of magnolia and galax wreaths were sold for cemetery purposes.

Outdoor valley is excellent and large quantities are arriving on the market. Three or four days of intensely hot weather have caused a large amount of the valley stock to turn brown. Carnations are plentiful; consequently the price has dropped. Roses of all kinds are of fine quality. Sweet peas are plentiful and the quality is good. It is difficult to get cattleyas at present.

Greens are scarce and the situation is serious. Hardy ferns, smilax and asparagus are extremely scarce and expensive. Shipments of California chestnut, hemlock and spruce have begun to arrive, but are expensive to use in large quantities. Some of the florists are cutting their ferns to use for greens.

Various Notes.

Salter Bros. had a fine display of dogwood in their window last week.

George T. Boucher exhibited an excellent collection of Darwin tulips recently.

Horace J. Head sailed for England May 29 to visit his family. He has been separated from them for about nine years, as it was impossible to visit his home during the war.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Armbrust welcomed a small daughter, Janet Elizabeth, into their home May 28.

H. E. Wilson's force at the greenhouses is kept busy filling urns and window boxes. This firm had a fine display of wreaths for Memorial day.

C. W. Curtis has begun cutting his summer crop of orchids and they are unusual ones, having eight or nine blooms on one plant.

Harry Merritt's crop of Delight carnations is still of good quality.

Collatos Bros. are making a specialty of summer baskets filled with peas.

The Market.

All members of the trade were much pleased with Memorial day business. In most cases, increases of seventy-five to 100 per cent were reported over last year's business. The peony situation was not favorable, but since Memorial day the supply has increased until it exceeds the demand by far. The unfavorable weather which prevailed during the greater part of the week preceding the holiday did not help things.

The first gladioli were seen on the market last week. Carnations and roses were in abundance. Valley was scarce and the demand was larger than it has been for some time. Almost all varieties of stock cleaned up well over Memorial day, with good returns. Out-of-town business was also satisfactory. The florists now have their hands full with June weddings and commencement exercises.

Club Meeting.

The Washington Florists' Club held its monthly meeting June 1 at Edward Schmidt's hall. Regular business was transacted and it was voted to have the summer outing at Great Falls. William F. Gude was again called on to act as spokesman in presenting a fine cut glass set to Lloyd Jenkins, former president of the club. Mr. Gude especially emphasized the faithfulness shown by Mr. Jenkins during his administration. The gift was a surprise to Mr. Jenkins, who gratefully accepted it.

Various Notes.

Employees of the local florists and growers have organized a union. Several attempts have been made to do this, but this is the first one which has met with success. This movement was started by an employer and few are opposed to it. The aim of this organization is to have contentment and satisfaction among the employers and employees at all times and at the same time give everyone a fair deal. From all indications, this will be taken up by out-of-town florists, as many inquiries have been made in regard to the movement. Since the organization was first formed its membership has increased 100 per cent and it already has its charter from the American Federation of Labor.

The recent death of George H. Cooke, former president of the Washington Florists' Club, is recorded in this week's obituary column. G. V. S.

This man can cut from four to five acres of grass per day

This man takes care of the lawn and grounds on the estate of Thomas A. Edison, West Orange, N. J. Where he formerly required three or four helpers he now does the work alone and does it easily. For keeping the lawn in fine shape—rolled smooth and grass nicely cut—was the hard part of the job. It kept two or three men busy most of the time. But the Ideal Power Lawn Mower solved the problem just as it has for hundreds of others who have large lawns to care for.

Advantages of the Ideal

The Ideal is a power mower and roller in one and the sod is rolled every time the grass is cut. This keeps it smooth, firm and free from bumps. The Ideal is scientifically designed to keep lawns in fine condition. The weight is just right for steady year around work. The Mower has a thirty-inch cut and one man can easily mow four or five acres of grass per day at an operating expense of about fifty cents for fuel and oil.

Cuts Close to Walks, Trees or Shrubbery

Machine turns easily and will cut close up to walks, trees, flower beds and shrubbery. When running over walks, driveways, pavements, etc., the operator simply lifts the cutting mower from the ground by means of a conveniently placed lever. This feature is also important in the early spring when it is desired to use the machine for rolling only. Simply lift up the cutting mower, add more weight if required, and you have the most convenient power roller imaginable. The success of the Ideal is due to its sturdy and powerful, yet simple, construction. No clutches or complicated parts to wear and get out of order. The Motor is built in our own shop and designed especially for the work.

Owners of large estates, public parks, golf clubs, country clubs, cemeteries, etc., are all using the Ideal Tractor Lawn Mower with great success.

Special Cutting Mower for Putting Greens

For work on golf courses we furnish, at slight additional cost, a special set of cutting blades for use on the putting greens. In less than five minutes the regular 30" blade can be substituted for cutting the fairway. When desired, we also furnish, as an extra, a riding trailer which fastens to the frame and permits the operator to ride and at the same time have the same easy control as when walking.

You can secure the Ideal through your dealer direct or from our factory. Write today for catalogue and further details.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

Business for Memorial day was the best the trade has ever experienced for that holiday. The stores were crowded all day Saturday, May 29, and plants, cut flowers and wreaths were in great demand. Stock was good and there was a fine assortment to choose from, including peonies, roses, carnations, snapdragons, lilies, mignonette, sweet peas, calendulas, yellow and white daisies and gladioli of the bridesmaid type. Plants were a good selling line, being used chiefly for the cemetery, the best sellers being geraniums, lobelias, marguerites, pansies and sweet alyssum.

Various Notes.

William Japp, of Lester Park, says that his business for Memorial day was bigger than ever.

J. J. Le Borious says that business was extra good. He had a large assortment of plants, which found a ready sale; also a good cut of carnations.

The Quality Flower Shop reports that business for Memorial day was exceedingly satisfactory.

The Duluth Floral Co. reports a large business both in cut flowers and plants. Magnolia wreaths, clustered with oak leaves, cycas and flowers, found a ready sale.

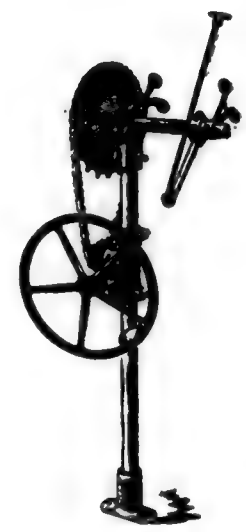
TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Business keeps up well, with a fair supply of flowers. There have been a number of funerals, with the consequent demand for design work.

June is the month of weddings and Toronto has had its share. Many of these have been church weddings and florists have been doing considerable decorative work in addition to supplying bouquets. Another thing which has contributed to the demand for flowers is the graduation exercises of the various hospitals and universities. The convocation at Toronto University was a large affair and one florist had an order for fifty-eight pieces, in addition to other orders for the same affair.

Fortunately, there have been plenty of flowers. Sweet peas do not appear to be of the same fine quality that we have been receiving, but other flowers are arriving to take their place. White lilac is being used with good effect in the preparation of designs.



Many of the florists have again signified their intention of closing one afternoon a week. The downtown florists will close Saturday afternoons and the uptown florists Wednesday afternoons. This will continue until the first part or the middle of September.

Emporium, Pa—R. E. Tulis is erecting a greenhouse and will start in business soon.

North Ridgeville, O.—M. B. Robinson is growing perennials, with vegetable plants as a side line for spring.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Season.

With Memorial day past, the rush of the season is now over until fall, but the stores and growers are preparing for the annual renovations, replantings and other plans for the new season. As a whole this last season has been a satisfactory one. There has been a good supply of about everything staple, while some novelties have had a good run. The demand has been active and prices have ruled a trifle in advance of former years. Several of the growers whose houses have been shut off for one or two years have decided to reopen and several have signified an intention of increasing their glass before fall.

In New Quarters.

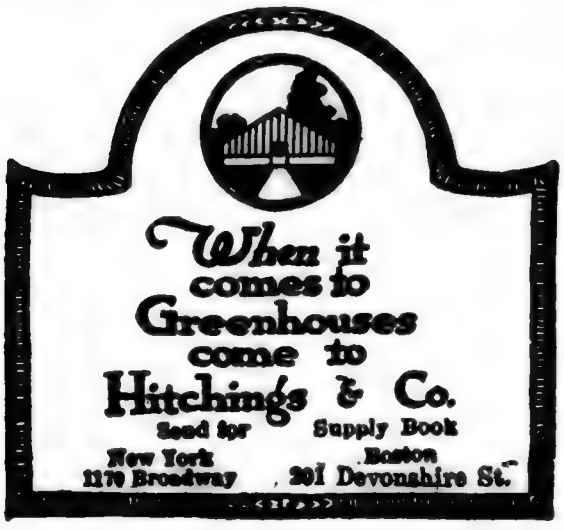
Joseph E. Koppelman removed last week from 47 Eddy street, where he has conducted a wholesale business in cut flowers and florists' supplies for the last five or six years, to considerably larger quarters in the business block which he purchased some months ago, in Custom House street. The entrance to his salesrooms is at 26 Custom House street; the salesrooms are on the second floor, where he has nearly double the space of the old store, with commodious offices, telephone booths and one of the finest series of iceboxes to be found in New England, with capacity for more than 100,000 cut flowers, while large baths are available for freshening ferns, etc. On the third floor has been fitted up an extensive wire factory, with machinery for the production of everything desired in wire frames and designs. A passenger elevator at the front and a freight elevator at the rear of the building afford ample communication.

Various Notes.

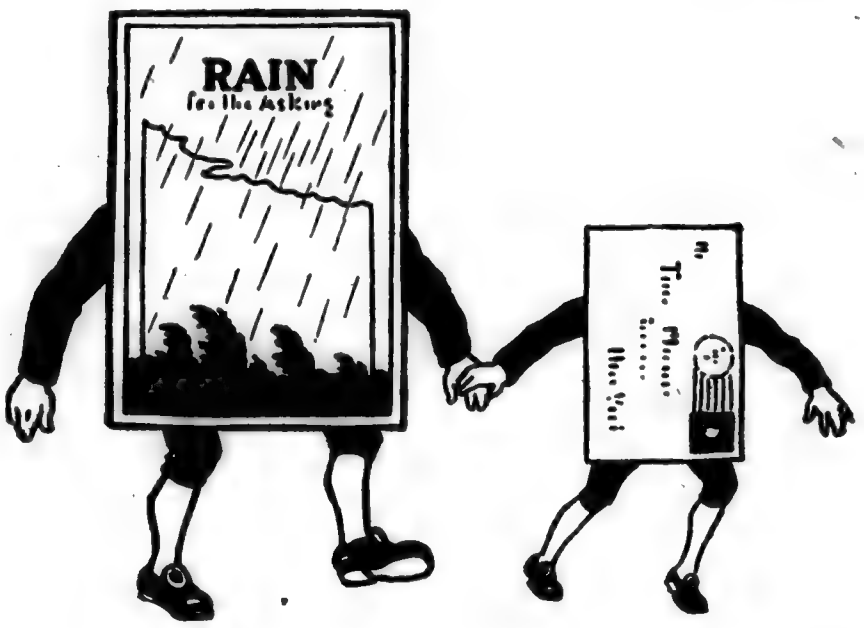
Charles Smith, of the Eastern Wreath Mfg. Co., was a business visitor in Boston and vicinity last week.

William Doel, of Pascoag, was in this city last week purchasing supplies.

James Hacking, of Central Falls, who has been on the sick list for several weeks, is convalescing.



Chipman's Greenhouse, Woonsocket, is handling a large number of plants for bedding purposes.



Vincent McGinley has started in business for himself as a landscape gardener and nurseryman in the rear of 39 Franklin street.

Willis S. Pino reports having this spring the largest business in his experience.

A Post Card Brings RAIN

Just a simple one cent post card will bring our big new book, "Rain, for The Asking."

Surely you, as a progressive, up-to-date florist, should know first hand what your brother florists, large and small, are doing to cut down costs and build up profits.

Well, man, this book tells you how Skinner System rain is doing just that thing for hundreds of florists.

The text tells you and the many photographs show you. And if that doesn't convince you, you can write to the growers who are using it!

With the Skinner System, of course, you don't even need to write a post card when you need rain. A mere turn of a valve, and you start a gentle, soaking shower any time, anywhere you want it.

Think what asters, and "glads," and dahlias, and daisies, and carnation plants you could grow, with rain any time you want it.

Think — and then act!

A post card brings "Rain."

Black Glazing Cement

A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary —simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load same—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

Not Affected by Extreme Heat or Cold

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

FREE OFFER

To facilitate the application of our product we furnish the following apparatus free of cost:

WITH EACH BARREL
2 Bulbers
1 Gun for filling bulbers

WITH EACH HALF-BARREL
1 Bulber
1 Gun for filling bulber

Lower Cost than White Putty

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Black Glazing Cement not only lasts years longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost.

One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 lineal feet of sash.

Net Prices Less Freight to Your Town

Barrels (about 55 gallons) per gallon	Half-Barrels (about 30 gallons) per gallon	10-Gallon Kits per gallon
$1.25	$1.30	$1.40

While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Black Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and again and we can prove it.

ANNOUNCES

IN AMERICA

My customers of former years and all other growers of Cyclamens will please take notice that, owing to the disturbed condition of communication and of shipping direct

I HAVE ARRANGED

with the

AMERICAN BULB CO.,
172 N. Wabash Ave., Chicago, to handle my entire crop of Cyclamen seeds this season.

My seed this season will consist of:
Three varieties of Salmon.
Three varieties of Red.
Pink.
Pink with Red Eye.
White.
White with Red Eye.
Rococco in variety.

Mr. Koehler, of the American Bulb Co., has visited my place this spring and has told me he found it the best he has seen in Germany, with the finest varieties and the stock in best condition.

STURDY CYCLAMEN
Do you want strong, stocky Cyclamen plants, out of the ordinary quality, not spindly plants, grown in too high temperature, but sturdy plants, with stamina in them; ready to grow into great big specimen plants, that should carry 20 or 30 or more giant blooms at a time, about Thanksgiving and Christmas.

We have them. You want them. What does it matter if you pay us a few cents more per plant, if you can get a dollar or so more per plant when you sell them next winter. You pay us 35c for a 3-in. pot plant in June and sell the same plant in December for $5.00 and up.

We ship in paper pots and send cultural directions. Salmon King, Salmon Queen, Crimson St. George, Grandiflora Alba, blood red and other varieties, 2¼-in. pot plants, $15.00 per 100, $135.00 per 1000; 3-in. pot plants, $35.00 per 100, $315.00 per 1000. Cash or satisfactory references.
Howe-Underhill Co., Pennington, N. J.

A CHOICE STRAIN OF
Cyclamen seed, will create the greatest pleasure for the grower, when they make that beautiful show of large well colored, long heavy stemmed flowers, standing erect above such silvery lined foliage as our choice strain will produce and is the only way to avoid disappointments, when they come to bloom.

We have that strain of which I am sure there is no better, and can not be surpassed, at least that is the conviction of our many customers.

Scarcity of such extra good seed, will put price much higher the coming season, for early sowing, purchase now so to have it on hand.

The following colors are now available: Christmas Red, Defiance, dark blood and bright red, dark and light salmon, $2.00 per 100, $18.00 per 1000. Our cultural directions go with all orders, in them you will find a life-time experience. Cash please.

The Garland Company,

Answering yours, regarding PERMANITE, we are pleased to state we have been using this material for five years. It has pleased us better than any other glazing material.

We stock it and sell other florists because our own greenhouse foreman was so well satisfied with it that he kept urging us all the time to put it in stock.

We expect to erect three houses and will use only this material.

Yours very truly,

ROOT-BOUND BEGONIAS.

I am sending some specimens of begonia leaves which seem to have been attacked by blight. I have some large specimen plants of Ne Plus Ultra varieties which bloomed all winter and were beautiful. I have treated them the same as the other varieties and have over twenty varieties, including some fine Rex, which are doing well and show no sign of blight. I have other specimens of fibrous-rooted begonias. I am not certain what culture to give this plant or whether it would be best to destroy it. Would it be better to root fresh stock plants after the blooming each season? It is a valuable winter bloomer and I should be sorry to discard it altogether. M. J. F.—Ill.

Without being able to see this plant at close hand, I am of the opinion that it has become root-bound and suffers from scald by overwatering. I should suggest that you repot the plant, using a fresh, live soil, and after potting give it a different location and be careful not to set it on sour sand or coal ashes. As you state that the young plants are doing well and show no sign of the trouble, it may be a good plan for you to work up a fresh stock of young plants and discard the older ones. Some of the finest fibrous-rooted begonias that I have ever seen were grown along from cuttings without a check in about six months. M. P.

DOUBLE WHITE DAFFODIL.

Please tell me the name of the flower which I am sending you. I wish to order some and know it only as double narcissus. A. F. S.—N. C.

This flower's name is Narcissus albus plenus odoratus; it is commonly called the double, white, gardenia-scented daffodil. Be sure to plant bulbs of this variety in deep loam which is inclined to be moist; the flower stalks will come blind in light soil which dries out quickly. C. W.

CREOSOTE ON ROOFS.

Do the glazing compounds now on the market contain creosote or any other substance which would make the rain draining from a house so glazed injurious for irrigation purposes?

R. E. M.—Okla.

I am not familiar with the analysis of the glazing compounds, but, except that creosote serves as a wood preservative, I should not consider it a desirable constituent of a material for glazing. At the best, and especially if the roofs were properly painted after having been glazed, I should not expect that the amount of creosote which the glazing could possibly contain would be sufficient to have any injurious effect if the rain draining from the roof is used for irrigation purposes. While I have no reason for believing that any injury might be done to the plants grown in houses glazed with a compound containing creosote, I should consider that danger much greater than that from roof water used for irrigation.

BEGONIA VERNON OR ERFORDII.

Please tell me the name of the begonia of which I am sending you a small plant. I have sold a good many of this kind and need to find some source of supply, but I have not yet been able to find anyone who could identify this begonia. A. E. M.—Tex.

In foliage the begonia looks like a young Vernon or Erfordii, but it is impossible to be certain of the identity from so small a specimen without flowers. C. W.

Morrison, Ill.—One June wedding in which this town has been interested is that of Miss Isabel Johnston Keller, of Youngstown, O., and Norris G. Hurd, son of Mrs. Ella Hurd, who is the proprietor of the Morrison Floral Art Shop. Mr. Hurd has an excellent position with the Goodyear Rubber Co., Akron, O., and is also a proficient musician. Immediately after the wedding, June 2, the young couple went on an extended automobile trip, going on their return to their new home in the Roller apartment building in Youngstown, O.

"The bird of time has but a little way to flutter—and the bird is on the wing."

Of course it's only June now, and you couldn't get an AGMCO house erected this month for love or money, but—'ll be wanting it with a vengeance next Fall—you'll be thirsting for it as a man in the desert thirsts for the cool ters of the oasis.

So you won't trust to luck and take a chance on getting it at the eleventh hour. You'll play wise like you do in ying stock—you'll cast a weather eye on the future and begin laying your plans for it right now.

The first step is to get an estimate on your requirements from the nearest AGMCO sales office. Let a salesman ng it to you. He'll bring so many other things with him suggestions, counsel, expert advice—the real AGMCO service.

And this service, though it costs you nothing, will save you real money in original cost, after cost and production.

But the salesman will explain all this. WHEN SHALL HE CALL?

Like everything else pertaining to greenhouses, we have given the subject of greenhouse paint considerable study.

The conditions met with in a greenhouse are quite different than in ordinary structures; the woodwork is different and there is a great deal of moisture and heat.

We discovered, years ago, a paint which certainly is a wonder as a preservative and a thoroughly white covering.

You make no mistake in using it, as it is no experiment, but has stood the test of time.

Greenhouse Builders

How The Dale Estate, The Largest Greenhouse Concern In Canada, Came To Build L. & B. Houses

Eight years ago, when taking a trip through the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec, to get some idea of the possibilities of greenhouse building, stopped off at Brampton, 12 miles from Toronto, to see the Dale Estate.

All their houses were then ridge and furrow of pipe frame construction.

It was my privilege to meet Mr. Duggan, the Manager. He wasn't slow in letting us know that he felt, although our houses were undoubtedly good, they were altogether TOO GOOD for the florists' business.

In short, cost too much.

Furthermore, he said that for the price of one of our houses, he could cover twice the ground.

All of which was exactly so.

Last Fall I dropped off at Brampton again—and what did I find but 3 huge Iron Framers of Lord & Burnham construction! Likewise a new $75,000 heating plant, with a chimney 170 feet high, and 5 feet in diameter at the top.

Twenty years ago, when Mr. Duggan took charge of the Dale Estate Greenhouses, there were but 150,000 sq. ft. of glass. To-day, there is a million and a half, or 28 acres completely glass covered.

In addition to the roses, carnations, orchids and general flowers grown, they do a large jobbing trade in Florists' supplies, carrying for the trade everything necessary to a retail store.

In the eight years since that first visit, it seems Mr. Duggan has gradually been coming to the conclusion that it's not so much what a house costs, that counts, AS WHAT IT KEEPS ON COSTING.

When the increased cost of materials began to make the repair costs go way up in G, he sharpened his lead pencil, and did some figuring.

Then he went over to have a talk with Dunlop about his houses, three of which are of L. & B. construction.

After going over every detail of the construction, he turned to Mr. Dunlop, and asked:

"What do you charge off each year for depreciation?" "Don't charge anything off," replied Mr. Dunlop. "So far, all they have cost me in 8 years for actual repairs, is a few lights of glass."

After which, Mr. Duggan ordered two of our big separate iron frame houses.

Then he ordered another.

Is a Bale of Moss
A Bale of Moss?

MANY of us are prone to consider a bale of moss a bale of moss—but, is it?

How large should a bale of moss be?

Some supply houses think 44x14x14 is the proper size of a bale of moss. We believe that it should measure 48x14x16. This seemingly slight difference means a 20% difference in the quantity of moss in the bale.

It is hard to detect the difference in the bale with the naked eye, which makes the "now you see it, now you don't" bale easier to sell. But shrewd florists will measure the bales before they buy.

A lower price means nothing if the quantity, too, is reduced.

We have our own swamps and harvest our own moss—we dry it, prepare it and bale it. That's why "Rando Brand" moss is the best moss on the market. Why we can give such a large bale at the price we charge.

When you are again in the market for moss—ask yourself

Is a Bale of Moss a Bale of Moss?

FREESIA PURITY—Improved

The Freesia Bulbs the American Bulb Co. offers were raised by the finest grower in California. Florists who have grown our Freesia Bulbs have received large returns when they were shipped to the wholesale flower markets. In every case we have received a duplicate order, which was increased over the original order. Florists who have purchased Bulbs from us agree that we handle the finest quality of well matured, ripened bulbs.

We believe we are the largest handlers of high-grade PURITY FREESIA bulbs in America. Florists who have not given us a trial will profit by sending us their first order. We know you will re-order from us every season, after enjoying your first successful season with our high-quality bulbs. By early planting they can easily be brought in bloom at Christmas and a continuous blooming season can be maintained by successive plantings. For growing on the side of Carnations or to follow Chrysanthemums, we recommend smaller bulbs. To get good results they should be tied up like Carnations. Do not overlook this fact, as it is important.

Bulbs procurable in the following sizes:

	Per 1000		Per 1000
Up to ½-inch	$ 6.00	Mammoth Bulbs, ⅝ to ¾-inch	$15.00
½ to ⅝-inch	11.50	Large Jumbo Bulbs, ¾-inch and up.	20.00

602 Davis St., Evanston, Ill.

American Bulb Co., Chicago, Ill. Feb. 10, 1920

Dear Sirs:

The Freesia Purity you sold me this year were as good as ever. I have found that I can always rely on your Freesia Bulbs. The large ones for early forcing were in for the Holidays as usual.

The Rainbow Freesias are fine, growing tall, and have very stiff stems. The colors are very fine and sell readily.

Yours Truly,
GEORGE C. WEILAND.

RAINBOW FREESIA

We can now supply this long waited for, beautifully colored RAINBOW Freesia. They are carefully selected and may be had in the best colors. The better floral shops throughout the country are using these very extensively. $35.00 per 1000.

SUNSET COLLECTION

The Sunset Collection of Freesias is long-stemmed, a fine keeper and is much more easily grown than the ordinary type of Freesia. $45.00 per 1000.

WIESBADEN-AUKAMM

Wiesbaden, den 25. April 1920

TO MY CUSTOMERS IN AMERICA:

Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen Seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen Seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.

I have paid strict attention to my Salmon and Red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed will be offered by the American Bulb Company, who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Company. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world.

Yours very truly,
FERD. FISCHER

In the preceding issues, we have tried to bring home to you the desirability of buying only MADE-IN-AMERICA BASKETS.

FROM THE RETAIL-SELLING VIEWPOINT, there is another feature entitled to especial emphasis—and that is FINISH and FREQUENT CHANGE OF STYLE.

Practically all imported baskets are similarly finished, in cheap-looking stained colors that scar at the slightest handling, and are, at best, unattractive. Besides, the styles seldom change from year to year. We employ COLOR EXPERTS, who devote their time to evolving NEW COLOR HARMONIES for all the newest varieties of popular flowers. So that EACH SEASON, in addition to entirely new styles, there are bright new colors to freshen up your stock and store.

OUR COLOR FINISHES HAVE SET THE STANDARD for all other domestic manufacturers. They excel the imported by a still greater margin.

SAVE THE MUMS FROM THE MIDGE

Precautionary measures and constant care will save growers of chrysanthemums from the tremendous losses they have suffered from the midge in the last two seasons. Further suggestions in this article will aid growers in applying the remedy already used by some of them with marked success.

SINCE the article on the chrysanthemum midge appeared in the January 1 issue of The Review, many thousands of mums have been freed of the pest in a short time by those who read the article and followed the instructions given in it. Now that growers are preparing to plant their mums, some additional information will be welcome, especially as mums are the next main crop to be put on the market.

Only a few years ago growers of carnations thought these flowers were doomed by the rust, but today we understand how to fight the rust and we grow better carnations than ever before. The greatest danger in the mum midge lies in the fact that it is not understood. But if those who read this article will follow instructions, they will find that the midge is, by persistent effort, easy to eradicate.

Origin.

There are five species of midge prevalent in central Europe, but so far as can be ascertained, there are only three kinds in America; namely, the mum midge, the rose midge and one other, which thrives on weeds in gardens and fields.

The midge this article is concerned with has definitely been identified as Diarthronmya Hypogea (F. Löw). It will not thrive on any other plants than those of the chrysanthemum family. So we will just call it the mum midge (or something worse if nobody hears you).

As nearly as investigation reveals, this midge came into the United States on a new variety of chrysanthemum in 1913 or 1914 and today is doing a great deal of damage because it was distributed all over the country without the shippers of this stock realizing the great danger of the pest.

On the following page is a remarkably good illustration of the adult female midge, greatly enlarged. Its natural size is less than one-twelfth of an inch in length over all. In the earliest stage of its life the color of the midge is the same as that of the leaf. In middle age it is somewhat yellow. When at work or about the time it leaves its nest it is reddish in color and has two fleecy wings, which apparently are not of sufficient strength to be used in flying. It seems that these wings are only useful in helping the insect to keep its balance. The length of its life is from a few hours in the case of the male to two or three days in the case of the female.

The illustration on this page gives a clear view of the damage the midge does to mums. All of the spots, marks and specks on this mum branch are egg-harbors and these egg-harbors—not the insect—do the damage to the plant.

How Marks of Midge Show on Mums.

To be sure whether you have the midge, get out a sharp knife and carefully cut open any warty growth you may find on your mums. If you find an insect, you may feel sure it's the midge.

One point should be emphasized: Do not expect to find the midge like aphis. It is the egg-harbor that does the damage, not the insect. The insect is short-lived and is exceedingly hard to see. Some growers imagine they see the midge, when really they see a harmless manure fly that is similar in appearance, but larger.

This point is of great interest, as many growers are under the impression that the midge will fly from plant to plant. One-half of this point may be conceded, for the male does fly to some extent, but I have seen plants with four generations of insects on them when there was not one on any nearby plants. The midge emerges from its harbor and immediately gets busy on that one plant, or any adjoining plant that it can crawl, climb or fall to. Sometimes individual plants are affected with midge all season and plants a few inches away are absolutely free from them.

The real danger of the midge is that it cripples the growth. It disfigures and dwarfs the plant, and hinders the buds from opening, or even may destroy the bud.

Losses.

Growers give figures, such as twenty per cent, fifty per cent and sixty per cent depreciation in value of mums because they were so badly disfigured. One grower estimated his loss at $5,000, as the market value of his mums would have been $8,000 if all the stock had been free of midge, whereas he received only $3,000.

It has been definitely ascertained that the female insect of the midge starts plugging the eggs into the tenderest growth of mums when it is about six hours old and lays from eighty to 150 eggs, dying a natural death before it is forty-eight hours old.

Like nearly all other insects, the midges multiply most rapidly during the hot weather. In the winter I have found that they will stay dormant for a period of from three to five months. This indicates that the weather and atmosphere are big factors. One grower who had two lots of mums last winter had midge on both. The midge on the plants in the cooler house did not hatch till the warm days of spring, while those on the plants in his other house, in a warmer temperature, were hatching all winter.

I examined five different lots of mum stock plants this spring in widely sepa-

Like nearly all other insects, the midges multiply most rapidly during the hot weather. In the winter I have found that they will stay dormant for a period of from three to five months. This indicates that the weather and atmosphere are big factors. One grower who had two lots of mums last winter had midge on both. The midge on the plants in the cooler house did not hatch till the warm days of spring, while those on the plants in his other house, in a warmer temperature, were hatching all winter.

I examined five different lots of mum stock plants this spring in widely separated parts of three states. They were uncovered all winter and the ground had frozen to a depth of several feet, but this spring, when the growth started up again, the midge was right on the job, apparent evidence that freezing does not clean them out.

Proper Remedy.

Fumigation in any form, whether gas or tobacco, should be maintained so that the poisonous fumes are in the atmosphere all the time, so long as there is a midge in your place, so that the instant the midge emerges from its harbor it comes in contact with the poison. Tobacco dust is not reliable, because it soon loses its strength and does not completely cover the plant.

In the previous article on the midge I gave a formula for using nicotine, with advice to use it strong enough to burn the foliage. It is difficult to state what proportion this requires. In the winter, when ventilators are down tight and there is little circulation of air, considerably less nicotine is needed than in the summer, when the ventilators are open day and night. I have also found a great deal of difference in the chemical action of water. Alkali or lime rock water, or water from wells, demands almost twice as much nicotine as water from lakes, rivers or ponds.

One grower situated just across the road from another, but having a different source of water supply, has to use just twice as much nicotine as his neighbor. The latter uses pond water, while the former uses well water.

For this reason I can only say, use your nicotine spray strong enough to burn the foliage. By nicotine spray I mean your favorite brand, whatever it may be.

Successful Formula.

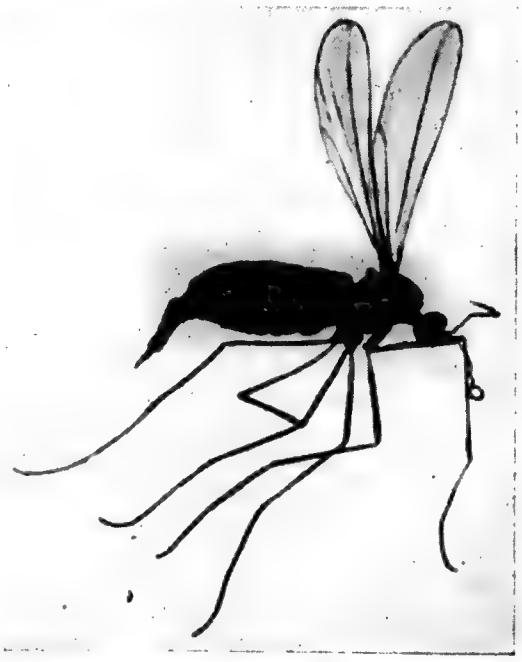
Here I will repeat what I regard as the most successful midge destroyer. If you have a better one that is absolutely dependable, kindly send it in for publication. My formula is nicotine in liquid spray form strong enough to burn the foliage (add enough yellow soap to make it stick and spread evenly), to which is added one tablespoonful of lysol to each gallon of spraying solution. Lysol is a powerful disinfectant, similar to carbolic acid, and can be had at any drug store for 20 cents.

To clean out the midge thoroughly, spray your plants every day (twice a day, morning and evening, is better), leaving this film of nicotine on the plants, so that whenever the midge comes out of its harbor it will receive a grand reception at the hands of Lady Nicotine. The smallest particle of nicotine will kill a midge, but if Mrs. Midge comes out and finds the plant has just been washed clean of all nicotine, she hurries around and plants eighty to 150 eggs and dies a natural death before you apply more nicotine on the second day.

Keep After Them.

Recently a grower asked how it is that, after he cleaned out the midge from his mums last winter, he is again bothered with them this spring. One should remember that the eggs are extremely minute. They were probably buried in the growth and lay dormant till th plants matured this spring, when the warm weather hatched the midge rapidly.

Wherever an egg is buried that is maturing there is a scar on the leaf or stem. In some instances there are as many as fifty eggs per leaf. As the leaf grows, the scars prevent its maintaining its natural shape and so it is badly crippled and undersized. The eggs in the stem, if more numerous on one side than on the other, cause the bloom to open sidewise and in some cases the bloom may be turned downwards instead of upwards. Therefore one should remove the affected leaves as soon as one sees them.



One of the prominent chrysanthemum growers of the middle west, when asked as to the best method of combating the midge, said, "After you have them all cleaned out, keep on fighting them just as though you still had them."

GOVERNMENT EXPERTS' ADVICE.

Appears in New Bulletin.

In bulletin No. 833, two investigators of the Department of Agriculture have collaborated in a study of the chrysanthemum midge. In this pamphlet, bearing the date of May 31, 1920, C. A. Weigel and H. L. Sanford present a number of interesting facts concerning the life and habits of this insect. The facts concerning its control have already been presented in The Review. Some of the descriptive matter of interest to chrysanthemum growers is given below:

Adult Female Midge, Much Magnified.

"When chrysanthemums are infested by this midge, the attention of the casual observer is most likely to be drawn to the presence of galls. These galls occur on the leaf, stem or flower head of the chrysanthemum plant. After the larvæ hatch from the orange-colored eggs, which are deposited by the adult female on the surface of tender tips and new growth, they bore their way into the tissues, thereby giving rise to the galls.

"The galls are cone-shaped and generally project obliquely from the surface. The length of the gall when fully developed is about one-twelfth of an inch. When the leaf is affected, the galls usually occur on the upper surface. In such cases a slight swelling often may be observed on the opposite, or under side of the leaf. Growth and development of both larva and pupa take place within this gall. When the pupa is fully developed it pushes itself out of the gall, still enclosed in the pupal skin. The latter then splits down the middle of the head and back to allow the adult to emerge.

"In the adult stage the midge is a fragile two-winged fly, one-fourteenth inch in length. The abdomen of the male is yellowish orange, while that of the female is reddish orange. The adult on emerging leaves its pupal skin protruding from the opening of the empty gall. The adults emerge after midnight and egg-laying takes place early in the morning.

Varieties Affected.

"While the chrysanthemum midge has been recorded from central and southern Europe as seriously injuring the common white or oxeye daisy (Chrysanthemum Leucanthemum), as well as C. corymbosum, C. atratum, C. japonicum and C. myconis, its depredations in North America are confined to practically all of the commercial chrysanthemums, both the single and pompon varieties. The first infestation in this country was reported on the variety Mistletoe, and according to Felt this variety appears to be very susceptible to the attacks of the midge.

"Although several attempts have been made to infest the Shasta daisy and the common field daisy, C. Leucanthemum, it has not been possible to get the ovipositing female to lay eggs on them. This is of much importance, for should the infestation spread to this common weed, there would be great difficulty in eradicating this pest.

"A. Gibson lists the following varieties as being fairly free from injury: Bob Pulling, Gertrude Peers, Daily Mail, Oconto, Mrs. G. C. Kelley, W. Woodmason, G. T. Quilleton and E. T. Quittington. All the above varieties are the blended product of C. indicum and C. morifolium, both of which grow wild in China and Japan. He reports the following varieties as being practically ruined: Smith's Advance, Ivory, Bonnaffon, William Turner, Western King and Englehart.

"Observations made by H. F. Dietz in the middle west showed that the William Turner variety had lost all the crown buds. In case of a thick infestation on the variety Dr. Enguehard all of the plants had to be discarded early in the season; also all Chadwick varieties, as well as Elberon, Major Bonnaffon and Golden Mensa. The varieties which seemed to be least injured were Golden Age, Harvard and White Bonnaffon.

"In some of the greenhouses of the District of Columbia during the season of 1918-1919 such varieties as Mensa, William Turner and the white and yellow Bonnaffon were completely ruined on account of the severe infestation.

Control Recommendations.

"From the life history it is clear that certain points must be kept in mind if the best practical results are to be secured. First, several generations are always present in greenhouses during the spring and fall occurrences; second, the adults emerge and mate during the very early morning hours, and egg laying quickly follows; third, preliminary control experiments show that the egg stage may be controlled by means of spraying or dipping the cuttings or plants; fourth, it has been demonstrated

PEONY SOCIETY MEETING

AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting at Reading.

In more ways than one it was a warm welcome which the city of Reading gave the American Peony Society Thursday and Friday, June 10 and 11. The thermometer began to climb Thursday morning and before the convention closed the "pretzel city" was one of the hottest places in the country, the mercury marking well up into the nineties. In spite of this, there was a fairly cool breeze and the members and visitors enjoyed themselves as well as could be expected.

Officers Reëlected.

The business sessions of the association were taken up with the usual routine details. In the election of officers for 1920-21, there was no opposition and the executives of last year were reelected, as follows: President, Lee R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O.; honorary president, C. W. Ward, Eureka, Cal.; vice-president, A. H. Fewkes, Newton Highlands, Mass.; secretary, A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., and treasurer, A. H. Scott, Front and Market streets, Chester, Pa. The board of directors for the new year includes the president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, ex-officio, and B. H. Farr, R. T. Brown and T. A. Havemeyer.

Exhibition Fully Successful.

The exhibition of cut blooms, which was probably the finest ever held by the society, was staged at the Hotel Berkshire. Last fall, when the committee was casting about for a place to hold the exhibition, Manager Kline told the representatives that he would be glad to have them use the hotel, that "they could go the limit and have the whole building if necessary." As a result, peonies filled the main lobby, the dining room and the grillroom of the Berkshire. There were peonies in vases, peonies in jardinieres, peonies in baskets and even peonies in the buttonholes of the waiters.

The Chief Exhibits.

The outstanding feature of the exhibition was a superb specimen bloom of Le Cygne, exhibited by Movilla Gardens, Haverford, Pa. The bloom was immense, white and dazzling in its purity of color.

Six specimens of the double white Jubilee were exhibited by Lee R. Bonnewitz and were awarded first prize in this class. Mr. Bonnewitz also received first prize for three blooms of Therese and a number of other valuable awards.

Another blue ribbon winner was the variety La France, rose pink, a new peony originated and introduced by E. M. Buchley, Greenville, O.

One hundred named varieties exhibited by Movilla Gardens attracted much attention and received a blue card.

In the center of the lobby was arranged an immense basket of twenty-five blooms, exhibited by Mrs. George S. Pomeroy, of Reading. To this group was awarded the Reading Chamber of Commerce silver cup for the most artistic arrangement.

Prize-Winners.

Besides the winners in the advanced amateur and novice amateur classes, there were the following prize-winners in the open classes:

Collection of not more than 100 named varieties, double, one bloom of each—James Boyd, Haverford, Pa., first award, American Peony Society gold medal and $50. Second and third classes, no award.

Collection of ten varieties, double, three blooms of each—James Boyd, first; E. M. Buchley, Greenville, O., second.

Collection of single varieties, one bloom of each—Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, L. I., first; L. R. Bonnewitz, Van Wert, O., second.

No award was made in the exhibition of Japanese varieties, one bloom of each.

Twenty blooms, white or cream, double, one variety—Cottage Gardens Co., first; E. M. Buchley, second.

Twenty blooms, light pink or pink and cream, double, one variety—Cottage Gardens Co., first.

Twenty blooms, dark pink, double, one variety—Cottage Gardens Co., first.

Twenty blooms, red or crimson, double, one variety—E. M. Buchley, first.

Six specimen blooms, double, any variety—L. R. Bonnewitz, first; E. M. Buchley, second.

One specimen bloom, double, any variety—James Boyd, first; L. R. Bonnewitz, second.

Collection of new varieties, introduced since 1905—James Boyd, first award, Pennsylvania Horticultural Society silver medal and $15; L. R. Bonnewitz, second.

Prizes of $2 each were awarded for the best vases of not more than three blooms each of the following varieties: Therese, L. R. Bonnewitz; M. Martin Cahusac, L. R. Bonnewitz; M. Jules Elie, Mrs. Haldeman O'Conner, Harrisburg; Festiva Maxima, Miss Alice Bonnewitz.

For the most artistic arrangement of not more than twenty-five peonies in a vase, dome or basket.—Mrs. George S. Pomeroy, Wernersville, Pa., first.

In the seedling class and the class in which the Harrison memorial prize of $100 was offered for a new yellow peony, there were no awards.

1921 FLOWER SHOW.

Preliminary Schedule Sent Out.

The preliminary schedule has been sent out for the eighth international flower show, which is to be held March 14 to 20, 1921, at the Grand Central Palace, New York, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club. Besides the classes for private growers, there are classes for commercial growers in plants in flower, palms and foliage plants, ferns, bulbous plants, orchid plants, cut orchids and roses in pots and tubs.

One notable feature is the special, open class for the best development of a garden covering 1,000 square feet, with great latitude as to the type of garden and kind of exhibits. A special sweepstakes prize of $500 will be awarded for the best exhibit and an additional $4,000 has been appropriated for this class. The first four entries will have the preference in the allotment, as the space is limited. There will also be a challenge cup to be competed for by garden clubs.

The Committees.

The flower show committee consists of the following: T. A. Havemeyer, chairman; John Young, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York, secretary; Frederic R. Newbold, treasurer; F. L. Atkins, John Canning, W. H. Duckham, A. M. Henshaw, Arthur Herrington, Joseph A. Manda, A. L. Miller, F. W.

President of the American Peony Society in his Gardens, at Van Wert, Ohio.

Payne, F. R. Pierson, W. R. Pierson, John G. Scheepers, Max Schling, James Stuart, C. H. Totty and Frank H. Traendly. The schedule committee is constituted as follows: C. H. Totty, chairman; F. L. Atkins, John Canning, W. H. Duckham, Arthur Herrington, Joseph A. Manda, A. L. Miller, F. R. Pierson, W. R. Pierson, John G. Scheepers, Max Schling, James Stuart and F. H. Traendly.

WINNING OUT IN WISCONSIN.

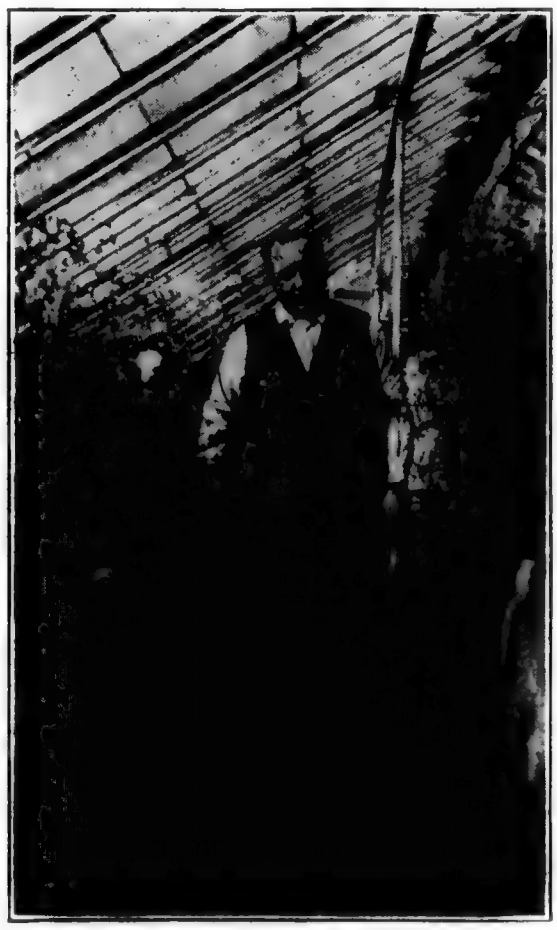
Scattered all over the country are florists' establishments built up by the hard work, the self-sacrifice, the ingenuity and the perseverance of men and women of whom the trade at large may have scant knowledge. But their local successes contribute much to strengthen the national growth of the whole trade. In each community, through their efforts, more people are realizing the need of flowers in daily life, so that any nation-wide movement which is to the trade's advantage finds quicker recognition and acceptance.

Typical of these sturdy establishments is the Platteville Floral Co., of which William A. Schaefer is the founder and proprietor, at Platteville, Wis. Mr. Schaefer, who is shown "on the job" in the accompanying illustration, was born at Two Rivers, Wis., in 1877, being a member of a family of ten. In 1907 he moved to Platteville, where he purchased five acres of land and started the business which is now the Platteville Floral Co. It was uphill work and capital was limited. In 1908 and 1915 the range was visited by severe hail storms; the storm of the former year left not a single light of glass intact.

The firm now has 8,500 feet of glass and is installing a new boiler to allow for further additions in the future. Mr. Schaefer's four sons are ever ready to give a helping hand and thus do much to eliminate labor troubles.

As might be expected of so progressive a florist, Mr. Schaefer is a member of the S. A. F. and F. T. D. and a charter member of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association.

BOSTON.



The Market.

Conditions are somewhat improved from a week ago. Supplies of both carnations and roses are beginning to shrink, as growers are busy pulling out old stock and preparing for replanting. The quality also is deteriorating as a consequence of one or two hot days, but it is better than usual for mid-June. Some weddings help to enliven business and school graduations, college commencements, etc., will give trade a fillip for the next few days.

Roses vary in price from day to day and are not cleaning up well. Carnations are doing better than a week ago, but a good many flowers have a sleepy appearance; white predominates in the offerings. Sweet peas are growing poorer in quality; all flowers come as yet from under glass and few outdoor blooms will be available for some days yet. Single peonies are much in evidence, but doubles will not be plentiful until the end of this week; one or two hot days will, of course, rush them in quickly. Gladioli are rather overabundant. Lilies and callas are each somewhat slow in moving. The demand for miscellaneous flowers is more or less uncertain. Outdoor valley is over and there is, therefore, a little better call for the forced, but inferior, article. Cattleyas are becoming rather scarce, but some nice gardenias are coming in.

Club Field Day.

Glorious weather favored the club field day at the Arnold Arboretum June 12, it being the second pleasant Saturday in two months. The scarcity of labor and the need of utilizing every pleasant day for food production and other essential work limited the attendance to thirty-five, including several ladies. Edwin Jenkins made a 150-mile trip from Lenox, Mass., to attend. Piloted by William H. Judd, the party first looked over the long beds containing the shrub collections. Here the diervillas, roses, loniceras and many others were in fine flower. Lonicera

In the Midst of Work.

Maackii, with its immaculate, white flowers, was much admired. An inspection of the lilac collection showed that, while the numerous hybrids of Syringa vulgaris had passed, such late species as Josikæa and villosa were at their best. Among the newer species S. Sweginzowii, of bushy habit, is a glorious acquisition, a decided improvement on villosa. S. Julianæ and S. tomentella are other splendid novelties.

While the great masses of Azalea Kaempferi had passed, there were numerous varieties still in excellent flower. The extensive Chinese collection excited much interest. Some fine deutzias and spiræas were noteworthy, also a large collection of cotoneasters. Deutzia discolor should prove a grand forcing variety for florists. The large rhododendron collection at the foot of Hemlock hill was nearly at its best. No variety attracted more attention than the beautiful pink R. Smirnovii. The great bank of Kalmia latifolia would soon make a notable display. Romantic Hemlock hill was climbed; near the summit, sheltered between the wonderful hemlocks, were Libocedrus decurrens, cryptomerias, cedrus and other conifers or evergreens of doubtful hardiness.

The great collection of hundreds of varieties of cratægus on Peter's hill and near the arborway was in perfect flower and the extensive pinetum never looked better. It was not possible in a single afternoon's walk to see more than a fraction of the beautiful and interesting plants in this noted collection, but all who attended spent a most profitable and enjoyable afternoon.

Various Notes.

The Boston Florists' Association is planning to hold its second annual outing at Wardhurst, Lynnfield, Saturday, June 26. Members will leave Boston in automobiles about 1:30 p. m. and dinner will be served on arrival. It is hoped to have some athletic events later. The beautiful Suntaug lake, on which Wardhurst stands, is in itself a wonderful attraction.

Judging from present indications, the dates June 19 and 20 will suit the annual peony exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and roses and strawberries should be in fine shape for the show June 26 and 27. Thanks to copious rains, roses and peonies are both of remarkably fine quality.

So unstable has been the weather and so copious the rainfall that June 12 some carnation growers had not been able to complete the planting of their young stock outdoors.

E. H. Wilson will leave on a two years' world tour July 8. The Horticultural Club, of which he is president, tendered him a complimentary dinner at the Parker House June 2.

Henry Penn has been enjoying a few days' outing with the Pilgrim Publicity Association at Indianapolis; he returned this week.

The Garden Club of America will hold its annual meeting at Manchester, Mass., on the invitation of the North Shore Garden Club of Massachusetts, June 28 to July 1. The visiting delegates will be well entertained and will visit a number of important estates, including those of F. S. Moseley, Newburyport; C. R. Crane, Ipswich; Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby and Mrs. Gardner Lane, Manchester; W. H. Moore, Prides Crossing, and E. D. Brandegee, C. S. Sargent and Larz Anderson, Brookline; also the Arnold Arboretum and the Brookline Country Club.

John T. Butterworth and Albert C. Burrage will make notable orchid displays at the peony exhibition in Boston June 19 and 20.

The death of Benjamin Kozminsky June 12 is recorded in this week's obituary column. W. N. C.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Fritsch Bros., Milwaukee, Wis., have been busy with much funeral work.

The new store of the Schiller Flower Shop, Milwaukee, is ideally located on a prominent intersection on Twenty-seventh street. The store is nicely furnished and has spacious display windows. It is in keeping with Milwaukee's reputation for beautiful flower stores.

The E. Welke Co., Milwaukee, is ready, as soon as the June festivities are over, to put the store in its summer make-up. A woodland scene will be displayed in the window.

William Lubliner, Milwaukee, reports a steady increase in transient patrons. Business is in keeping with the times, seemingly getting better.

Currie Bros. Co., Milwaukee, has been working eighteen hours a day getting out seed orders. "From the number of orders, it seems that everyone intends to spend the summer gardening," remarked the busy Roy Currie.

The Flower Shop, a new establishment at Racine, Wis., is an addition to the beautiful retail flower stores of the country and ranks with the best. The destinies of this business are in the hands of the junior member of Rehle & Benz. Mr. Benz is still a young man, who some day will be one of the leading retail florists. In speaking of business, Mr. Benz remarked that since the opening of the store it has increased over fifty per cent.

The Racine Floral Co., Racine, has been busy with many wedding orders. Plans to redecorate during the summer months have been made. W. T. U.

UNITE AGAINST BAN

QUARANTINE CONFERENCE.

Organizes Opposition.

The conference called by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the New York Horticultural Society in regard to Quarantine No. 37 and the actions of the Federal Horticultural Board met in New York city June 15 and chose an executive committee to direct a campaign of opposition to the present mode of enforcing the quarantine.

The conference opened in the lecture hall of the American Museum of Natural History at 10 o'clock, with an attendance of nearly 100, most of whom represented horticultural organizations, the rest business interests. Among them were I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y., representing the American Gladiolus Society; E. C. Vick, New York, American Dahlia Society; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, American Rose Society; F. C. Newbold, New York, Garden Clubs of America; S. Newhall, Garden Clubs of Philadelphia; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston; T. A. Havemeyer, Horticultural Society of New York; W. C. Endicott, Massachusetts Florists' Society; M. C. Ebel, National Association of Gardeners; J. H. Fiesser, New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers; Frank R. Pierson, Society of American Florists; J. A. Manda, New York Florists' Club; F. Cranefield, Wisconsin State Horticultural Society; Richard Vincent, Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club; Mrs. Francis King, Garden Clubs of America; Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago Horticultural Society; J. C. Wister, Pennsylvania Horticultural Society; J. Edward Moon, American Association of Nurserymen. There were several others, representing various garden clubs, many of them ladies. T. A. Havemeyer acted as temporary chairman and Wm. B. Rich, Boston, acted as secretary. After the reading of the call and a long list of signatories, J. H. McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., was elected permanent chairman and presided throughout.

Objects of Conference.

E. P. Burridge, Beverly, Mass., read a statement prepared by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society covering the objects of the conference. It was explained that it was not the purpose of the meeting to condemn the quarantine, but merely to protest against the drastic manner in which it was being enforced, a manner wasteful, inefficient and unsound. It was asked that the United States government, with all its power and wealth, should handle the business part of the subject in a business way. It was declared that the place to inspect and fumigate was at the port of entry and that it was wrong to have plants arriving, say, in California sent to Washington, 3,000 miles away, for inspection and treatment, and then sent back again, a course deemed both wasteful and ill-advised. It was also declared that inspection should be made by experienced officers of the government and not by mere students. Evasion or violation of the law was not favored, but it was urged that unsound or diseased plants be rejected at the port of entry and sound, clean plants be allowed to come to one of the larger ports and there treated, accepted or rejected. It was asked that the government establish suitable inspection service at two ports in the west, one in the south and two in the east, and that the final decision on plants be made at those ports, where they may be destroyed or released, as found necessary. It was further asked that the regulations be revised in a business way and made safe for all concerned. If it was a fact that the loss to this country by plant disease was over a million dollars per day, then surely the federal government could afford to pay the small amount necessary to establish and maintain the inspection service at these ports.

Stifling Horticulture.

Mr. Burridge also read a letter from Prof. C. S. Sargent, of the Arnold Arboretum, in which it was said that, owing to quarantine restrictions, it was decided there to give up receiving any foreign plants until there was modification in the rules of the quarantine board, and it was quite believed that the requirements of the board could be modified and approved. Inspection stations could be established at ports of entry and changes in the classification of the plants quarantined made. In the letter it was also urged that cooperation with the Department of Agriculture was necessary in an attempt to obtain changes in the rulings regarding plants, on which the future of American horticulture depended.

Judge Noitt, of Nashua, N. H., read a statement he had prepared as a member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's committee, in which he stated that complaint against the quarantine was in regard to its so-called drastic features, which should be modified substantially. It had been said that the restrictions called for in this quarantine were unnecessary, and there was general agreement on that point. As E. H. Wilson had said, no man had any desire to introduce plant pests, but all were absolutely opposed to plant exclusion and to dictation as to what might or might not be planted in gardens. The object and purpose of the quarantine was good and had a semblance of virtue. It was not the desire of the people, however, to be cut off from the best trees, shrubs, flowers and fruits because they might bring in injurious pests.

Voices Objections.

J. C. Wister, president of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, said he was not opposed to quarantines and would rather go on record as favoring them. He voiced, however, the opinions of his organization in the following objections: No proof had been given as to the necessity of a general quarantine. The assumption is that plant pests do not enter on other bodies. We do not like the arbitrary rulings. We ask for inspection at different ports. We do not like the way the Federal Horticultural Board acts as a jury on pests. Pests come in with other things, not necessarily on plants, and it is unjust to keep cut plants on that account. We object to the inconsistent rulings under the quarantine. Finished roses are not allowed to come in, while unfinished stock is, thus protecting the business of rose growers.

The speakers against the quarantine were many and a number of instances of injustice in the rulings of the F. H. B. were quoted. Principal among these speakers were F. W. Kelsey, of the American Association of Nurserymen; J. E. Lager, I. S. Hendrickson, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, M. C. Ebel, S. S. Pennock, J. Edward Moon and F. R. Pierson.

Some of the ladies representing garden clubs said that the embargo against plant introductions eliminated the æsthetic feature in gardens generally.

Committee Elected.

The discussion finally took constructive ferm, and on the motion of Judge Noitt it was resolved that a general committee be formed, to consist of one representative of each organization officially represented at the conference, with the permanent chairman acting as chairman ex-officio, this committee to elect an executive committee with power to formulate plans for effective opposition to the quarantine as now put in force and to collect funds in support of such opposition. The committee met later and elected as the executive committee E. P. Burridge, Mrs. Francis King, E. C. Vick, J. C. Wister and F. Cranefield, with W. B. Rich as secretary and treasurer and Payne, F. R. Pierson, W. R. Pierson, John G. Scheepers, Max Schling, James Stuart, C. H. Totty and Frank H. Traendly. The schedule committee is constituted as follows: C. H. Totty, chairman; F. L. The visiting delegates will be well entertained and will visit a number of important estates, including those of F. S. Moseley, Newburyport; C. R. Crane, Ipswich; Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby and Mrs. Gardner Lane, Manchester; W. H. Moore, Pride's Crossing, and E. D. Brandegee, C. S. Sargent and Larz Anderson, Brookline; also the Arnold Arboretum and the Brookline Country Club.

Fred E. Palmer had one of his delivery cars badly damaged in a collision in Brookline June 12.

John T. Butterworth and Albert C. Burrage will make notable orchid displays at the peony exhibition in Boston June 19 and 20.

The death of Benjamin Kozminsky June 12 is recorded in this week's obituary column. W. N. C.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

Fritsch Bros., Milwaukee, Wis., have been busy with much funeral work.

The new store of the Schiller Flower Shop, Milwaukee, is ideally located on a prominent intersection on Twenty-seventh street. The store is nicely furnished and has spacious display windows. It is in keeping with Milwaukee's reputation for beautiful flower stores.

The E. Welke Co., Milwaukee, is

J. Horace McFarland as chairman. The executive committee was given power to fill any vacancies in its body or to add to its number.

The platform in the hall was most tastefully and elaborately decorated with palms, ferns and decorative baskets and vases of peonies.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business has been lively all the month. Contrary to the usual run of affairs, there was no dull period following Memorial day and the last week has been active with graduations, weddings, entertainments of various sorts and a considerable amount of funeral work.

Stock has moved well and there has been enough to meet all demands. Carnations have begun to show the advance of the season and roses are showing some effect of summer heat, but thus far there has been no stock poor enough to be worthless.

Various Notes.

Henry Kusik & Co. are getting some fancy greenhouse gladioli from local growers. They have received some nice carnations from Denver. Orders for roses have been so heavy that they could not keep up with them some days.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has been cleaning up daily. Besides cut flowers, it is selling many bedding plants and ferns. It has had heavy calls for lilies of the valley.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. had splendid crops of delphiniums, roses and gladioli last week and also some fine carnations. It had plenty of sweet peas up to Thursday, June 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGrail have bought a 5-acre tract on Blue Ridge boulevard, in the Witthar restricted addition. They intend to build a country home next spring.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has taken a 5-year lease on the fourth floor at 1121-1123 Grand avenue, where it is now located. It has secured the room on the south side of the building, adjoining the room they now have, and in July will begin remodeling.

Miss Lou Boggess had the biggest week for funeral work preceding Memorial day that she ever experienced. Saturday, May 29, she had a $75 blanket order and half a dozen other funeral orders. Funeral work is still heavy with her.

The T. J. Noll Floral Co. is receiving a nice line of supplies and is rapidly getting the new wholesale place into shape for handling business. It had some especially fine gladioli among other good stock last week.

John Stevens has about finished cleaning up his wrecked greenhouses and is preparing to rebuild his entire range.

The real estate dealers' convention brought a heavy week to the Muehlebach Flower Shop. They had a big dinner in the Colonial ballroom of the Muehlebach hotel, for which 4-foot rose trees were used to decorate the tables. Among the branches of the trees were small electric light bulbs and massed about the base of the trees were various flowers. About the chandelier in the middle of the room were large sprays of colored pampas grass. Another entertainment was a luncheon for the women members and wives of delegates. The favors were old-fashioned bouquets, 400 of them. Besides the various social affairs at the country clubs and hotels, there were numerous orders for corsages and boxes.

E. A. Humfeld was on a jury from Monday, June 7, until Friday, June 11. He has commenced to bench his roses at the Independence greenhouses and has a good crop of delphiniums coming on. Although he has refused nearly all bedding and box orders this season, he is ahead of last year.

Jacob Hepting has taken possession of his greenhouses again.

Nelson Jarrett has a considerable crop of oriental poppies. The plants were brought from Japan by a native gardener and several growers around here bought some. Mr. Jarrett has been selling only the blooms, but he will begin to sell the plants in August.

Adolph Mohr has enjoyed a satisfactory season and has cleaned up well. He is now beginning to plant cyclamens and begonias for the holidays.

August Luther, Jr., is planting mums. His bedding work has been exceptionally good.

S. Bryson Ayres has begun improvements at his Sunny Slope Seed Farm. He will add 5,000 square feet of glass to his range for the culture of sweet peas. He also has plans for enlarging his retail store, which will double the space. About five times as much stock was sold for Memorial day as a year ago. His cut of peonies was between 30,000 and 40,000.

More than sixty exhibitors contributed to the display of forty-eight classes of flowers in the fifth spring show of the Amateur Flower Gardeners' Association at the Hotel Muehlebach June 12.

Miss Louise Tobler has returned from a month's visit in the south.

Two effective window displays last week were Samuel Murray's blue hydrangeas and the red gladiolus display of the W. L. Rock Flower Co.

Among the visitors last week were P. A. Manson, Pleasant Hill, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Simonson, McPherson, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. William Hasselman, Independence, Kan.; J. C. Steinhauser, Pittsburg, Kan., and Miss Dix, Leavenworth, Kan.

Miss Nayr, of Chicago, is visiting Miss Hayden.

Eric Fransden is erecting a new boiler room and installing a new boiler at his greenhouses.

A crew from the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. arrived from Chicago Thursday, June 10, and has commenced to build the Longview greenhouse.

A. F. Barbe is planting mums.

J. G. Eggleston has been doing as much bedding work this month as he did at the height of the season in 1919.

Miss Helen Brown, daughter of Mrs. M. Brown, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., proved herself a heroine in a recent motor accident. Miss Brown and seven school children, whom she was taking home after classes in a motor bus, were pinned beneath the car when it was struck by another and overturned. She calmly directed the rescue work.

TATE'S TIPS

DEMAND CAUSES SCARCITY.

An Assertion Proved.

During the extreme scarcity of cut flowers last winter, the writer, in several articles in this column, took the stand that the cause of the shortage was increased demand. This statement was made after careful investigation; that is, the market was carefully watched and it was found that, while at all times stock was scarce, yet there was as large a volume of stock being used as in previous years.

All will remember that the scarcity of flowers was attributed to weather conditions, and time and again there were predictions of gluts coming as soon as conditions became favorable. To be certain no mirage had been leading me on, I determined to watch conditions even more closely, so as to make no mistake as to what the cause of last winter's shortage really was.

There are three points in this investigation which I think, if we analyze them carefully, will convince the most skeptical that the greenhouses of the country are not sufficient to take care of the increased demand for flowers. The first thing to which I wish to call your attention is the fact that at this writing there has been no great glut of stock. Of course, in some sections there may have been, after the weather became warm, an oversupply of such stock as sweet peas, but even this was nothing compared with the gluts we have known, and this condition did not arrive until the season was over. Any glut we may now have will be caused by outdoor stock and greenhouse production has nothing to do with this.

Scarcity of Bedding Plants.

The second point is the scarcity of bedding plants this spring. There are several reasons for this, but they can all be traced to the increased demand for flowers. The first of these is the fact that many of the smaller growers, who at one time produced a large part of the bedding plants used, have turned their entire ranges to cut flowers; the demand and high prices that were available were the cause of their devoting their attention to this branch of the business exclusively. The next point in the present plant shortage is the fact that in these days of automobiles the class of people who were plant buyers have moved from the congested part of our cities to the suburbs and, in many cases, out into the country. The man who lived in a city row with a yard perhaps 15x30 feet now has a vegetable garden in the back of his home and a lawn with a flower bed and borders in the front. These are the two points that are causing the scarcity of plants this spring. Plants have been sold this spring at prices that a short time ago were thought impossible and far better stock has been thrown on the dump. Anyone who will investigate honestly will find that one crop is being sacrificed for another and, in spite of this sacrifice, there is still not enough to meet the demand at all times.

In the third instance, consult your own books for the last season's business. This, of course, is the final test; the test that will prove if the conditions mentioned are correct. Many florists keep a record of their cuts, but the large majority do not, and yet this simple system of bookkeeping could be done by anyone.

Easy Bookkeeping System.

A slate hung in each house, or a scratch pad in a handy place, enables one to jot down the number of a certain flower cut on a given date. Then, at one's leisure, this can be transcribed into a record book. This information is invaluable when you are computing your cost of production.

The time is not far distant when every grower will be obliged to know this with a fair degree of accuracy, for the selling price of all lines of stock will be based upon this information. If what I have already read of the National Flower Growers' Association means anything, it means that the men who are behind this movement have a vision of the future of the business. "Hit or miss" methods will have no place, but, for the benefit of the entire business, prices will be stabilized and put upon a more equitable basis.

Cause of Increased Demand.

Now consider the foregoing and decide for yourself if I have established the claim that I made last winter, that in most cases the demand is greater than the supply. Then the question naturally arises, what causes this increased demand? This is the question which I was often asked last winter and I answered that the great amount of money in circulation was the cause.

But let us go a step farther than this. Granted that part of the public has had more money to spend upon luxuries than ever before, let us remember that this part of the public was a class that had never been flower buyers; the old buyers were those dependent upon incomes from investments and upon salaries. A revolution has been enacted and a new class of patrons has had to be educated. If national publicity had not been started when it was, would the florist have secured his share of this increased wealth? Does this not demonstrate the possibilities of advertising? And now, with local campaigns connecting with the national campaign, your business is going to grow faster. By all means advertise, but above all things have the stock when it is wanted. Tate.

CHICAGO SEIZES OPPORTUNITY.

Advertises Abundance.

The hot days of early June brought tremendous quantities of flowers into the Chicago wholesale market, just as it brought them into almost all other flower centers. No one was glad to see them, for the growers foresaw low returns, the retailers faced the obnoxious forms of outside competition such conditions engender, and the wholesalers, besides perspiring in extra effort to move the stock, faced the complaints of members of both other branches.

Striking Chicago Newspaper Advertisement Announcing Lower Prices.

But the big supply did more than evoke complaints; it stimulated the leaders of the coöperative advertising campaign to action. They regarded the abundant stocks in the wholesale houses not in the old-time regret, but as an opportunity to be used to their advantage. At a time when backyard gardeners and suburbanites have been busy hoeing and spading with a vision of floral enjoyments at a later date, here was the chance to turn these visions of later months into purchases to afford those floral enjoyments at a comparatively low expense immediately. And in parks the beds, just coming into flower, arouse the wishes of those who see them for blooms to enjoy at home—at least they would, in the opinion of the leaders in the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, if those folk knew they could buy flowers cheap.

Telling the Public.

So a good-sized advertisement in the Chicago Tribune June 15 carried these facts in an emphatic way to the people of the city. How emphatic it was may be judged from the reproduction of the advertisement on this page.

Such advertising as this has been one of the prime objects of the Chicago florists since they first undertook their campaign—not promotion of holidays which already keep all hands busy, so much as urging and education of the public to use of flowers in ways that provide an outlet when stock is plentiful and orders are not. While it is too early to report results on this advertising, it is felt by those who have undertaken it that it will greatly repay the expense not only in increased business but in the additional satisfaction derived by the trade in the larger movement of stock in the regular channels at prices more nearly satisfactory than would be obtained from outsiders.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

Conditions in the wholesale markets last week were excellent in both demand and supply, since this was one of the busy weeks with the retailer, with school commencements, weddings and, in some cases, an unusual amount of funeral work, which caused market clearings almost daily at prices even higher than the regular quotations. This is especially true of shipping stock.

The call for white roses was exceedingly large, with a good demand for other varieties, the preference generally being given to Premier, with Russell next. Some of the shipments from out of town arrived in poor condition, owing to the warm weather, and local stock had a decided preference.

Carnations were in fine demand, but with small blooms and quality not of the best.

Owing to the many weddings, valley had a big call, with the supply equal. Splendid lots of Easter lilies were noticed last week, also candidum and callas.

Gladiolus spikes are in big demand, with the new varieties most in demand. The local season for peonies is over, but a splendid lot of shipped-in stock came into this market last week. Sweet peas are declining in quality and few fancies are now in. The demand for good orchids is strong, but the supply is small.

A great deal of outdoor stock of fine quality is in. This is having a splendid demand for window decorations and basket work; among the best sellers are delphiniums, irises, yellow daisies and cornflowers.

New flat ferns are arriving and are quite welcome. All other greens clean up daily.

Club Meeting.

The thirty-fourth anniversary meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club occurred June 10 at the Missouri Botanical Garden. The meeting was held on the lawn in front of the old home of Henry Shaw, founder of the garden and one of the founders of the Florists' Club.

A busy week with the retailers and the hot weather kept the attendance below expectations, as only forty members were present when President Hummert called the meeting to order. After the usual opening proceedings were disposed of, the chair called upon all the committees for reports.

The trustees reported through their chairman, Oscar Ruff, that the annual picnic of the florists would be held at Normandy grove July 22 and that all arrangements had been made for this event. The publicity committee, through its chairman, L. J. Bourdet, presented its yearly statement and the report of the auditing committee. This report was favorably commented upon by the members and the activities of this committee last year and the plans upon which it is working brought out a big discussion; those who were not contributing to the publicity fund on the basis of one per cent from retailers and half of one per cent from growers were fully enlightened by talks from J. F. Ammann, L. J. Bourdet, W. J. Pilcher, F. A. Windler and C. E. De Wever. At the close of the discussion a motion was made and carried that the committee be given a rising vote of thanks for its work in behalf of publicity.

The committee which has charge of the club's thirty-fourth anniversary banquet reported that all arrangements had been made for this event and that invitations had been mailed to all the florists in the city and vicinity.

Vice-president Rowe, of the Missouri State Florists' Association, reported that the meeting of Missouri growers at Pleasant Hill, Mo., next month should be of great benefit to the association; he is expecting a large attendance from this city.

Several communications were read, including one from H. J. Seel, of Milwaukee, accepting the invitation to be the principal speaker at the anniversary banquet, and another from two of the club's members, Alexander Lurie and W. S. Wells, now of Ann Arbor, Mich., congratulating the club on its thirty-fourth anniversary meeting and wishing it future prosperity.

Flowers were ordered sent to two sick members, Luther Armstrong and Edward Buechel. It was also moved that the president and secretary constitute a committee to call on any sick member and that it should be the duty of every member to notify them of any sickness among the members.

It was also decided that the publicity committee should arrange for a "Say It with Flowers" night at the municipal opera in Forest park and that every lady present that night be presented with a flower.

A rising vote of thanks was extended to the management of the garden, also to L. P. Jensen and G. H. Pring, who arranged for this meeting, for the enjoyable afternoon.

The treasurer's report showed a good balance in the treasury. The question box brought out some interesting discussion.

J. F. Ammann invited the club to hold its July meeting at his establishment in Edwardsville, Ill.; his invitation was accepted with thanks. The meeting then adjourned. The next regular meeting will take place July 8.

New Publicity Committee.

The new publicity committee held its first meeting June 8 at its meeting room at 1316 Pine street.

There were present at this meeting L. J. Bourdet, A. H. Hummert, W. J. Pilcher, W. A. Rowe, D. S. Geddis, Nat Kingsley, Frank A. Windler, F. X.

GOOD WORK

NATIONAL PUBLICITY FREE FOR FLORISTS.

No, we don't mean the S. A. F. publicity that's free to the florists who don't contribute to the national fund—some florists pay for that and Secretary Young is getting after the ones who don't. The caption refers to that continuous and generous publicity given to florists by the feature writers in the daily newspapers. An especially good piece of advertising for our profession appeared in the column called, "Ye Towne Gossip," by K. C. B., which is syndicated throughout the country. Maybe you saw it. If not, here it is:

THERE ARE some fellows.
WHO NEVER forget.
TO TAKE a box of candy.
OR A bouquet of flowers.
WHENEVER IT happens.
THEY'RE INVITED to dinner.
BUT SOMEHOW or other.
IT SELDOM occurs.
THAT I ever do it.
AND THE other day.
I WAS going out.
TO THE home of a friend.
AND I met the host.
AT HIS downtown office.
AND WE started home.
AND ON the way.
HE WENT into a florist's.
AND SPENT $3.
FOR A bouquet of flowers.
TO TAKE to his wife.
AND THEN went on.
AND HE lives uptown.
IN A big apartment.
AND WE went upstairs.
AND AT his door.
I TOOK the flowers.
WHILE HE got his key.
AND OPENED the door.
AND HIS wife was there.
AND WAS glad to see us.
OR SAID she was.
AND SHE saw the flowers.
AND REACHED out for them.
AND I gave them to her.
AND WAS just going to tell her.
THAT HER husband bought them.
WHEN SHE started to thank me.
AND OVER her shoulder.
I COULD see her husband.
PUT HIS finger to his lips.
AND I didn't say anything.
AND AT dinner time.
SHE SPOKE of the flowers.
AND HOW lovely they were.
AND HOW kind I was.
TO BRING them to her.
AND SOMEONE said something.
ABOUT THOUGHTFUL men.
WHO ALWAYS remembered.
THE LITTLE things.
THAT AFTER all.
BROUGHT THE greatest joy.
AND THEY pointed to me.
AS A good example.
AND WE had our dinner.
AND THEN played bridge.
AND WHEN we left.
THE VERY last thing.
THAT THE hostess said.
WAS HOW kind I had been.
TO BRING the flowers.
AND IN the morning.
I SAT right down.
AND SENT her husband.
A THREE dollar check.
TO BUY some flowers.
TO BRING to my wife.
BECAUSE THEY'RE coming to dinner.
TOMORROW NIGHT.
I THANK you.

Gorly and J. J. Beneke. Two members of the committee, A. S. Cerny and William Ossick, were absent.

The new committee accepted the report of the auditing committee and voted that a report of this committee be sent to all florists in the city and vicinity. This committee has charge of the arrangements for the celebration of the thirty-fourth anniversary of the Florists' Club. All arrangements were reported completed for the celebration of this event.

Further contributions were made to the "Say It with Flowers" baseball team, which is winning its share of games in the municipal league.

A fall advertising campaign was fully discussed and will receive further consideration at the next meeting.

The committee then elected L. Jules Bourdet its chairman for the year and J. J. Beneke will be the committee's secretary.

The report of the old committee showed all bills paid and a good balance in the bank with which to start the work of the new committee.

The next meeting of the committee will take place Tuesday, June 22, at 8 o'clock at headquarters, 1316 Pine street; all members of the publicity committee are requested to be present.

Various Notes.

President Jensen, of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners, says that John H. Kellogg will read a paper on "Natural Plant Material for Gardening" at the association's next meeting, which will be held in Forest park Sunday, July 4, at 9 a. m.

V. J. Gorly, president of Grimm & Gorly, has returned from a week's visit to Indianapolis, Ind., where he attended the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Real estate transfers last week showed that Joseph Witek had purchased a 51-foot lot on McPherson avenue just east of his present location; this lot will be improved in the near future by the erection of a handsome building, which will house his store.

Miss M. Carroll, who has an attractive store on Euclid avenue, is spending a two weeks' vacation in New Orleans, La., where she has a number of friends.

Fred W. Ude, in Kirkwood, Mo., has turned over the business to his two sons, Martin and Paul, who are now proprietors of this well kept establishment. Mr. Ude will spend much of his time in Florida, where he and his son Emil have large fruit farms. Martin Ude is president of the St. Louis County Growers' Association.

J. F. Ammann left for Baltimore, Md., June 13, to address a meeting of growers. Mr. Ammann has recovered from his recent sickness and looks exceedingly well since adopting the doctor's advice to smoke his usual brand of cigars.

Mrs. Henry G. Berning entertained the Lady Florists' Home Circle at her home on McPherson avenue June 9. All members were present and spent a most enjoyable afternoon.

The big meeting of Missouri growers next month at the range of the Pinehurst Floral Co., at Pleasant Hill, Mo., should attract a large attendance from all over the state and a large representation from St. Louis is expected. Especial efforts will be made in this city by W. A. Rowe, vice-president of the Missouri State Florists' Association, to insure a good attendance.

Mrs. William Stemme, of Stemme & Sons, Hattiesburg, Miss., was a visitor last week, stopping with her brother, Martin Seeger, of the Mullanphy Florists.

A. J. Bentzen, of the Bentzen Floral Co., and captain of the Daisy bowling team, is contemplating a motor trip to Cleveland for the convention, taking the team with him to enter the bowling contest.

Members of the trade in the city are urged not to forget to make their returns for tickets for the anniversary banquet at once. The committee is awaiting their reply.

Theodore Heil, brother of Paul Heil, of Heil & Haizlip, 556 South Kinker avenue, is still with the United States army in France, but writes that he expects soon to receive his discharge; on his return he will be with the firm, where his services are much needed.

Florists in the south end who report a splendid week, with weddings and school commencements, are Mrs. Fred W. Bruenig, Mrs. Julia Pelletier, W. H. Kruse and A. Meyer, Jr. A few advance orders for weddings during the month will finish up the season's social work.

The Wholesale Florists' Association, at a recent meeting, decided to start early Saturday closing, beginning June 19, when they will close at noon, but they will be open for business Sunday morning as usual up to noon.

Matthew Schoenberger, of Belleville, Ill.; J. F. Ammann and H. Blixen, of Edwardsville, Ill.; M. F. Widener, of Highland, Ill.; George Madsen, of Alton, Ill.; Charles Johann, of Collinsville, and A. Jablonsky, John Steidle and C. E. De Wever, of Olivette, Mo., spent June 10 in the city and attended the club meeting in the afternoon. J. J. B.

PEKIN, ILL.

Mell Augspurger, who has been with George A. Kuhl for the last year, will resign July 1 and start in business for himself in the state of Indiana.

Haase Bros., who built a new range of greenhouses three years ago, have been adding new glass each year until at present they have 25,000 square feet. Work was begun on a new, modern residence, located near the greenhouses and estimated to cost $8,000 when completed.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Carnations, always of fine quality here at this season, seem to be even better than usual. Prices are somewhat lower since Memorial day and shipping continues steady. In the retail stores business has fallen off somewhat since the holiday, but there has been the usual demand for weddings and entertainments. Owing to the discontinuance of the use of flowers at graduations in the schools here, those occasions do not mean much to the florists.

Roses are of fine quality and have a good demand. Columbia is the strongest. Columbines and peonies have put in their appearance.

Various Notes.

The Elitch Gardens Co. is cutting fine crops of Premier, Columbia and Francis Scott Key roses that were planted early. It has just finished planting its new rose house. It is expected that this house will take care of the increasing trade.

Fred Hall, who has been seriously ill for several months, is now regaining his health rapidly.

Russell Emsbach became the proud father of a boy last week.

E. L. Hill, who has been growing carnations for Conrad Lengenfelder since his discharge from the navy last fall, was married last week and has left for a short trip through Estes park.

Shortage of labor is causing delay in planting. R. E. H.

Middletown, O.—The business of Selby the Florist has changed its name to the Arcade Floral Shop.

OBITUARY

Benjamin Kozminsky.

Worrying because of his imagined ill health, Benjamin Kozminsky, a former member of the A. E. F., shot and killed himself at his store, 2190 Washington street, Roxbury, Boston, Mass., June 12, leaving a note of love and regret to his bride of four days, who before her marriage was Miss Ella Horrigan, proclaimed the prettiest girl in Dorchester in a recent beauty contest.

The deceased visited the Boston wholesale market in the morning, secured a large supply of flowers for funeral orders which he had to fill and completed making up the wreaths before committing suicide. He left several letters to his wife, his mother and intimate friends, saying farewell, and in them he stated that his nerves were high-strung and that he could not stand it any longer. He had never regained his normal health since returning from France and worried greatly over his constant loss in weight.

Mr. Kozminsky had a good business and was held in high regard by all who knew him. His brother, Harry Kozminsky, is also in the trade and conducts a store at 8 School street.

Funeral services were held June 15 from the Temple Mishkin Tefila, Moreland street, Roxbury, of which the deceased was a member, and many of his former business associates attended to pay him a last tribute of esteem.

W. N. C.

Mrs. Mary Grace Bell Higgins.

Mrs. Mary Grace Bell Higgins, mother of J. J. Higgins, Toronto, Ont., died June 4.

The floral offerings at the funeral included a sheaf of wheat and roses from the Parkdale store, a silver basket and roses from the Yonge street store, a pillow from the grandchildren, a basket of roses from George M. Geraghty; a broken column on a base and stand of white carnations, pansies, Easter lilies and Dunlop roses, from Dunlop's, Ltd.; a 35-inch cross from the Lailey Trimble employees, a gates-ajar design from the Retail Florists' Club; a wreath from George Yavner, the Arcade Florist; a spray from S. A. Frost, a spray from H. G. Dillemuth and many beautiful designs from other friends.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

WHAT you give for it is as important as the money you get.

NOT for a long while has business held on into the warm weather so long as this year.

NO one, in nineteen centuries, has improved upon the Golden Rule as a business maxim.

EVERYONE would like to see help more plentiful, though not so plentiful that the old bread-lines form.

CLEVELAND is another city to try cooperative advertising on the Milwaukee plan. Let the number grow.

SATISFACTION produced by plant shipments this year will bring orders when they are wanted much more than they are now.

CAN the public keep on spending when all the war savings have been drawn out of the bank and the Liberty bonds have been sold?

THESE first few days of summer weather are hot, but it will be a cold day when you get your money from accounts that are not cleaned up before vacation time.

THE season of hectic general business activity is at an end, with the probability that there will be no shortage of stock in this trade until after the election and the mums are out of the way.

THE recent rapid rise of foreign currencies has complicated the problems of those who buy abroad. A dollar will buy only half as many German marks as it did a while ago and only three-quarters as many francs.

"SAVE more and produce more," is not a bad slogan just now. The day will come when the 50-cent dollar you save now will buy 100 cents' worth, or somewhere near it. And increased production will bring that day the closer.

WHETHER you figure in comparison with what advertisers pay other trades' papers, or according to the size of circulation, or according to results obtained, the rates for space in The Review are exceedingly low. And advertisers know it as well as the publishers.

COLLECTIONS are slowing down; money will not be easy to get this summer. Do it now.

LIGHTENING of the traffic congestion on the railroads is reported, but it is still a long ways to normal conditions.

SKEPTICS cannot point out where the trade has lost through its publicity campaigns, local and national, but advocates can show where it has gained much.

ASIDE from the S. A. F. convention itself, Cleveland offers much inducement to the trade to visit that city in August. The Sixth—or is it Fourth?—City is as live a trade center as there is.

S. A. F. HALL NEARLY READY.

Actual reports from Cleveland refute the rumors to the effect that the building in which the S. A. F. will hold its meeting in August will not be completed in time for the convention. The progress of erection is fully up to schedule, which provides for completion July 15. The ground floor is already occupied, the second floor is done and the third floor, which is that to be occupied by the convention exhibits, is three-quarters completed. Since 400 men are working daily on the structure, there seems no doubt that the convention hall will be ready in ample time. These facts should set at rest all uncertainties in regard to convention quarters. Vice-president F. C. W. Brown, who is in close touch with the builders, states in positive tones that the building will be ready in ample time.

ACKNOWLEDGE ORDERS.

The shortage of help and the rush of business have been acute in the greenhouses this spring. Everyone makes allowances for these conditions. The man who places an order for stock waits a considerable length of time in patience, but when months pass without a response, who will deny his just reason in making more than ordinary complaint? The cases causing such complaint are numerous enough to merit the earnest attention of shippers of stock.

Even in a rush season, total disregard of a customer's communication is not excusable. The customer does not demand a lengthy reply nor always immediate shipment. But he is entitled to an acknowledgment of his order in case immediate shipment is not made. It is easy to have printed on a postcard a few lines, such as, "Your order of the —— has been received and will be given our prompt attention. Jones Greenhouses, Smithville." Even that and nothing more will satisfy the customer better than silence. He is, at least, certain that his letter has reached its destination. The slight cost of 1 cent per order is not too much for such an acknowledgment. Shippers will find it pays, in the long run, on a highly profitable basis. They should use some such simple, invariable method to acknowledge all orders.

SELF-ORGANIZATION.

"We need much more organization in both the nursery and the florists' business," remarked a prominent nurseryman recently.

At first thought that sounded a bit startling. For the nurserymen already have both their national organization and a goodly number of state associations. The florists' business as a whole has the S. A. F., with the new National Flower Growers' Association for the growers, the F. T. D. for the retailers and eighty or more local organizations, either state or city. There are coöperative publicity committees in an increasing number of cities and in some cities there are from three to five separate societies, each representing a different branch of the industry. The seedsmen have their A. S. T. A. and various local associations. In addition, there are those national societies, of cultural rather than business interest, which are devoted to the rose, the carnation, the chrysanthemum, the dahlia, the peony, the sweet pea, the gladiolus, the iris and the orchid. Doubtless this hasty survey has omitted some associations, but it at least indicates that, geographically, functionally and culturally, the business has a fair degree of integration, though there is still room for development.

But this is not what was meant by the remark quoted. The great need is definite business organization, so that each concern can know where it stands. We need business analysis, to replace business ignorance; accounting, to replace any-old-way bookkeeping. Not long ago The Review pointed out the way in which the income tax requirements had been and might further be a help to the trade in forcing its members to keep at least simple records of sales and purchases and to be able to furnish some slight analysis of the year's business. At other times, also, The Review has stressed the importance of cost accounting for both retailer and grower. More and more of such records and analysis are needed.

In the aftermath of Mothers' day and, to a less extent, of other holidays, there has been a more or less good-natured interchange of opinions among growers, wholesalers and retailers as to the cause of holiday high prices. No one can speak effectively on this subject unless he knows in some detail what his own costs are; he must know where he stands before he is ready to discuss the standing of others. And if the business as a whole is to become thoroughly organized, all the separate units must be sufficiently self-organized to be able to give the information necessary for the larger analysis.

LARGE SUPPLIES ASSURED.

It is apparent that there will be an abundance of cut flowers during the chrysanthemum season next autumn. Numerous growers report that they are planting to mums more bench space than ever before and those who offer young stock in the Classified Section of The Review make reports regarding the demand, like this:

> You may stop our chrysanthemum ad. We had more stock than we had any idea of selling, but they are all gone.—Bird Forrest, Waxahachie, Tex., June 5, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

W. M. T., Ind.—We do not know the article you mention; ask the manufacturer what it contains.

B. F. C., Ind.—Paunch manure would be valuable only when nothing better could be procured. Stack it up and let it rot before using.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

A market crowded with peonies from southern and western sources, with a heavy influx also of the same flowers from local plantings, made possible by two or three days of temperature soaring into the nineties, about describes the closing conditions of last week's business. With two or three exceptions, other flowers shared the distress caused by these conditions, and the bottom dropped out of the market. Many thousands of peonies went entirely to waste, almost all, of course, long-distance shipments. Nearby products sold fairly well, owing to their smaller quantity and better appearance. It is almost impossible to quote other than a general price for peonies, which may be said to be from 50 cents to $1 per dozen for the best and 50 cents to $2 per hundred for inferiors, with the street man the best customer for the latter grades.

Roses are in large supply and the quality of the hybrid teas is good for the time of year. Arrivals move slowly, however, even at concessions in price, and much stock is cleared only at sacrificial figures. American Beauty is showing summer quality and, although in short supply, commands only $20 per hundred for the best of the specials, with other grades in proportion. The movement of roses is, naturally, impeded by the peony influx and will be until the crop of the latter is gone, which will be soon, as practically early, midseason and late local stock is in together.

Carnations are too plentiful just now, and, in the main, of poor quality, showing the effect of the weather and the lateness of the season. The best bring as much as $2, the rest going at prices down to 50 cents per hundred, and even less when the street man is in wait for them.

Cattleyas are little affected by conditions, the supply being rather short and the demand for them good. About 25 cents to $1.25 per flower is the range of prices. A few gardenias are arriving, but of inferior quality. Lily of the valley is a leading item short in supply, and the best sprays have been bringing $20 per hundred, with inferior grades down to $4. Easter lilies are plentiful and bring from $3 to $6 per hundred. A few gladioli are arriving and move fairly well at 75 cents to $1.25 per dozen. Callas are in good supply at $1 to $1.50 per dozen.

There is an abundance of sweet peas, with much stock among arrivals weatherworn and burned. Flowers with good stems and otherwise desirable bring as much as $1.50 per hundred, with inferiors down to 25 cents and less. Iris is in great quantity, but its poor shipping and keeping properties prevent much of a price being obtained for it and much goes to waste. Other flowers of which the supply is large are snapdragons, delphiniums, stocks, calendulas, centaureas, cornflowers, pansies and daisies, the prices of which, under present conditions, are not remunerative.

Various Notes.

The business of the late Maurice Fuld is to be continued by his two sisters as soon as administration proceedings are concluded. It will probably be incorporated.

Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., will lecture under the auspices of the New York Botanical Garden, in the museum at the garden, June 26. His subject will be "Evergreens for American Gardens."

Harrie S. Mueller and Mrs. Mueller, of Wichita, Kan., were in the city last week and called at the S. A. F. offices. Mr. Mueller is Kansas state vice-president of the society. J. H. P.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The supply on the market last week was unusually heavy, with all lines of stock showing the effects of the advanced season. The demand was fairly good and, except for peonies Saturday, June 5, there was no glut. The only reason that there was a glut of these for the one day was the fact that the weather had been quite cool; then several days of extreme heat brought the early supply in all at once.

Roses are beginning to show the effects of the heat, but there are still fine ones to be had and these sell well. Carnations are fast passing from the stage. While there is still a large supply, there are not many really first-class ones to be had. The peony crop this year was not so satisfactory as it might have been. Numerous complaints of poor stock were heard, but some said they had never seen them finer.

Green goods continue to be scarce, but some shipments from the south have relieved the situation a great deal. The great mass of shrubbery is about gone. Gladioli are beginning to arrive from the south, but those that I have seen have not been first-class. There is plenty of all sorts of miscellaneous stock. The market is about what it usually is for this season, except that there is more stock moving.

A Peony Hint.

About twenty-five years ago I was going through the range of William K. Harris, at Philadelphia. Everyone in the east knows what a wizard he was for producing novelties in pots. The time was Easter and I saw several peonies in pots, with one or two blooms. He told me that he had just tried a few to see what they would do; that he had devoted no special care to them, but said that no doubt if properly handled they could be made a good pot novelty for the big flower day. Just now, when they are fresh in our minds, would it not be a good idea to give some thought to this? Why not try twenty-five or fifty? It seems to me that they could be potted in 6-inch or 8-inch pots or pans in the late fall, kept outdoors like any bulbous stock, and brought on. Just think what an 8-inch pan of either white or pink would be in full bloom, either at Christmas or Easter. It seems to me they are worth experimenting with.

The Advertising Campaign.

Saturday, June 5, the Associated Florists took advantage of the peony glut and distributed bunches of a hundred each in the interest of "Say It with Flowers" to the following institutions: The Church Home, Johns Hopkins, St. Joseph's, Mercy, Hebrew, Maryland General, University, St. Agnes, Franklin Square and U. S. Marine hospitals; to the editors of the morning and evening Sun, the News, the American and the Star; also to the president and vice-president of the National Union bank, both being much interested in the campaign now going on. They are always ready to offer suggestions or give advice. I might say that there are not two shrewder business men in the city than ex-Governor Goldsborough and Mr. Boisseau. It is such men as these that the campaign is attracting; big business men all over the city are beginning to take the florists' business seriously, a thing they never did before.

With an advertisement Monday and one Thursday, then the week-end box advertisement Friday afternoon, artistically made up for whatever occasion we want to draw the public's attention to, well written, and the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," prominently displayed in each one, an effect is beginning to be seen. Some of the florists who had their arrangements made for the year, those who were tied up by contracts, have not come in yet, but the campaign has demonstrated that this is the logical way to advertise and by the fall we shall be well under way.

Various Notes.

There is not much doubt that there will be a local organization of the National Flower Growers' Association here in the near future; this is the sort of work for them to carry on.

Baltimore will be represented by two fine new roses in the near future. Glorified La France is being brought out by F. R. Pierson and Mrs. John Cook by A. N. Pierson. There is no doubt that both of these are going to give a fine account of themselves. Tate.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Buyers in communities which are not saving daylight will do well to note that the Chicago market closes when it is only 4 p. m. with them. It is essential that orders be sent an hour earlier than heretofore.

It has been a remarkable week in the Chicago market. Seldom, if ever, have supplies been so large and it is a marvel that the waste of flowers has been so small. A wonderful business has been done, though there were four or five times as many flowers as the regular store trade and shipping demand could consume, with the result that most of the stock has had to be sold as best it could. Of course under such conditions average prices have been extremely low, but almost every wholesale house in the market reports that its sales thus far in June have been materially ahead of those of last year. The glut was later this season than in any recent year. Usually the heavy spring crop of roses is gone before the peonies come in. This year the roses and the peonies are at their heaviest simultaneously. With the roses it has been a case of taking advantage of any outlet, but the peonies which were in condition for storage have gone into the freezer and only the open flowers have had to be dealt with each day.

The high heat which began June 10, coming suddenly after a late, cool spring, has had the effect of making the rose buds small or else the flowers were too open to ship, but the roses still are above the average summer quality and offer splendid value. Shipping demand for roses continues excellent. The heat has hastened the end of the carnation season; many of the flowers are too poor for the shipping trade, which means that they have little value. Sweet peas also have retrograded rapidly; except for the outdoor sweet peas, there will be few in the market after this week. The cattleya, however, is the only really scarce flower. There are not many lilies, but there are so many other flowers their absence is little noted. Outdoor valley is gone, but there is plenty from inside.

We are now at the height of the local peony season, two weeks later than usual. The growers are cutting as rapidly as the available labor will permit. Some of the flowers must be sold immediately, but if of good quality the open flowers are preferred by the local retailers and it is possible to move huge quantities at from 25 to 50 cents per bunch. The cold storage warehouse is rapidly filling up. It is thought the local crop will be harvested by the end of the week.

One of the popular specialties is the annual delphinium now offered in a half dozen colors. Where the quality is good these are among the best selling flowers. There are considerable quantities of gladioli from indoors, but they do not enjoy special demand.

The green goods situation has been relieved by the arrival of new ferns.

The Annual Argument.

The overloaded condition of the market has resulted in the resumption of the ancient argument between the retail and the wholesale branches of the trade. The retailers are sharp in their criticism of those who seek irregular channels for moving the flood of stock, while the wholesalers assert that the average retailer makes less effort to sell flowers in times of large supply than he does when stock is scarce.

The department stores have resumed their flower sales and chains of drug stores, etc., have adopted the idea. It is said that one department store sold 15,000 dozens of peonies last Saturday, at a price below what was paid, the stock having been gathered from half a dozen wholesalers. In a chain of drug stores the sales of roses Saturday aggregated more than 65,000, while the week's sales approximated 140,000. The Allied Florists' Association had a splendid advertisement in the daily papers June 15, showing flowers pouring out of the greenhouses and emphasizing the low prices now prevailing, but it is impossible for the retail stores to quadruple all at once the quantity of their daily sales.

Standing of the Roses.

For a number of years there has been an increasingly apparent tendency toward reducing the number of varieties grown by the rose specialists. Beginning with the departure of Bride and Bridesmaid, or following experiments with some of the later varieties, the tendency has been to discard the less easy doers, with the result that for next season a great many rose growers will have nothing but pink on their places. Those who have other varieties than Premier, Columbia and Russell in most cases will have only small quantities of white and red. But Wendland & Keimel Co., of Elmhurst, do not believe

Club Meeting.

Despite the small attendance at the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club at the Randolph hotel, June 10, enthusiasm was high. President Waters presided, while Secretary Lautenschlager called the roll and Treasurer Weiss chimed in when money was mentioned. Five new members were added to the roll. Their names are: E. D. Burton, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co.; H. E. Larson, with the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau; R. P. Bohlander, grower, Hillside, Ill.; Frank Psenicka, grower, Gross Point, and Aram Nestjian, grower, Wilmette. One new name was proposed for membership, that of William M. Reid, of the A. L. Randall Co.

President Waters spoke for the garden committee in the absence of the chairman, saying that the committee had made wonderful progress with the distribution of books and literature which were received gratis.

Delinquent members are to be given one more chance to keep their membership in the club. If the letter which the secretary was authorized to send out to those in arrears does not bring them to account, they will be voted out at the next meeting. the rolls after the lapse of one year without payment.

The official train to Cleveland for florists who intend to go to the S. A. F. convention leaves the La Salle street station on the New York Central lines at 11 p. m., Monday, August 16. Each member of the club is appointed a member of the reception committee to greet visiting florists passing through Chicago to the convention. The club is going to send its bowling team, which won the championship at the convention in Detroit last year, to the Cleveland convention to again take the honors. A. J. Zech is in charge of the arrangements for the team.

By action taken at this meeting it was decided to discontinue meetings for the summer months. There will be no meetings during July, August and September. It was resolved to open the fall season October 7 and an appropriation of $250 was set aside for the use of the good of the club committee to arrange for a special program fitting for the occasion.

Various Notes.

Edward Meuret, of Park Ridge, who is vice-president of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has sold his greenhouses to Michael Leider, of Evanston, who will take possession July 1. The range consists of four houses, about 30,000 feet of glass, all in carnations, with young stock enough of the best varieties in the field to enable the new owner to replant at once. The purchase did not include the residence and its grounds, which Mr. Meuret will occupy until he closes one of several offers, after which he purposes taking the first long vacation he has had in years. Probably he will spend next winter in California. Mr. Meuret expects, in the course of time, to reënter the growing business on a much larger scale.

Joseph Ziska & Sons are steadily developing their manufacturing interests. The latest addition to the line is a white enameled wood easel. There is a big sale for such an article, because no florist nowadays thinks of sending out a large design without supporting it on one of these easels, which easily add many times their cost to the ef-

After a strenuous spring season C. J. Michelsen felt that he was entitled to a few days' vacation, so he left June 15 for the week-end visit with E. C. Amling at Sawtelle, Cal. Mr. Michelsen was accompanied by Rev. Bailey, Mr. Amling's son-in-law.

J. P. Degnan, of Henderson's Seed Store, plans to leave next week for a vacation in California, the first long respite from business he has had in many years. His headquarters will be at Fresno, where he has a brother, and he is arranging his affairs so that his absence will be indefinite.

It is reported that the Albert F. Amling Co., Maywood, thinks so highly of Columbia rose that more than half the space in the big ranges has been planted to this one variety for next season.

H. C. Wendland returned June 10 from his trip to the Pacific coast. He spent several days with E. C. Amling at Sawtelle, a suburb of Los Angeles, and enjoyed his visit thoroughly, but Mr. Wendland is not of the numerous Chicago florists who, after one trip to the coast, are restless to remove there; he likes Chicago just as well as he did before.

A new chauffeur for C. A. Samuelson, Inc., went out of his direct route Sunday morning, with the result that he has had difficulty explaining the accident which followed. The White truck was badly battered. Al Fisher's truck also is in the repair shop as the result of a collision.

Bassett & Washburn say that, if the demand for young stock of chrysanthemums is any indication, there will be a flood of flowers in the fall.

Peterson Nursery began cutting peonies June 14.

August Lange manages to be in the market for a short time each day, although he has been suffering for three weeks with lumbago.

There was a heavy storm west of town June 13. Considerable glass was broken at Vaughan's Greenhouses.

Paul Klingsporn says that, in spite of the low average prices now prevailing in this market, the sales of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association thus far in the month have run about double what they were in the same days of June last year.

C. J. Michelsen reached the goal of his desire June 9.

A. C. Kohlbrand was taken ill during the heat wave last week and spent several days under the doctor's care.

Visitors.

W. Cleveland Johnson, of Memphis, spent two days here last week on business connected with the equipment of the new store his concern will open in the late summer. It will be one of the finest in the south.

Mrs. Minnie Lilley Copeland, proprietor of the Marion Greenhouses, Marion, Ill., stopped in Chicago on her way home from a twelve days' trip through the east.

Mr. Bromeil, representing the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, was here last week on an errand connected with the new store to be opened in the autumn. He was specially interested in iceboxes and refrigerating machines and visited a number of florists here to examine their equipment and see what their experience has been with it.

Joseph Frisch, of Frisch Bros., Antigo, Wis., visited Chicago June 11, to get better acquainted with his source of supply and to exchange ideas with fellow florists.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The week has been one of decided activity, with plenty of flowers at low prices. The height of the peony season is past. While they will never recover lost ground, they are commencing to sell at moderate prices. The market is changing rapidly now. The supply of carnations is declining. There are fewer good roses in proportion to the poor ones. Outdoor sweet peas, mostly frame-grown, are coming in more freely. Outdoor delphiniums have arrived; so have sprays of climbing roses.

Weddings, commencements, children's day in the churches, occasions of joy and occasions of sadness have accelerated the wheels of business with a final whirl before they run slowly for the summer. There is no denying that the regular business is rapidly declining; it is only the special orders that keep things going.

The peony has been at its best for weeks, putting everything else in the shade, carnations going into a particularly dark corner, while lilies had a dickens of a time. Good judges say that the local peony crop yielded from ten to twenty-five per cent of its value had it been in time.

A Suggestion.

A friend writes that he has read that the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will hold a great rose show next April, with prizes amounting to $6,000, and suggests that the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, with its vast wealth, ought to do something of the sort here. The suggestion is a good one, well worth the careful consideration of the P. H. S. executive council. It is important that the society do something for horticulture. The shot fired by James G. Scott, that the society was thinking of having a garden nearly a hundred years ago, went home.

A garden or a rose show, or something—only let it be something.

The Independent Grower.

The independent grower is at once the blessing and the bane of the cut flower market. The blessing because he broadens the field; the bane because he cuts prices. The independent grower is a hard-working, illogical, unbusinesslike sort of a chap, especially created for the purpose of worrying the wholesaler when he wages guerrilla warfare for eight months out of every twelve. A wholesaler once conceived the brilliant scheme of getting all the independent growers together within four walls—no, not in a prison, just a market. The independent growers all agreed to the plan, put up their money, then slipped away to try to get ahead of the other fellow. The independent grower is the warm friend of the retailer. He will take any amount of trouble for one ignorant of the meaning of the phrase fifty-fifty. The mere fact that so-and-so wants his stock is sufficient glory. Price and loss of time on a special order signify little.

The greatest assets of the independent grower are cultural skill and enthusiasm. The greatest liabilities are absolute ignorance of market conditions and childlike simplicity.

Were the wholesalers able to control all the stock arriving on the market, they would put the business on a better footing and stabilize prices. Desirable as would be this result, it is not likely to be attained. The reason is that the independent growers either receive just enough local support to keep them away from the wholesalers, or they are specialists commanding a certain amount of support from the retailers. With few exceptions, the independent growers work harder for less money than any other branch of the profession. For its advancement, no other branch has done so much.

The Party at Buena.

W. F. Lacroix and Mrs. Lacroix gave a great party at their home at Buena, N. J., Sunday, June 13. Their guests were all the boys and girls at Niessen's, some forty in number. Leo Niessen wanted to go. He asked his friend W. F. Lacroix why it was that he was never asked to his annual picnic. Mr. Lacroix politely but firmly declined. "It is just for the boys," he said.

The party left in a special car attached to the 9 o'clock train for Atlantic City on the West Jersey electric. A special stop was made at Buena, where Mr. Lacroix met them and drove them over to his famous lilac farm. Then there were sports and a ball game and a glorious dinner and speeches and a presentation to Mr. Lacroix and so many more things that cannot be quickly told that for further details you must go to the girls and boys at Niessen's.

June 23 the Baker Floral & Seed Co., operating the pioneer greenhouse establishment of eastern Oregon, changes hands, the former owner, Ira B. Sturges, retiring after twenty-three years in business. The new owners, Wendt & Bockenkamp, will continue to operate under the old name. William Wendt is a lifelong resident of Baker, always keenly interested in floriculture as an amateur. Henry H. Bockenkamp is a practical florist of fifteen years' experience in the east and northwest. He recently has been located at Roxbury, Mass.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Following Memorial day the usual slump occurred and practically nothing but funeral work was in demand for a few days. A number of weddings later in the week helped to make the average fairly good. The carnation growers have been bringing in large quantities of stock which was not fit to ship, but one or two growers had good stock and, although they asked high prices, it filled a gap and was quickly taken by the wholesalers, who have had no shipping stock.

In roses much the same conditions exist and extra long-distance shipments had to be stopped. Gladioli, Shasta daisies, cornflowers and daisies were about the only shipping items, but there were good snapdragons, delphiniums, dahlias and other showy stock, which made a good display in the local windows.

Greens are a little on the scarce side; that is, stock that is fit to ship. Plumosus now arriving is poor and short. There are no pot plants outside of a few hydrangeas and, as these are now in bloom in gardens everywhere, the demand is poor. Ferns and palms continue high in price and are of fair quality.

Various Notes.

H. N. Gage, of the H. N. Gage Co., was missed from the market last week, owing to an injury to his knee. He was at the beach and, when starting to run, strained a tendon, which has been painful, but everyone hopes not serious.

E. Vogel, manager of the floral department for Paul J. Howard, says that they are well satisfied with the progress made at their new location at Seventh and Union. The landscape department is quite busy.

Wedding business started in well with Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson this month, Albert Goldenson reporting five weddings in one day. Morris Goldenson has just returned from a trip to Bear lake, but says that the rainbows are not biting.

Another addition to the local seedsmen is the new firm of R. G. Fraser & Sons, 954 South Grand avenue, Pasadena. The Frasers, father and son, have had charge of the famous Busch gardens for many years and have developed fine strains of flower seeds used by florists. To distinguish these from seeds purchased on the open market, they will send them out under the name of Suntested seeds. They have some particularly fine strains of cineraria, primula, cyclamen, aster, delphinium and others. A specialty will also be made of the showy Nemesia strumosa, an annual that reaches its greatest beauty in southern California. The new firm starts with everything in its favor and its success seems assured, for the demand for flower seeds of proven quality was never greater than now.

Miss Viola Dieterich, younger daughter of J. Dieterich, was married June 9 to Emil Brinkmeyer. Mr. Brinkmeyer was formerly connected with Mr. Dieterich in his nursery at Montebello. After serving overseas with the A. E. F. he returned to this country and went into the automobile business. He has now sold out this and will again be associated with his father-in-law, having charge of the new nursery project at Wintersburg. Both young people are well known and all their friends join in wishing them the happiness due them.

Mrs. L. Brillie, who operates the art and floral shop at San Bernardino, surprised some of her friends June 2, when she was married, or at least they were

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The supply of flowers has remained about the same, but more business has developed, thus cutting down the surplus considerably. The extra call for stock can be traced largely to school closings. The ban has been lifted locally on the presentation of flowers to the graduates and the parents, friends and relatives seem to be particularly generous in their expenditures for floral offerings this year. In addition to this special demand, June weddings are coming thick and fast and several large funerals in the last week still further stimulated the call for flowers. On the whole, business is reported holding up better than usual for this time of the year. However, with the market well supplied with stock, prices are inclined to fluctuate from day to day, or even from hour to hour. This applies particularly to the lower grades of stock. Notwithstanding the cheapness of the poorer grades, the strongest call is for first-class offerings. These clean up first at rather stiff prices, considering the difficulty experienced later in the day in disposing of medium and poor stock.

Roses are due to go off crop a little, but, as yet, the daily offerings have not shown much decrease, with the exception of Ulrich Brunner. This variety is not quite so plentiful as it was for several weeks and Columbia may be a little less in evidence also. Carnations are holding on with about the same degree of persistence as roses. It is now stated that the supply will continue heavy for about another month.

Large-flowering gladioli constitute an important item. They are at the height of their season in every respect, supply, demand and quality. Dahlias are beginning to appear and the limited supply is easily cleaned up. Stocks, marigolds and other outdoor stock leave nothing to be desired in the way of variety.

Orchids come nearer being on the short side of the market than anything else, on account of their big call for June wedding bouquets. A nice cut of lily of the valley is welcome, the supply having been almost negligible a good part of the time in the last year or two.

Various Notes.

There has been a movement among the local florists for Sunday closing during the summer months, but no concerted action has been arrived at. At present Podesta & Baldocchi are closing all day Sundays, some of the others are closing at noon, while others continue to remain open all day the same as usual. In the Powell street neighborhood no one seems to see fit to close at noon unless all will do so. The matter has been much discussed, but meanwhile the stores remain open all day.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. report a rush of business on weddings and graduations. They had six wedding bouquets a few days ago and a rush of school work. Frank D. Pelicano did his part by making fifty Dolly Varden bouquets on a single order. Vacations are starting at this establishment. Charles Dietzius is the first to go. He will spend two weeks in the Yosemite valley. Miss Kendall, who was with Pelicano, Rossi & Co. for seven years, left recently to be married to Harry Christiansen, formerly a lieutenant in the army.

Fred Bertrand reports business all that can be desired at the stand in the Palace hotel, which he took over a few days ago. Business is also keeping up well at the MacRorie-McLaren Co. store on Powell street, of which he still has the management. All the employees of these two places get a vacation. At present A. Taylor is spending eight or ten days in the southern part of the state.

Albert O. Stein's staff is not finding times dull by any means while he is away on a vacation. Patrick Orr says that they have had a nice wedding decoration every day so far in June and have had a number of large decorations in connection with the insurance convention and assemblage of dry goods men in this city. Two large banquet decorations came the same night. Meanwhile there has also been much funeral work, making the early part of June a rush time instead of marking the beginning of the summer lull.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee evidently believes in cutting off from business entirely when she goes on a vacation. She and her family left on a camping expedition in the redwoods of Humboldt county June 3 and were gone a week without the staff at the store hearing a word from them. The girls, as she calls her helpers, reported business keeping up well.

Charles Stappenbeck, of the American Florist store, on Polk street, has no complaints to make about business, as his store supplies a year-around demand for flowers. He still has a fine cut of roses and has been showing some good early dahlias.

J. A. Axell is handling a fine cut of large gladioli from E. S. Biggard, of Santa Cruz, Cal., and is having good success with assorted colored gladioli from a local grower. Ferrari Bros. are sending in a nice lot of lily of the valley. Mr. Axell says business is holding up so well that he has had to postpone a trip east, which he had hoped to make this month.

Henry Avansino, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., says that extra demand helped to relieve the market last week, large quantities of stock being used for school affairs.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is having a big call for Japanese tubs and baskets. The demand from the east is particularly strong, this firm reports.

fested material without injury to the plants.

"By adherence to a definite control program, involving any of the above cited measures, either singly or in combination, the insect can be readily controlled.

"In case of a very light infestation daily picking of gall-infested leaves will hold the pest in check. Should this practice prove ineffective, nightly fumigation for a period of two or three weeks may be resorted to.

"When a severe infestation is encountered the most heavily infested plants should be taken out immediately and burned. This should then be followed by either fumigation or spraying as outlined below.

Fumigate Every Night.

"Fumigate every night, with either nicotine papers or hydrocyanic acid gas, for a period of at least six weeks. This will kill all the adults that emerge during such a period and at the same time will prevent the further laying of eggs for future generations. The dosage need not be very heavy in either case. When nicotine papers are used one sheet to every 1,000 cubic feet of space will suffice. If hydrocyanic acid gas is employed, one-eighth to one-fourth ounce per thousand cubic feet will kill all of the adults. The use of hydrocyanic acid gas is not recommended unless in the hands of a competent fumigator, owing to its deadly poisonous effects. Too much emphasis can not be laid on the fact that the fumigation must be set off after midnight to be effective. It is preferable to start the generation between the hours of 12:30 a. m. and 2 a. m. Any fumigation done before midnight would be useless, for it has been pointed out that the adult does not emerge until after midnight. On the other hand, if it is started later than 2 a. m. many adults will have emerged and laid their eggs.

"In case fumigation is not advisable, especially where chrysanthemum plants are isolated or when other varieties of plants are present in the houses, spraying is recommended. This must be done consistently for a period of four to six weeks, a forty per cent solution of nicotine sulphate extract diluted (1-800) being used, and soap added at the rate of one-half to one ounce per gallon of solution. The application should be made late in the afternoon in order that the best results may be obtained. In this manner practically all adults can be killed at the time of emergence and any eggs present will be destroyed.

Preventive Measures.

"It has been proved that the means of disseminating this insect has been the shipment of infested chrysanthemums, both plants and cuttings. It is therefore imperative that only clean plants and cuttings be brought into commercial houses where chrysanthemums are growing or to be grown. Growers should carefully examine all chrysanthemums received and see that all material intended for shipment or distribution is free from this pest.

"As a preventive measure, it is recommended that cuttings be dipped in the following solution at the time they are taken:

Nicotine sulphate, forty per cent	part 1
Water	parts 800
Laundry soap	ounce per gallon ½-1

"Another satisfactory method of securing chrysanthemum cuttings free from midge when the previous season's stock has been infested is to plant the stocks in benches or coldframes directly after the season's crop has been removed. This should then be followed by thorough treatment with a mixture consisting of equal parts of dry or air-slaked lime and tobacco dust. It is advisable to keep all new growth covered with the mixture until further operations in the spring."

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—The peony beds of Charles Billau were damaged to the extent of more than $100 recently by vandals. One of the bushes that was destroyed was a variety for which Mr. Billau has waited for more than two years for a bloom in order to identify it.

McCRAY

REFRIGERATORS FOR ALL PURPOSES

And, for the Floral Trade in Particular

THE McCray Refrigerator is the favorite with the floral trade. Many successful Florists have used McCray Refrigerators for years and years with perfect satisfaction. They have unbounded confidence in the refrigerator which bears the name "McCray" for it stands for quality and unequalled service.

Viewed solely from the selling end, the McCray has superior qualities—for it aids in selling flowers and at the same time puts a stop to waste from spoilage. The various compartments are of different sizes and accomodate the different lengths of cut flowers.

Both the exterior and the interior of the McCray Florist Refrigerators are handsomely made and easy to keep clean. You may have either heavy plate mirror or white enamel for the interior lining. The exterior may be of any finish to match your woodwork or fixtures.

There is a McCray built to suit your requirements. The styles illustrated here are designed for Florists, but this is not our complete line. Our Catalog No. 74 shows many more refrigerators. Get a copy of this Catalog—it will tell you more about the McCray and what it will mean to your business.

Send for Catalog—Let us send you a catalog that describes a great variety of designs—one to suit every requirement: No. 74 for Florists; No. 71 for Grocers and Delicatessens; No. 63 for Meat Markets and General Stores; No. 95 for Residences; No. 52 for Hotels and Restaurants.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, B. G. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

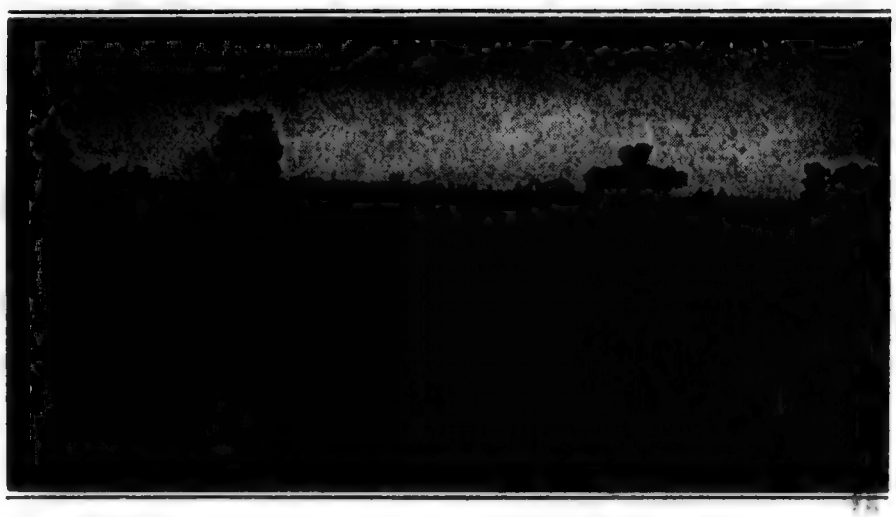
THE British seed trade is facing an increase in postage rates that nearly doubles the cost of sending packages weighing between four and sixteen ounces. Some of the larger firms reckon the extra expense on catalogues and small seed orders at $10,000 a year.

IN numbers and in interest the convention of the American Seed Trade Association at Milwaukee next week bids fair to set a high mark. The Hotel Pfister, which is headquarters, has been booked up on the convention dates for two weeks and other hotels are rapidly being filled.

ONION SEED IN CANARIES.

The United States consul at Teneriffe reports that, according to growing and exporting interests, the production of onion seed this year will be small. Plantings last October for the crop to be harvested this summer were fifty per cent smaller than a year previous, owing to lack of contracts and the high prices of seed onions. Exports to the United States and Porto Rico in 1919 amounted to 72,000 pounds. The weather has so far been favorable and should it continue so the yield should be proportionally though not actually larger than last year.

BULBS AT SANTA CRUZ.



The harvesting of the freesia bulb crop in the Santa Cruz bulb-growing district of California has begun some three weeks later than last season, which means later deliveries. Many patches of bulbs will not be ready to dig until July, all due to the late spring rains. The crop will run about one-third of normal, or about one-half of last season. The bulbs are small, but of excellent quality. Paper Whites and daffodils prove to be a fine crop this season, with early delivery. Bulbs of Calla æthiopica are practically unobtainable at any price. Growers are offering a limited quantity of baby gladiolus bulbs.

SEED CROPS IN CALIFORNIA.

The unusually low precipitation in California last winter is given as the principal cause for the backward condition of vegetable seed crops in that state. In the north-central section of the state the seed planted in many fields did not germinate until March, when there was a fair rainfall. As a result the crops are about one to two months late, and the plants are quite small for this time of the season.

The root crop seeds are reported to have been damaged most, especially beet, radish and onion. Lettuce also is in poor condition and because of the lateness of the crop normal yields cannot be expected. Growers in the San Juan valley and the Delta section report that crops generally are in only fair condition because of the deficiency of moisture and, as practically no rain can be expected during the rest of the growing season, the growers are anticipating light yields with possible failures on some crops.

HENRY F. MICHELL CO., 518 Market St, Phila.

In the southern part of the state the rainfall has been more nearly normal and the late planted seed crops which are grown in that section have been put out under favorable conditions. The acreage of seed beans has been reduced considerably from that of 1919 because of poor demand and prices that are unsatisfactory to growers. A somewhat larger acreage of tomato is reported by growers in this section and most of the plants have been transplanted to the open fields.

Labor in most sections of the state is scarce and not entirely satisfactory. High wages are being paid at present and growers are of the opinion that wages will be higher as the season advances.

BRITON VIEWS DUTCH BULBS.

Orders Fewer.

First-hand view of conditions in Holland leads the representative of a British firm to write regarding the bulb situation in the following terms:

"America and Scandinavia have bought very much less than last year. There is, of course, 'nothing doing' in Russia, Austria and Germany, and I understand that importation of bulbs into France has been stopped. In any case, with the franc at its present value, France cannot buy normal quantities.

"Britain was the brightest spot on the Dutchman's horizon, and he is feeling exceedingly ill-used because we refuse to contribute as heavily as last year towards his 'war losses' and his losses on change in other countries. But for the moderate amount of encouragement he has received in the way of orders from England, he would, by this time, have capitulated to our terms or have met us handsomely. Even so, a considerable number of firms with wide interests in British trade seem to me to be ready to throw the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association over and to damn the consequences.

"There appears to be a strong feeling that the combination of exporters will not outlast the present year. So well founded does this seem to be that

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy Seed

No.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seed carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE. The enormous flowers are of perfect form and of great substance. Petals overlapped and undulating. The rich colorings and markings are widely varied, some flowers being almost self-colored. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

New Early-Flowering or Winter-Blooming

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant.

No.

4. JOVE. Lower petals violet, upper ones almost white.
5. MARS CORNFLOWER. Blue.
6. NORTH POLE. Pure snow white.
7. WORDEN. Quite black.
8. HELIOS. Pure yellow.
14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.

No.

15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. A mixture of the nine preceding colors and other shades.

500 seeds, 25c; 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; oz., $7.50.

19. TRIMARDEAU GIANT PANSIES. Very showy class of vigorous, compact growth, flowers of enormous size, a fine mixture, 1000 seeds, 30c; 4000 seeds, $1.00; ¼ oz., $1.35; ½ oz., $2.50; 1 oz., $5.00.
22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are 3-inch. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, medium or dark mixtures. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.
24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW is undoubtedly the largest flowered Pansy in the world; the immense flowers are of circular form. A beautiful collection of colors and markings. 1000 seeds, 40c; ¼ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.
26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 6 or 7 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well. 1000 seeds, 40c; ¼ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.

No.

28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type, the curled wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems, and its ability to stand the hot, dry weather, makes it a favorite for cut flowers. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.
30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous, the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.
32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.
34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown, bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.
36. TRIUMPH OF GIANT. Remarkably beautiful. The imposing five-spotted flowers on long, vigorous stalks surmount the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size, perfectly round and of unusual substance. The individual petals are very broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double, the border of every petal being conspicuously curled. The plants are of a robust growth and form compact bushes of a round shape. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.
40. GIANT BATH'S EMPRESS. The finest of fancy English Pansies. Flowers are very large, mostly frilled and blotched and of great substance and the colors are brilliant and varied. 1000 seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; ½ oz., $3.75; 1 oz., $7.50.
70. ORCHID-FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois. 1000 seeds, 35c; ⅛ oz., 90c; ¼ oz., $1.65; ½ oz., $3.00; 1 oz., $6.00.

more than one firm of importance, while expressing their intention to adhere to the association's rules, are prepared to make proposals in the way of discounts and terms, to come into operation January 1, 1921, which will be retrospective and which are such as will enable them to compete with the 'free traders.'

Ample Supply.

"Except in breeder tulips, there is almost entire absence of speculation among the Dutch bulb growers. At this time last year Haarlem was a hotbed of gambling and feverish buying. This year there is practically nothing doing. There is only a moderate attendance at the green sales, except when breeders are on the list. This state of affairs has largely been brought about by the absence of competition among exporters for stocks, and this in turn is due to the British boycott coming on top of the reduced orders from America and Scandinavia.

"Stocks are ample and in better condition than I have seen them for many years. There may not be large stocks of some of the commoner sorts, such as were used for manufacturing purposes during the war, but generally speaking there are ample supplies. There is little disease among hyacinths, or 'fire' among tulips, and the weather has been ideal for the production of plenty of

JELLE ROOS EXPANDS.

The following is from Jelle Roos, who recently removed from Milton, Mass., to Concord:

"Owing to the enormous increase in my business, I was obliged to look for a larger farm. I am now pleased to advise that I was successful in obtaining a 75-acre farm in Concord, Mass. The soil on this farm is of the best and I expect it will produce a fine crop of bulbs next fall. I take this opportunity to advise you that I am much pleased with the results obtained this year through the Florists' Review."

MANTHEY BUYS PROPERTY.

Charles Manthey, owner of Manthey's Seed Store, 208 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, O., became June 10 the owner of the property at that location, having arranged for its purchase on a perpetual lease basis.

Mr. Manthey, who has occupied the premises for six years, bought the property on the basis of a valuation of $35,000, the lot being 16x60 feet. The improvement is a 5-story stone front. The holding belonged to W. Roe Smith, of College Hill.

Numerous changes are to be made by Mr. Manthey to provide larger quarters. The lift, now within the building, is to be located on the north line. It is said the prospective rerouting of street cars in the business district, particularly at Fourth and Main streets, figured in arriving at a valuation of the holding.

SOUTHERN ASSOCIATION.

Elects Officers.

The second annual convention of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, at Jacksonville, Fla., June 7 to 9, of which a preliminary report appeared in The Review of last week, was a distinct success, although a heavy rain fell during the day of its opening session. In the election of officers the final day of the convention the first vice-president was made president and the secretary-treasurer was reëlected. The result of the election was as follows: President, R. B. Buchanan, Memphis, Tenn.; first vice-president, Joseph Steckler, New Orleans, La.; second vice-president, D. R. Mayo, Knoxville, Tenn., and secretary-treasurer, Frank S. Love, Montgomery, Ala.

The executive committee consists of the following: L. H. Mixson, Dick O'Bannon, E. A. Martin and the president and secretary.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society Meets.

Because of the backwardness of the present outdoor flower season, the Newport Horticultural Society at its regular meeting Tuesday evening, June 8, decided to postpone its annual June exhibition, which had been announced for June 24 and 25, until July 1 and 2, at the Newport beach.

There was a better attendance than for some time past and considerable important business was transacted. V. A. Vanicek, of the Rhode Island Nurseries, and E. Kempenaar, of Kempenaar & Christensen, were appointed delegates to represent the society at a meeting to be held at New York and were authorized to enter the protest of the society against Quarantine No. 37.

Various Notes.

Oscar Schultz had a big wedding decoration last week. He reports an exceptionally busy season.

Joseph L. Barnitt, Jr., salesman with A. T. Bunyard, of New York, was recently married in that city. He will be at Mr. Bunyard's branch store here for the summer.

C. S. Ritchie had the church and house decorations for the Brown-Knut wedding last week.

Gardenias have been selling as low as $25 per hundred recently. This is said to be the lowest retail price ever known in this city for these blooms.

Don't Forget It

Confidence is a firm's best asset and it certainly applies to our business in a very large degree.

We can say, however, without fear of contradiction, that no one has ever felt that their confidence was misplaced when they consigned their flowers to us. Consign that next shipment to us and acquaint yourself with our service.

Special opportunity for a couple of good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is greater than our supply.

CLEVELAND, O.

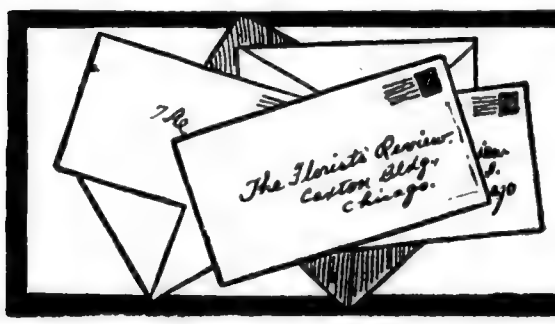
The Market.

The market last week was rather slow except for some weddings and special sales. White roses and lilies of the valley have been in great demand; in fact, there seem to be more weddings this year than ever before, in spite of the high cost of living. Peonies are beginning to arrive in large quantities and the price is dropping, as the supply greatly exceeds the demand at present. Bachelor's buttons, calendulas, myosotis, swainsona, gypsophila and other odd flowers have been moving well. Roses have been selling and are still of good quality, but carnations are poorer every day.

It would be to the advantage of many retailers if they would have more special sales now that the supply is plentiful and prices low; the few who have them are benefiting by creating a bigger demand during the dull season.

Various Notes.

Walter Priest, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., has purchased a new Cole touring car.



George Wilhelmy has installed a beautiful electric fountain at his home in Lakewood, which shows up in the evening to good advantage, with its many colored lights.

There was a meeting of the advertising committee and the wholesalers at the Hollenden hotel, Thursday afternoon, June 10, to discuss the future of the newly tried advertising fund. It was tried during the month of May and proved a great success, with only about a half dozen objectors.

The Cleveland Cut Flower Co. has increased its capitalization from $10,000 to $250,000.

Ella Grant Wilson, of the Floral Syndicate, has started on a trip which will last to August 4, including Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Yellowstone Park, Portland, Crater Lake, Oakland, Santa Cruz, Menlo Park, Los Angeles, Pasadena, San Diego, Grand Canyon, Salt Lake City and Richmond, Ind.

The architect for the Jones-Russell Co. was at Chicago last week arranging some of the special features of the new store to be opened in the autumn in the Euclid avenue theater building, which is to be second to none, not only in Cleveland but in the country. The display and storage refrigerators are to be handled by an ice-making machine.

The "McCallum" Wall Pocket

Correctly designed and well made—meets the demand for a serviceable wall receptacle for flowers, vines, sprays, etc. A popular number in the complete line of McCallum reed and willow baskets. They're right because they are made right in our own factory by highly skilled basket weavers.

No. 331—This split reed wall pocket or basket measures 16 inches high; opening width 6 inches. Price, finished in two-tone, $20.50 per dozen, including tin container.

The Market.

Business was especially good last week, following the Memorial day trade, which was the largest ever experienced in this city and vicinity. Funerals have been numerous, while an unusual number of June weddings has kept things moving with considerable activity. A late spring, which has retarded outdoor flowers, has affected materially the general business conditions. Notwithstanding the great demand, however, prices have dropped noticeably. Carnations, the last offerings, have been quoted at $2 to $4 per hundred; roses, $2 to $20; sweet peas, $1 and $2; gladioli, $10 to $15; lilies, $8 to $12, and marguerites, $2.

Various Notes.

The Quidnick Greenhouses, of Quidnick, are preparing to open a retail store at Arctic.

Ed Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., was confined to his house last week by sickness.

Sweeney Bros. have added a new automobile truck to their delivery department.

F. Buffington, of Fall River, was a business visitor in this city last week. He reports preparations for the erection of a new greenhouse.

J. J. Kelley, of Valley Falls, made a trip to Boston last week.

H. Popkin, proprietor of the establishment conducted under the name of Smith the Florist, at 25 Washington street, has taken a store farther up the street and will remove thereto in a few days.

The Park Avenue Greenhouses have been sold to A. & E. Lafazia, proprietors of the Reservoir Avenue Greenhouses, which they plan to alter extensively.

Hoffman, of Pawtucket, has been doing a big business on a special offer of a dozen mixed bedding plants for $1.

Sweeney Bros. are making improvements in their store, 446 Cranston street.

Phillips the Florist, 124 Academy avenue, reports an unusually heavy run of funeral work last week.

William A. Bowers, 134 Washington street, has added a new automobile to his delivery department.

Wilfred H. Flye and Simon Colitz, of Woonsocket, are serving as jurors in the Superior court for Providence county.

Byron O. Rawson, who for eight years was bookkeeper for the W. E. Barrett Co., died suddenly May 28 in his seventy-fourth year, from heart failure. He was born at Fall River, Mass., in 1846, and in the early eighties was employed by the W. E. Barrett Co.

James F. Jordan, of Cranston, is going to give up the greenhouse business and will convert his realty holdings into house lots. W. H. M.

CATERING TO COMMENCEMENTS.

Adds to June Business.

Despite the edicts of boards of education in some towns forbidding flowers at commencements, there are year after year big orders for florists at the time of graduation exercises. For no matter what rules are enforced at public schools, commencement time at private schools and at colleges and universities is accompanied by many gifts of flowers to the sweet girl graduates. Perhaps this year the public school edicts will not be so rigid in their exclusion of flowers, for the old reason for these promulgations—that the bricklayer's or the plumber's daughter would be embarrassed by the bountiful floral gifts received by the lawyer's or doctor's daughter—seems to be lacking at present; indeed, the shoe appears to be on the other foot.

Moreover, the abundance and low prices of flowers at this time stimulate the retailer to increased endeavors for business. At the prices at which he is able to make purchases at the present time the retailer finds much encouragement for undertaking to move larger quantities of stock. To this end the graduating days which are beginning this week and will continue during the remainder of the month offer ready and ample occasion.

As a means of increasing commencement business, the florist puts his chief reliance on advertising. He should, of course, make use of that ever-present selling aid, the show window, and he may, if he deems it a profitable method in his particular case, distribute folders, but the local newspaper, after all, is the prime agent in stimulating purchases of floral gifts for the girl graduates.

Efforts Increase Volume.

The apparent freedom with which the public has disbursed the funds from its pocketbook during the last winter and spring, which, despite reports, gives little sign of abating, makes the chances of good commencement business so favorable that a larger number of florists are making efforts to that end than have done so in years past. The necessity of maintaining a greater volume of sales to meet the heavy overhead which advanced costs have caused prompts retailers, also, to take advantage of whatever occasion presents itself for pushing flowers. This has already been seen in the manner in which the various trade days have been promoted in the past season, the results of which have been most striking.

In addition to the efforts of individual retailers to promote the use of flowers for commencements, some of the cities in which there are coöperative advertising campaigns are doing good work by means of liberal advertising space in their local papers. Two of their advertisements are reproduced on this page, one of the Baltimore and one of the Chicago florists. These appeared in the first half of the month, to give time for the suggestion to sink in. This week and next are the big ones of the month, when florists will do the greater part of their graduating day business. Altogether it appears to be a quite respectable total, especially where florists have devoted energy and some money to obtain it.

Baltimore's Commencement Ad.

MEASURING SALES EFFORTS.

Apropos of profit-sharing and bonus plans, one might make mention of a device in the Delaware avenue store of W. J. Palmer & Son, at Buffalo, for the purpose of stimulating the interest of the salesmen in the store. A chart on the wall of the office indicates the progress of sales. There is a red line for each salesman, which advances a space for a certain amount of sales. The comparative length of the parallel red lines indicates who is leading and how close the other salesmen are on his heels. The surprising fact is that they are all so close to one another that there is always possibility of one passing another; no one is outdistanced. Bonuses in proportion to the size of the individual sales are awarded and they are generous enough to make competition keen. At the same time the rules of the contest are liberal enough to encourage coöperation among the salesmen, so that this important factor does not suffer in the race.

The mechanical bar chart which W. J. Palmer & Son use is about two feet long and five or six inches high, so that it can hang in an accessible place on the office wall. Though not originally designed just for this purpose, its method of spacing and other arrangement make it easily adapted for such use.

ADVERTISING TO AD MEN.

When Vincent J. Gorly goes to an advertising men's convention he is still a florist, and when he advertises, he advertises flowers. Not all of his advertising is in the St. Louis newspapers in behalf of the firm of Grimm & Gorly—he is busy advertising flowers in general for the benefit of all florists.

He was busy at Indianapolis last week, when he attended the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. He presented to the advertising men in session there a resolution adopting the cape jasmine as the official convention flower of the association. Since the advertising men's convention falls in the first part of June, this flower

The Self-Satisfied Self-Seller

Know the difference between being SATISFIED and being CONTENT?
One means a man is CONTENT with things just as they are. To make much of a change means changing too much, which is too bothersome to bother with.

The other kind of a man is SATISFIED to be content and happy with the best he can do now; but never content to STAY SATISFIED with the things that are not satisfactory.

We used to have one of the first kind working for us.
He had calluses on his thumbs, sticking them in his vest, and telling all of us, especially Jimmy, the Hybrid Hibernian, what a wonderful fellow he was.
If he WAS, he certainly WASN'T when he WAS with us.
That's why he is now WUZZING elsewhere.

Take it from your Uncle George, if you have any SATISFIED chaps working for you, work them off. Their calyx is split.

Which little bit of gratuitous moralizing may or may not have anything to do with both of our F. T. D. orders.

seems highly appropriate. Mr. Gorly's resolution read as follows:

Whereas, It is fitting and becoming that beauty in all its forms be encouraged, and
Whereas, The advertising fraternity has recognized that messages of the heart are often conveyed in their most sacred relation by an appeal through the love of flowers, and
Whereas, Nature has been a most efficient advertiser, long before the human mind conceived the idea, by providing flowers with a fragrance which carries their message beyond human vision, and
Whereas, There is one flower particularly suited for use by the Advertising Clubs of the World, because of its abundance and particularly pleasant, fragrant appeal at this season, when the ad men's convention is in session, and only at this time, be it Resolved, That the A. A. C. of W., in convention assembled, hereby adopt the sweet, fragrant cape jasmine as the official convention flower of this association.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Will the Goal Be Made?

August F. Poehlmann, head of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove and Chicago, Ill., whose growing establishment is the largest in the country, says: "Summing up the results obtained by collective advertising thus far, I feel encouraged to go on with it and I hope to see every retailer, wholesaler and grower tied up with this advertising campaign."

In this summary is voiced the opinion generally of those who have made this movement possible. It ought to have some effect on the minds of those to whom we look for assistance in the continuance of the campaign. Mr. Poehlmann, perhaps more than anyone else, is in a position to observe the beneficial results we have obtained from the campaign and that is why he recommends its continuance and extension.

Last year our publicity committee set the goal for $100,000, the amount which it was believed should be spent for publicity. The belief was based upon the immense amount of profitable publicity we had obtained during the previous year for less than half that sum. Their expectations, however, only materialized to the extent of nearly sixty per cent, but again we secured publicity sufficient to swell the prestige obtained the previous year and to increase the demand for flowers perceptibly. This year the same goal was set, as our committee reasoned that surely now the florists would perceive the importance and profit in a vigorous prosecution of the campaign. Up to this writing, however, less than one-half of the required amount has been collected.

Faith in the Work.

It cannot be said that the florists are too poor to provide the amount required. Nor can we believe that they are not anxious to increase the business they are doing. Then what is the reason for this holding back? Is it that they are content to let their more generous brother florists shoulder the burden of expense, content to reap a share of the harvest they provide, without a trifling aid from their own pockets? There may be some who have this idea, but that is not a characteristic of the florist as we know him, always ready and anxious to pay his way. Is it because they have not faith in the efficacy of the campaign? In this case, they have Mr. Poehlmann's views to ponder upon. He knows, and so do all our other supporters, especially those whose subscriptions run to large amounts. How many of those who have not yet tied up with us realize that some of their florist brethren are paying into the fund as much as $25 to $50 per month? They certainly have faith in the work and are not merely taking chances.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Washington Field Day.

June 2 was indeed an ideal rose day in Washington, D. C. About 100 members of the American Rose Society registered at the store of Gude Bros. Co. before 10 a. m. Automobiles were waiting to take the party to the rose test garden. The roses in the garden were at their best, and the party spent two most pleasant hours enjoying the abundance of rose bloom. The climbing varieties were not in full bloom, but the teas, hybrid teas, polyanthas and rugosas were magnificent.

On the day previous a committee consisting of Dr. B. T. Galloway, chairman; L. C. Corbett, F. L. Mulford, W. Van Fleet and D. N. Shoemaker made a careful survey of the garden. The committee reported that they found the garden in generally good condition. The season has been backward; consequently, roses are from ten to twelve days late. There is little mildew. The severe winter injured a good many of the varieties. The committee considered only the varieties now at their best. Of the pillars, Scheila Wilson, Paul's Scarlet Climber and Paul's Carmine Pillar were scored the highest. Of the baby ramblers the following were particularly good: Yellow Baby Rambler, Triomphe Orleanais, Mrs. W. H. Cutbush, Gruss an Aachen, Echo, Marie Pavie, Clothilde Pfitzer, Schneekopf. Of the teas and hybrid teas the following were given special mention: Ophelia, White Killarney, Königin Carola, Lady Alice Stanley, La Tosca, Lady Ursula, Lady Ashtown, Gustav Grunerwald, Killarney Queen, Gruss an Teplitz, Avoca and Red Radiance. Of the hybrid perpetuals the committee made special note of Maharajah, Pierre Notting, General Jacqueminot, J. B. Clark, Mrs. Sharman-Crawford, Paul Neyron, Victor Verdier and Frau Karl Druschki. The committee made special note of the following moss: Luxemburg; briers: Flora McIvor, Julia Mannering, Anne de Geierstein, Bradwardine and Green Gravarian; rugosas: No. 14668 (Van Fleet), Rosa Parfume de la Haie, Amelia Graverian, and rugosa prostrata. There are in the garden 403 varieties of roses, as follows:

Hybrid perpetuals	51
Hybrid teas and teas	154
Bush rugosa hybrids	27
Climbing Wichuraianas	66
Baby ramblers D. multiflora	30
Climbing tea hybrids	14
Climbing Noisette hybrids	12
Climbing multifloras	36
Climbing setigeras	5
Climbing miscellaneous	8
Total	403

At Twin Oaks.

From the garden the party was taken through the Arlington cemetery, stopping at the new memorial stadium and at Lee's mansion. They then went to Mrs. Bell's beautiful home at Twin Oaks, where an hour was spent in the garden and in enjoying the hospitality of Mrs. Bell. Refreshments were served on the broad verandas at Twin Oaks, after which Mrs. Bell showed the visitors through the garden. Returning to the house, Mr. Gude addressed Mrs. Bell, stating that the American Rose Society through its president, Mr. Pyle, wished to express its appreciation of her hospitality. President Pyle then stated that because of Mrs. Bell's repeated hospitality, and especially because of her interest in rose progress as manifested by her gift of the Hubbard memorial gold medal, the executive committee had unanimously voted to confer on her an honorary membership. He asked Mrs. Bell to accept this membership as a slight token of the appreciation of the American Rose Society. Mrs. Bell graciously accepted and thanked President Pyle for the honor conferred upon her.

The party then returned to the Ebbitt House, where luncheon was served. The tables were beautifully decorated with Red Radiance. In the somewhat formal after-dinner speaking W. F. Gude presided. He first introduced Professor Corbett, asking him to speak on the development of the rose test garden. Because of trouble with his voice, Professor Corbett asked to be excused. J. Horace McFarland was then introduced and spoke on "Hugonis and Its Hybrids."

President Pyle then spoke of the pleasure it gave the American Rose Society to visit the national rose test garreported June 1, 1920, 2,202. He expressed his regret that more of the commercial men were not present at this meeting, for he felt sure that the interest in outdoor rose growing by the amateur would be a big financial aid to the commercial men.

Dr. Galloway then gave the report of the rose test garden as previously outlined.

Dr. Beal, of Cornell University, was the last speaker of the afternoon. He said: "We need to distinguish two types of gardens, the test garden and the rose display garden. The American Rose Society probably has now enough test gardens to demonstrate what the was taken to the site of the proposed Washington rose show garden. At a meeting of the executive committee last fall J. Horace McFarland, Frederick Law Olmstead, Representative James R. Mann and S. S. Pennock were appointed on a committee to develop a project for such a garden. The committee had decided on a site on the banks of the Potomac near the Arlington bridge and Frederick Law Olmstead had promised to produce a plan for the development of the garden. Colonel Ridley, superintendent of public grounds and buildings, met the party on the proposed site and outlined briefly the proposed plan. not be realized in a moment, but that the War Department was glad to make a start.

Dr. Van Fleet's Work.

On the day previous to the Washington meeting the executive committee met Dr. Van Fleet in the test garden of the Department of Agriculture at Bell, where Dr. Van Fleet is working to produce American types of roses. The afternoon was indeed most interesting, for Dr. Van Fleet was quite willing to show the committee his numerous hybrids, for he knows that they have a keen interest in all that he is doing. There were many rugosa hybrids, one of which, Rosa rugosa x Triomphe Orleanais, was especially good. A variety of forms of prostrate rugosas were wonderfully interesting. There were also crosses of rugosa with Hugonis, and

The Market.

The last few weeks have been unusual for summer. There has been little or no falling off of the demand for flowers. More and more we are beginning to realize that there is no off season if the proper steps are taken to keep business going. No special advertising has been necessary thus far this year.

Bedding plants have sold out almost clean, with no effort except to get more to supply the demand. Before the season was half over many items were sold out entirely. Petunias were popular this spring. With the advent of the many really good petunias they have outstripped everything else for porch boxes and general decorations. On the other hand, geraniums are less popular than ever before and even salvia is wanting that enthusiastic demand of a few years ago. Cannas still sell well, but dahlias have found few buyers. Prices have been unusually high this spring, many geraniums selling as high as 50 cents each for 5-inch plants.

Roses have been abundant all spring and the quality has been unusually good. Carnations continue fairly plentiful and are much needed. The first gladioli are beginning to open, though we have to depend on the south for supply. In another week we shall have plenty of them. Iris has received a great deal of advertising by the holding of exhibitions and informal shows this spring. More and more the public is buying and planting the better varieties.

Just now there is considerable uneasiness over the coal situation. No one can get a supply of coal at any price and no one seems to know when things will be any better. Prices quoted on the possibility of delivery are prohibitive.

Ornamental plants have been in heavy demand this spring, with a small supply. Never have hardy plants brought such high prices in this city and at that many of the customers were disappointed because they could not get plants.

The spring was cold and wet and, as a result, those who plant considerable stock outdoors have been much hindered in their work. The parks have been cared for as well as conditions would allow, but they are at least a month behind.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. has completed its grading and is starting construction on its 12,500 feet of new steel construction houses. Its business at the Chattanooga branch has been steadily increasing, while the home store has never done anywhere near so much business before as in the last few months. It has been featuring dormant roses and has sold thousands of plants this spring.

Faye Littel has purchased the old Leslie Littel place and is planting hardy stock. He has several acres in stock this spring. The greenhouses have been put in good condition and are being used for bedding plants.

L. H. Henry has had some of the best stock of sweet peas this spring ever seen in the south. He has been using lavender candytuft this spring and finds there is a good demand for it. White candytuft has long been popular here in designs and similar work, but the lavender has never been used before.

McIntyre Bros. have been having considerable trouble this spring from smoke and dust from a new factory located near them. Their business has been unusually good, especially in ornamental nursery stock and in landscape work. Their cut flower business also shows a healthy growth.

Charles Tritschler has done more than double the business this spring that he has ever done before. His hardy ornamental business has been es-and planting of bedding stock go on steadily, but the end is in sight. Peonies have begun to arrive in small quantities, mostly red, for the pink and white varieties have just begun to show color enough for cutting. Summer flowers are much in demand, such as snapdragons, calendulas, cornflowers, mignonette, sweet peas and columbines. A few late tulips still linger, as well as Narcissus poeticus and jonquils. Roses are not plentiful, as the supply is limited.

Florists' Club was held Friday, June 11. The first part of the evening was devoted to a business meeting. Charles Vick, chairman of the fall flower show committee, reported that after interviewing various prominent florists it was decided not to hold a flower show this fall, because of the high price of cut flowers, labor, etc., in connection with the exhibition.

It was voted to hold the annual picnic the first week in August at Grand View beach, the date to be decided later. Charles Vick was appointed chairman of the prize committee, J. M. Keller of the sports committee, E. P. Wilson of the transportation committee, F. Schlegel of the lunch committee and Harry Glenn, treasurer.

The last part of the meeting was occupied by John Dunbar, who gave a most interesting and instructive illustrated lecture on flowering trees and been caused for bedding stock. All kinds are selling well, especially geraniums. The King Humbert canna is a favorite. There will be no surplus in this line.

Since Mothers' day the sale of cut flowers has declined. There was a weak attempt at a rally for Memorial day, but this holiday has not become so important here as in the United States; it will surely develop as time goes on. Funeral work has not been particularly plentiful, but orders for weddings have been numerous.

There seems to be a shortage of chrysanthemum plants in this section. Orders can be placed across the line, but getting delivery is another story.

Various Notes.

C. Gratton, of St. Laurent, reports a good demand for his stock.

George Hopton, on Addington avenue, has a fine lot of gladioli coming on.

J. H. Fernyhough has had a good sale for his bedding plants.

R. Scott, at Ville Sainte Pierre, is

Express shipments are coming through from the United States in less time than formerly. It takes only a month now for express packages to come from Philadelphia. Once two years ago six weeks elapsed before a shipment was received from that city. Packages which can be shipped without a transfer come through quickly, but if a parcel has to be transferred at New York city a delay is bound to occur.

The Market.

Considering the off season, business has been really better than ordinarily expected, but the abnormally warm weather immediately preceding and following Memorial day naturally resulted in such overproduction that the producers and dealers were willing, for the most part, to take just about what they could get.

American Beauties made a big drop, having an almost phenomenally subnormal price range. Other roses, however, remained about the same, with a sales value of from $6 to $20 per hundred. Carnations came down after Memorial day to $4 per hundred. Large numbers of giganteum lilies of fine quality came in and kept at their former price of $15 per hundred.

Last week there were a few homegrown peonies, but the majority were coming in from the Lancaster valley. They brought from $4 to $10 per hundred. Special sweet peas also came from the latter source, but their best days were over and they necessarily arrived a little soft and did not move well. Some beautiful cattleyas are being cut and bring $1.25 apiece. Good ferns continue scarce and for a few days last week there were none in the local markets. What few came in brought $5 per thousand.

The June business so far has been particularly satisfactory, practically all varieties of stock cleaning up nicely each day. Prices consequently are holding up well. The abnormally hot weather of the latter part of May has shown its effects on the roses, which are decidedly smaller than before. However, the cooler weather following several showery days promises to balance up conditions along this line. The rains came at just the right time to give the young carnations in the fields the right boost and they are in splendid condition.

Landscape work in this vicinity has never been so heavy and the promoters thereof, big and little, are all working to the limit.

Various Notes.

At the Third Presbyterian church Tuesday evening, June 1, Manager Harvey C. Sheaff, of Mrs. E. A. Williams' establishment, had an elaborate wedding decoration in French blue and pink, with the pulpit and balconies banked with cibotium ferns and bamboos. Tropical palms formed a background for the pulpit banking, which was graduated and studded with French hydrangeas. At the foot on each side were tall wicker Egyptian urns filled with trailing asparagus vine, Premier roses, Harrisii lilies and blue delphiniums. The approaches to the main aisles were arched in white, intertwined with broad blue ribbons and pink peonies, the ribbons also outlining the aisles. A shower of lilies of the valley centered with cattleyas and gardenias formed the bride's bouquet and the bridesmaids carried Dresden bouquets.

Blue and pink French hydrangeas dominated the decorations done by Randolph & McClements for a recent wedding at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, in Shadyside. The same design was carried out at the rooms of the Twentieth Century Club, where the reception was held.

FULL SUPPLY CUT FLOWERS AT ALL TIMES

MICHIGAN CUT FLOWER EXCHANGE, 264-266 Randolph St., Detroit, Mich.

The McCallum Co. has received from abroad one and one-half carloads of artificial flowers, which have been lying in the New York docks for the last two months on account of the dockmen's strike and the railroad embargo. George C. McCallum has returned from a several days' trip to New York, having gone on to visit the organization's new branch store at 239 Fourth avenue. Mr. McCallum went on the five days' excursion of the Chamber of Commerce, taking in towns in western Pennsylvania. Mr. Puryear, formerly identified with the John Ratcliffe establishment, of Richmond, Va., has been added to the company's traveling staff. Mr. Puryear's territory will include the southern Atlantic states, from Washington, D. C., to Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Clarke were members of the Shriners' party, which left Saturday night, June 5, for Portland, Ore. The other members of the family will leave shortly for their summer headquarters at Stowe, Chautauqua Lake, N. Y. William A. Clarke, Jr., has returned from State College, where he has been specializing in floriculture.

Peter Kronis, who before entering the United States service was a salesman in the Pennsylvania station store, has become manager of the concern. Mr. Kronis is a nephew of the proprietor, John Kronis. Frank Papas has been transferred from the same stand to the East Liberty station store, where he will remain until the return of the manager, Spiro Kaps. Mr. Kaps continues to improve slowly after his serious operation in the Mayo hospital, Rochester, Minn., and is now with his family in Minneapolis. Mr. Kronis's handsome Alpha Flower Shop, Penn avenue, East Liberty, had some exceptionally effective peony window displays last week. A privet hedge border and small potted plants added to the attractiveness of the exterior.

F. H. Riegelmeier, of 1830 Carson street, south side, expects to leave a little later for a several weeks' automobile trip, which will include Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Riegelmeier and their daughter, Miss Helen Riegelmeier.

Jacob J. Fuchs, of 1710 Carson street, had an excellent showing of ferns recently.

George R. Franks, proprietor of the Philadelphia Florists, in the Fifth Avenue Arcade, is planning a month's vacation trip through the east.

Charles Koenig has been sending in a large numoer of excellent Harrisii lilies.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

MILLARD SHARPE, of Vacaville, Cal., will have charge of the field work of the recently organized Nursery Bud Selection Association of California. He will work with the United States Department of Agriculture under E. E. Huffman, assistant farm manager of Sacramento county.

FIRST session of the American Association of Nurserymen next week at Chicago will be a dinner at 7 p. m., June 22, at the Congress hotel. The following morning at 10 a. m. the members will gather to talk things over instead of listening to someone else talk. Secretary Watson presented a list of live subjects for discussion in The Review May 27.

"PROGRESS is being made—and progress is greatly needed," said Alvin Nelson, of the Swain Nelson & Sons Co., Chicago, referring to the work of the committee of which he is a member and which was appointed at the convention of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association February 12 to consider the problem of a uniform system of accounting for the members of the association. Mr. Nelson feels strongly that in all branches of the plant and flower producing industry there is an immediate need for more effective business organization of each enterprise and that a uniform system of accounting is the best foundation.

CALCULATING NURSERY COSTS.

Basis for Efficient Management.

The greatest problem confronting nurserymen today and tomorrow and the rock upon which, in the past, the business of many a nurseryman has foundered, is that of efficient management.

The majority of nurserymen grow a good tree at a minimum of labor cost. But in determining the cost per tree of the trees he sells, the proportion of trees of each variety and kind that it is advisable to grow, or in placing a price upon the trees which he grows and sells profitably enough to pay, not alone the immediate cost of production, but also his overhead selling expense and collection expense, and allow a fair margin of profit on the investment, or in putting on an intelligent selling campaign within the territory tributary to his nursery, or in giving credit and effecting collections, or in coöperating with other nurserymen in the business for mutual benefit—in these vital factors the nurserymen of today, like those of the past, are sadly deficient in the exercise of intelligent business methods.

From an address on "Our Greatest Problem Today," by J. E. Bergtholdt, secretary and manager of the Silva-Bergtholdt Co., Newcastle, Cal., delivered before the meeting of the California Nurserymen's Association.

Count in All Costs.

Nurserymen can easily determine, and most of them do, the total expenditure required in growing a crop of trees. By dividing this amount by the total number of trees of salable grades delivered in his yard, he can easily determine the cost per tree. Now, many a nurseryman, having arrived at this cost price per tree, stops at this figure, when, as a matter of fact, such factors as the interest on his investment, his own time, the depreciation of his plant and equipment, his advertising expenses, his overhead expenses; his selling expenses, such as agents' commissions, conducting the yard, and personal solicitors; his collection expenses, his loss from bad accounts, are rarely taken into the account of costs, or not to a sufficient degree. Yet these elements represent an outlay which, on the average, is sometimes more per tree sold than the cost of a tree delivered in the yard for sale.

Selling as Expensive as Growing.

Take, for example, a nurseryman who grows, sells and delivers to the planter.

If it costs him 8 cents to grow a tree and he succeeds in selling every tree he grows, these minor factors which have been enumerated and which are so rarely taken into account by nurserymen will cost him, on the average, an additional 8 cents. In other words, it costs as much in expense to sell a tree and perform the business between the delivery of that tree in the yard and the deposit of the proceeds from its sale to his credit in the bank, as it does to grow a tree and deliver it into his yard. That is, if it costs him 8 cents to grow that tree in his yard, and he sells every tree he grows, his total expenditure on the tree, by the time he has realized the proceeds from its sale, will average 16 cents, not allowing for any profit in the transaction.

Now, no farming business can be conducted safely on a smaller margin of rect sales price, provided every tree is sold.

As a matter of fact, however, year in and year out, a nurseryman is unable to sell and realize on more than seventy-five per cent of his product. This will increase the actual cost of the tree that he sells by 6 2/3 cents, making the lowest figure at which he can sell at a safe margin of profit an average price of 26⅔ cents per tree.

This example is based on the results of the experience of the last three years. With the present increased high cost of living and production, the averages named justify a material increase.

Surplus vs. Brush Pile.

In view, however, of the abnormal conditions, of a short supply of trees and an unprecedented demand, it is probable that nurserymen this year and next will realize a profit in excess of the average named.

On the other hand, as soon as the supply has been increased, by the vision of the profits now being made in the nursery business, to such a degree that it exceeds the demand, the probability is that the nurseryman regularly in the business will experience a period of one or several seasons during which the magnitude of his brush pile will not only absorb a large percentage of the accumulated surplus of several "fat" years, but, unless he exercises good business sagacity, may cause him a considerable loss, if it does not entirely wreck the business.

Mankato, Minn.—A recent incorporation is that of Neil Neilsen, Ernest W. Neilsen and Christ Neilsen under the name of Neil Neilsen, Inc., with a capitalization of $75,000. The officers are as follows: President, Neil Neilsen; vice-president and secretary, Ernest W. Neilsen, and treasurer, Christ Neilsen.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The Grand Forks Floral Co., of which E. G. Lemke and O. C. Wardin are the proprietors, moved to 412 De Mers avenue June 1. The new location was a long felt want, as the business had outgrown two smaller stores. The new store has a frontage of twenty-two feet and is ninety feet deep. A spacious workroom and attractive display windows help dispose of a large stock of flowers. E. G. Lemke is a son of E. F. Lemke, the wholesale florist of St. Paul, Minn.

The Market.

Flowers of every kind were plentiful during the last week. Peonies are arriving in large quantities. Roses are good and the supply plentiful. There is an oversupply of carnations, there being so many other seasonable flowers to take their place. Snapdragons are good, as also are gladioli, valley, daisies, Easter lilies, etc.

For the first week in June there have been large numbers of weddings and many more are booked for later in the month. There is a large demand for orchids, which are so scarce they can scarcely be obtained at any price. Plants of all kinds are selling well, especially bedding plants.

Various Notes.

Walter Nelson, of Donagy & Nelson, was married Thursday, June 10.

Edward Kreimer is home from school for the summer vacation and is going to help at the store until the rush is over. J. E. S.

Georgetown, Ky.—O. C. Heberling has bought the establishment of the Georgetown Floral Co. and expects to be open for business about September 1.

ATTENTION, MR. GROWER!

KOST SOIL PULVERIZER

WHY do you throw away your coal ashes, when by using them in your soil you grow better crops?

There are plant food elements in coal ashes; ashes also help to keep the soil sweet; there are elements in ashes that dissolve plant food elements in the soil otherwise dormant.

Ashes act as a solvent to the soil, keep the soil porous and fresh from stagnation.

Don't waste your clinkers and ashes, spread them on your land to grow better carnations in your fields; your asters also need good light soil.

The leading growers use their coal ashes. Max Grohman of North Tonawanda, N. Y., Begonia Lorraine, Cincinnati and Cyclamen specialist, once one of the leading growers for Thomas Rowland, Boston, Mass., uses all his ashes; Mr. Carl Grohman, grower to S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y., another famous grower, uses all his ashes; J. F. Anderson, Short Hills, N. J., prominent fern specialist, uses all his ashes in his fern soil; The Lansdale Mushroom Co., Lansdale, Pa., who supply all the leading hotels with cucumbers, melons, tomatoes and mushrooms, grind all their clinkers and ashes for their soil.

Now, Mr. Grower, get our pulverizer for clinkers and ashes. We have a grinder that we are proud of—it is "fool proof," it grinds up sods, clam-shells and soft limestone. It keeps two to three men busy shoveling in as fast as they can. Don't fail to spread all your ashes on your soil, for it helps the crops and acts as a solvent on other plant food elements in the soil.

Mr. Grower, why throw your money away, by not using your clinkers and coal ashes?

This pulverizer was designed and made to grind up the soil and sods, also fertilizers that come in bulk from the sheep ranches direct to the grower in carload lots. It can be used for many other purposes, and the grower will surely be benefited in many ways. The pulverizer has not only many uses, is a big labor saver and a money maker, but is also a better crop producer and a saver in fertilizers. By using up all your coal ashes and clinkers, this alone will save you a lot of money.

As production and conservation are the great roads to success, we would ask you, Mr. Grower, to write us by return mail about this very reasonably priced pulverizer. Price $175.00.

Guaranteed to do the work intended to do. Write us today—growth at 2806 Penn avenue, midway between the downtown and Lawrenceville districts. The proprietorship rests in the McCabe Floral Co., which consists of ten members, and Earl P. McCabe is the manager. Mr. McCabe was formerly associated with his family in the undertaking profession, a fact which gives him practically an established business to start on.

Louis R. Biehl has resigned from the sales staff of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. to accept a similar position in the store of Randolph & McClements. Mr. Biehl's seventeen years' experience in the business has been with the Ludwigs, with the exception of a year each with Schiller's, of Chicago, and the Smith & Fetters Co., in Cleveland.

John and Peter Matsukes and Mark George are the owners of the attractive new store on the corner of Shady and Penn avenues. Peter Matsukes has for some time past been in the employ of Randolph & McClements, while his brother has been with the Liberty Florists, on Penn and Frankstown avenues. Mr. George is new in the business.

Joseph Fineberg has returned from a week's tour, which included Cleveland, Youngstown, Niles and Warren.

Samuel McClements is spending the summer on his Stanton Heights estate, where he and Mrs. McClements are enjoying typical country life.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases	$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases	1.00 each
Small size cases	.50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING LEAN-TO.

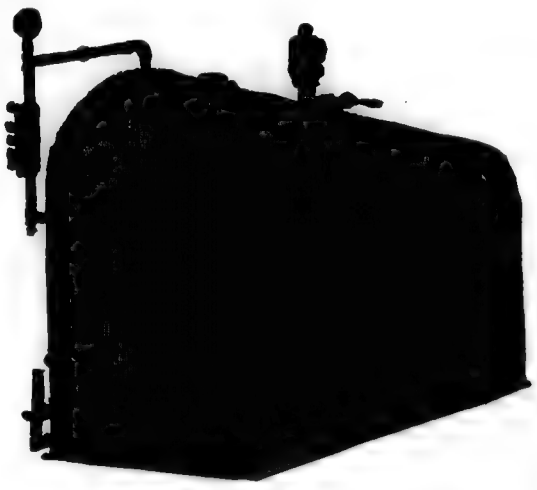
I am thinking of building a 6x12 lean-to, or conservatory, to be placed on the south side of my house, as indicated in the accompanying sketch. The furnace room is near the south side of the house and would be next to the greenhouse. I have a hot air furnace, with range, boiler and coil for heating the water. I should like to know whether I can run water pipes into the greenhouse from the hot water line and thus heat the greenhouse. What size of pipes should be used and in what arrangement to give the best results? The hot water pipes connected to the range boiler are ¾-inch. The furnace is about five feet from the outside wall against which the lean-to would be built.

C. E. C.—Ind.

The size of the furnace and the amount of surface in the coil are not given and it is not possible to determine just how much radiation it will carry. About sixty square feet will be required to heat the conservatory, or about the same as for a medium-sized room in a dwelling house. There will be no difficulty about heating the conservatory if the coil is of suitable size.

The flow and return mains should be 1¼-inch and should be connected with the coil close to the heater. The flow pipe should be carried into the conservatory and then run along the wall of the dwelling a foot or so below the ridge. At the farther end connect the flow pipe with a coil of three 1-inch pipes under the north bench, then carry it to a point just beyond the door in the west end of the house and there connect it with a coil of six 1-inch pipes running from the door to the front of the conservatory and then along the front and east end of the conservatory. There the returns from the two coils should be joined and carried back to the heater as a 1¼-inch pipe.

If the furnace coil has two square feet of radiation, it will probably be sufficiently large to heat the conservatory.



ARRANGEMENT OF PIPES.

I am sending you a sketch of two greenhouses under construction, each 21x130 feet, having 5½-foot walls, with eighteen inches of glass in each side wall and the south gables of glass. I wish to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees above zero. I plan to run two 3-inch flows, one on each line of purlin posts, and nine 2-inch returns, three on each side wall and three near the center of the house. I shall use a No. 4 Kroeschell boiler. Can I expect

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

the desired temperature with this arrangement? J. W. B.—Miss.

There is no question that the piping suggested for the houses will heat them to 60 degrees when it is 10 degrees above zero. I am not sufficiently familiar with the climatic conditions in Mississippi to know how many times during the winter the mercury is likely to drop within 10 degrees of zero, but with the present cost of piping I should keep the amount of radiation as low as possible and rely upon a little extra attention in the way of firing when the mercury approaches 10 degrees above zero.

Except in houses of more than 150 feet in length, it is preferable to use 2½-inch pipe for the flows and in the houses described, instead of using two 3-inch flow pipes, I should use three 2½-inch pipes, placing two of them either on the side wall plates or on the purlin posts and the third two or three feet below the ridge. If the returns are well above the top of the boiler, I think it will be possible to maintain 60 degrees in these houses by using six 2-inch pipes for the returns, placing two in each of three coils, locating one coil on each side wall or under the side benches and the other under the middle bench. In case the houses are not well built or are much exposed to the prevailing cold winds, it may be necessary to add one pipe in each house, placing it on the exposed side, but I am of the opinion that it will not be necessary if a little extra attention is given in the coldest weather. The boiler has fully 1,000 square feet surplus capacity.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Many decorations and plenty of funeral work have been keeping the trade in Columbus busy. Sweet peas, carnations, roses and summer flowers are all plentiful and the prices have been holding up much better than usual for this time of year. The weather is sultry, but, despite this fact, many people are on the streets. Pot plants are not so plentiful, but are in good demand and florists who handle them report a good business in that line. Peonies are plentiful and many are going to waste. Choice blooms sell for $2.50 per dozen. These flowers are fine, but the demand for them is not large, so they are used mostly for display purposes.

Various Notes.

The Woodmen of the World held their annual unveiling ceremony Sunday, June 6. This was a beautiful ceremony and they had many flowers for the occasion. The crowd at the cemetery rivaled that of Memorial day and the weather was ideal.

There were many beautiful floral pieces for the funeral of the son of President Thompson, of the Ohio State University. He was killed in an automobile wreck near Santa Barbara, Cal.

The opening of the new Marimoar restaurant was a good event for the trade. Miss Love, the owner, received many large baskets of beautiful flowers.

A dance given by students of North high school resulted in T. J. Ludwig receiving an order for several dozen corsages Friday, June 11.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. had orders for two large weddings last week.

T. J. Ludwig has several wedding orders for this month. He had a window of peonies last week. They were all exhibition blooms and were labeled so the public could recognize each variety.

The Livingston Seed Co. held its annual peony show last week and had many excellent large varieties.

Mr. Kent, of Newark, O., paid a visit to the Columbus trade Tuesday, June 8.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Newark florists are reporting an unusually large number of weddings this June. Flowers are cheaper than they have been for a long time, which encourages heavier buying. Some graduation work is being done, though, on account of the ban on public presentation of flowers in many schools, the volume of sales for graduation is not so large as some years ago. Some florists, however, report that graduation sales are a little larger this year than they have been for several years.

Various Notes.

Harry Stein, proprietor of the Terminal Flower Shop, reports an excellent June business. His trade in seeds, bulbs, etc., is good and the cut flower business is excellent.

Henry A. Strobell reports an unusually large number of weddings, even for June. He has also had considerable graduation work. R. B. M.

Wooster, O.—Miss Mary L. Barrett, who has been employed by F. H. De Witt & Co., for ten years, is preparing to start in business for herself July 1. She will use the name Liberty Flower Store, because of the location at 333 East Liberty street.

GREENHOUSE OWNERS ARE PAYING TOO MUCH

For most of the glazing materials they use

Sooner or later the Greenhouse Trade will wake up to the fact that selling expense represents much of the cost of certain strongly pushed products and that they can get the best material at lowest prices by ordering by mail from us.

The Federal Process Co. was the first concern to advertise Glazing Cement in The Review as a substitute for and an improvement on putty. Unsatisfactory as putty always has been, it was slow work convincing conservative florists that here at last was something better. But we kept at it until the demand became so large a host of imitators sprang up. Many of them spend more money selling their goods than they do in manufacturing them.

As a matter of fact, Greenhouse Cement is a small item in the Federal line of roofing materials and cement varnishes. Greenhouse Cement is the only item we sell direct to the consumer in small lots, and this advertisement in The Review is absolutely our only selling expense—so, of course, we can sell cheaper than anyone else and at the same time give a better article.

Having been the first to offer the now widely used Glazing Cement, we know all about the growers' needs. Write to us if you want to get the best materials at lowest prices.

The Market.

Last week started with a brisk demand for stock. While the supply was good, the prices were firm until the end of the week, when prices broke badly. The slump in the wholesale prices was not reflected in the retail trade, which was much better than last year's average, but was rather caused by much outdoor stock arriving the last three hot days of the week. It is the peony season. Some fine gladioli came in during the week; these have been bringing good prices.

During the previous week the warm weather brought on a flood of carnations, roses, peonies, lilies and sweet peas.

The Market.

Both flowers and florists are beginning to feel the effect of the warm weather. The florists, after a busy season, are seeking their summer homes where they can spend the week-ends or holidays. The downtown florists are closing their stores Saturday afternoons and the uptown ones Wednesday afternoons, to give the help a chance to enjoy the week-ends or a half-holiday each week.

The warm weather has affected the supply of flowers. The sweet peas are succumbing to the heat and carnations and roses are showing the effect of hot weather as well. Peonies are appearing on the market.

Various Notes.

George M. Geraghty, manager of Dunlop's, Ltd., is having his cottage rebuilt with stone and will leave about July 1 for a two months' sojourn at Pilgrims' Rest, on the Georgian bay.

Preparations are being made for the Retail Florists' Club annual picnic. Committees are now at work and, from appearances, the picnic this year will be on a par with those of other years. Growers and friends of the florists are cordially invited to the picnic on Center island July 14. The best grounds have been secured, as well as the large pavilion for serving supper. Games will take place during the afternoon and following supper.

Arrangements are being made for a big party to attend the Hamilton convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association in August. One of the chief matters to come before the convention is a change of name of the association, of which the florists cordially approve. With a new constitution and name, the C. H. A. will receive the cordial support of the florists. President Hamilton, of London, and W. E. Groves, of Hamilton, have been working hard and this convention will be one of the largest and most interesting in the history of the C. H. A. A great many from south of the border have signified their intention of coming and partaking of Canadian hospitality. They will see it at its best at Hamilton.

A wise business man figures costs by the year, right down the line, and especially so if his business has to do with greenhouses. He knows, either by experience or from a close study of the subject, that the only businesslike method of determining material costs in greenhouse building is by the year—first cost and up-keep cost.

CYPRESS, "the wood eternal" for greenhouse construction, is positively the cheapest wood to use, figured by its years on the job, without repairs or replacements.

All good constructors in these days are insisting on genuine "Tide-Water" Cypress, "The Wood Eternal"—every board and bundle bearing the famous Cypress Trade-mark.

Vol. 8, CYPRESS Pocket Library, is a little book filled with a big bunch of facts and figures about greenhouse construction—profitable reading. There are 48 books in the "Library," all of which give useful facts and plans about HOW, WHEN and WHERE to use CYPRESS, "The Wood Eternal," AND WHY. Which one shall we send you?

The Market.

Business during the first week in June was quite settled. The market cleaned up in good shape, with the exception of carnations. The demand has been heavy for June weddings, especially for sweet peas and roses. The demand continues for these items, but, due to the warm weather, there are large quantities of stock on the market. Peonies, likewise, are arriving from local growers and are filling the market.

Carnations are moving unusually slowly and the prices are low. Some of the schools are closing, creating some demand, but not so much as there should be. Considerable publicity is being done to revive the sending of flowers to graduates, but it remains to be seen in the course of a week or ten days what the effects will be.

Bedding stock is quite a scarce item now, as nearly all the growers had a good season and are pretty well cleaned up. Prices on this class of goods average a little higher than last year. P.

Harrisburg, Ill.—M. H. Elder, trading as Elder the Florist, has bought the stock of the shop known as the Harrisburg Florist, formerly conducted by Mrs. Albert Harris and later by Mrs. John Conway.

PAUL SCHRAMM & SON, Wholesale Growers of Cut Flowers

The Excell Laboratories,

4535 Ravenswood Ave., Chicago, Ill. Arlington Heights, Ill., Nov. 13, 1919.

DEAR SIRS:—Have used your "Zenke's Compound Plant Insecticide" for Red Spider, which I have been troubled with, and find that it has done wonders. Will advise other florists whom I meet occasionally of its wonderful power in doing away with that pest (Red Spider) and also other insects. Would like to have you send me at once, by express, one gallon of "Zenke's Liquid Fungicide," which I am going to try out for Mildew.

Yours very truly,

PAUL SCHRAMM & SON.

The Market.

Conditions are about normal for this time of the year. Following Memorial day, prices have dropped considerably. Sweet peas were hard hit by the extremely warm weather last week and carnations and roses also suffered from it. Carnations had to be good stock to bring $2 and $3 per hundred. Peonies were at their height, both in quality and quantity. There was little demand for callas and Easter lilies. Bedding stock sold exceedingly well last week and large quantities of outdoor stock were on the market. Out-of-town business was satisfactory.

Various Notes.

George C. Shaffer is out of town on a trip in connection with the Kiwanis Club.

Fred Leapley is at home again after having an operation performed. He expects to be able to take charge of his place of business within a short time. His brother, Lawrence Leapley, has shown kind interest in the business during Mr. Leapley's absence.

The Jewish national flower day was observed by the Zionists of Washington, D. C., Sunday, June 13, by means of the sale of flowers throughout the city for the benefit of the Jewish national fund for the purchase of land in Palestine and the support of Zionist institutions in the Holy Land.

The florists have been supplied with phonographs for their stores by a local music house in a movement to introduce the "Say It with Flowers" record. This record is played at the different stores during the day and the public has shown much interest in the movement.

Children's day was observed in the churches of this city Sunday, June 13. Much decorating work was required and the florists were called upon to supply large quantities of flowers for the occasion. The decorations in the churches could not be praised too highly. G. V. S.

Permanite

(Trade-mark registered U. S. Patent Office)

Do you buy according to price or quality?

Do not figure your cost on the initial investment, but the amount paid together with the years of service rendered. We have records on file to show you that Permanite costs less per year of service rendered than any other glazing cement you can buy.

Permanite users are everywhere—any one of them near you will be happy to tell you the satisfaction he received from Permanite—the original Asbestos Glazing Cement.

Write our Service Department for further particulars—put your glazing problems up to us—it costs you nothing for this service.

Carnations. I will have access to a large quantity of field plants and would advise those that will have to buy, to place orders early as the hot weather the past week has been very severe on some stock. Plants as a rule will probably not be so large as during more favorable seasons, but that is a condition that man cannot control very well. Price may advance most any time without notice, due of course to conditions.
I offer varieties as follows: Mrs. C. W. Ward, Nebraska, White Wonder, White Enchantress, Pink Enchantress, all for select stock at $12.00 per 100, $110.00 per 1000; average run of stock $11.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000. Prices quoted on other varieties. Add 5% for packing charge. Cash. Note conditions of sale under Miscellaneous classified. A. M. Augspurger, Peoria, Ill.

Carnation plants from 2-in. pots. We have a surplus of several thousand Carnation plants, 2-in. pots, above what we need for our own planting, which for a quick sale we are offering at the following very low prices:

CHRYSANTHEMUM PLANTS.
Rooted cuttings from sand and soil.

Early Frost, Polly Rose, Oconto, Chas. Rager, J. Nonin, Roman Gold, Marigold, Pacific Supreme, Chieftain, Pink Seidewitz and Red Seidewitz, $3.00 per 100, $27.50 per 1000.

Wm. Turner, J. Nonin, Mistletoe, Yellow Turner, Yellow Rager and Dr. Enguehard, $3.50 per 100, $30.00 per 1000.

Golden Mensa and Single Pink, $2.00 per 100, $17.50 per 1000.

Unaka, White Patty and Pink Patty, $1.50 per 100, net; $15.00 per 1000, net.

Unaka is the best early pink, large fine flower, easy and strong grower. It should be in every retail Chrysanthemum collection.

Pink and White Patty are almost indispensable. Large, fine, full double flowers when disbudded and grown one or more flowers per plant. They are also very fine grown as sprays without disbudding and produce quantities of good blooms. They are excellent pot flowers.

We have a very large stock of these three varieties; having a large surplus both rooted cuttings from sand and branching plants from soil, equal to potted stock. While they last, in order to make room at once, we will make the plants from soil the same as rooted cuttings, the very low price of $1.50 per 100, $15.00 per 1000, NET.

CYCLAMEN

CYCLAMEN
Cyclamen have been sold by personal solicitation and advertised in the Florist's Review for many years under the name of Augspurger. The strain that I offer has been established as one of the best commercial strains and after all, that is the safe foundation to build upon. Plants are grown by growers who have grown Cyclamen for years and stock is good. Cyclamen have proven to be one of the best plant sellers the past season and there is nothing in sight that will displace them this season, therefore prepare now for next season's supply. This is the ideal time to buy, to grow on your stock. Can offer in salmon, light pink, light red, dark red and few white. Plants will be packed right.

Size	Per 100	Per 1000
2-in.	$12.00	$110.00
3-in. select stock	25.00	240.00
3-in., average stock	22.50	220.00

STURDY CYCLAMEN
Do you want strong, stocky Cyclamen plants, out of the ordinary quality, not spindly plants, grown in too high temperature, but sturdy plants, with stamina in them; ready to grow into great big specimen plants, that should carry 20 or 30 or more giant blooms at a time, about Thanksgiving and Christmas.

We have them. You want them. What does it matter if you pay us a few cents more per plant, if you can get a dollar or so more per plant when you sell them next winter. You pay us 35c for a 3-in. pot plant in June and sell the same plant in December for $5.00 and up.

We ship in paper pots and send cultural direcotions. Salmon King, Salmon Queen, Crimson St. George, Grandiflora Alba, blood red and other varieties, 2¼-in. pot plants, $15.00 per 100, $135.00 per 1000; 3-in. pot plants, $35.00 per 100, $315.00 per 1000. Cash or satisfactory references.

A CHOICE STRAIN OF

Cyclamen seed, will create the greatest pleasure for the grower, when they make that beautiful show of large well colored, long heavy stemmed flowers, standing erect above such silvery lined foliage as our choice strain will produce and is the only way to avoid disappointments, when they come to bloom.

We have that strain of which I am sure there is no better, and can not be surpassed, at least that is the conviction of our many customers.

Scarcity of such extra good seed, will put price much higher the coming season, for early sowing, purchase now so to have it on hand.

The following colors are now available: Christmas Red, Defiance, dark blood and bright red, dark and light salmon, $2.00 per 100, $18.00 per 1000. Our cultural directions go with all orders, in them you will find a life-time experience. Cash please.

WIRE WORK

WIRE DESIGNS.
I have the pleasure to offer designs built by an old established firm in St. Louis, Mo., and while this stock must not be compared with some of the flimsy stock sent out, yet the price is about the same, and in some instances, I believe, even less. I called on a florist the past week who was just unpacking some designs from a Chicago house and actually the wreaths almost came apart while he was unpacking them and when prices were compared I could have sold him a good substantial wreath for less money. Investigate for yourself. I herewith quote a few prices.

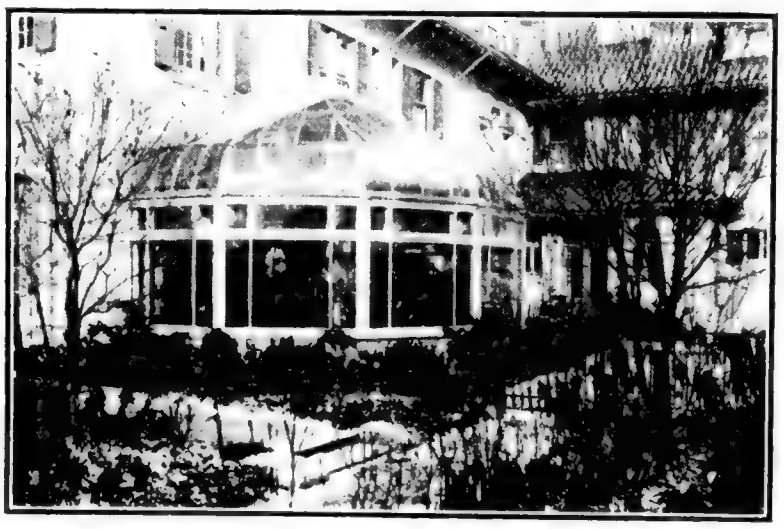
WOOD LABELS

LABELS, for nurserymen and florists.
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

Centertown, Ky.—L. C. Morton & Son, who have been growing vegetable plants for the last three or four years, report good spring business.

Colorado Springs, Colo.—The Mealy Floral Co. intends to increase its number of greenhouses this summer. About 15,000 feet of glass is to be added.



Harrodsburg, Ky. — The Standard Floral Co. was recently incorporated, with a capitalization of $10,000. The incorporators are Louis Singer, E. H. Gaither and J. R. Sanders.

Marion, Ill.—Mrs. M. L. Copeland has just returned from a trip to several eastern cities, including New York. She is adding a Lord & Burnham house at the Marion Greenhouses. At the range at Creal Springs, purchased not long ago from George C. Beal, she will grow roses, carnations, sweet peas and chrysanthemums next season.

Morrison, Ill.—One of the June weddings in which this town is interested is that of Miss Isabel Johnston Keller, of Youngstown, O., and Norris G. Hurd, son of Mrs. Ella Hurd, who is the proprietor of the Morrison Floral Art Shop. Mr. Hurd has an excellent position with the Goodyear Rubber Co., Akron, O., and is also a proficient musician. Immediately after the wedding the young couple will go on an extended automobile trip.

Laporte, Ind.—I. M. Hoffman is advocating the idea of erecting in each town or city of the country where American soldiers or sailors who made the supreme sacrifice in the world war formerly lived, a memorial tablet, monument, chapel, or something of a similar nature in honor of the dead. He thinks that a memorial of this nature in each community would give greater satisfaction to the relatives of the soldiers than decorating their graves in France.

How Mr. Ellery Put Two Quarts in a Pint Jug

Mr. W. Ellery is a hustling, bustling Boston business builder. He wanted to have all the worthwhile things of the country without having a big estate to worry him, or miles of riding from his office to reach it every day.

So he secured less than an acre of ground in Brookline, which, as you know, is one of Boston's finest city suburbs.

Then he planned out with his architect one of the cleverest little layouts you ever saw, having a spacious residence, ample garage with palm house and wings attached. Not to mention the gem-like conservatory.

All of which has been a decided object lesson to us. It has pointed out how successfully a greenhouse can be worked in, when the limited space seems almost impossible. Furthermore, we now have a notion if your employer wants a eenhouse and can't figure out where to locate it, that we most likely can.

AGMCO

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

That tide is even now gathering itself together for the flood. Are you going to launch your ship of business on that flood tide? If you are, you'd better overhaul your ship to make sure it is seaworthy. If it's old and you arn't sure that you can calk it tight, maybe you'd better get a new one. For, mind you,

You'll be carrying a full cargo on this voyage!

But if fortune is your destination — if you're out to win — if you're the kind that won't be satisfied with the flotsam and jetsam of the commercial sea — you're bound to take advantage of this business flood tide even if you have to build several new ships. And your ships?

They are greenhouses—greenhouses that can grow enough stock of the right kind to bring the top price.

We build this kind—your kind—when shall we start?

Like everything else pertaining to greenhouses, we have given the subject of greenhouse paint considerable study.

The conditions met with in a greenhouse are quite different than in ordinary structures; the woodwork is different and there is a great deal of moisture and heat.

We discovered, years ago, a paint which certainly is a wonder as a preservative and a thoroughly white covering.

You make no mistake in using it, as it is no experiment, but has stood the test of time.

Dunlop of Toronto Repeats
It's The Repeats That Count

It's the repeats that count.
The man who buys one L. & B. house and is so thoroughly satisfied he comes back with a comeback to buy more.

It was eight years or so ago, we built the first two houses for Dunlop of Toronto.

That was before we had a separate Canadian factory, and all the materials were shipped direct from Irvington New York.

Of course, there was a duty on them, but Mr. Dunlop paid it cheerfully, to get the kind of house we build.

Later on, he built again, but not our houses.

It did kind of jolt us a bit.

But we didn't really fuss about it, because having houses of other build to compare ours with, we sort of figured would prove most conclusively how well ours were built.

Seemingly, that is exactly what happened; for this last year, we completed for him an Iron Framer 50 feet 8 inches wide by 300 feet.

Don't mind telling you that we were indeed glad to again sell Mr. Dunlop.

It sort of made us feel, that after all, maybe we were not exactly swell-headed, in feeling we build the best house built.

P. S. Mr. Dunlop had a neighbor who told him he "paid too much for our houses.

The neighbor covered a lot more ground for the same money with his."

Shortly afterwards they blew down.

He rebuilt them. Down they blew again.

After wh ch, he gave up the greenhouse business.

Gentlemen:

The cold storage Giganteum Bulbs I bought from you are now in bloom. The crop is so unusual that I think you will be interested in hearing about it.

Ordinarily, I would be satisfied with an average of 2-1/2 to 3-1/2 flowers per 7/9 bulb, and 80% to 85% crop.

I am right now averaging four to five Lilies per 7/9 Rando Giganteum. Even more surprising is that I am getting 100% crop - not a bulb came blind.

While I am at it, I may as well say that this is not the only successful experience I have had with your bulbs. Last year I averaged $1000.00 in flowers for every $100.00 in bulbs.

Yours very truly,
R. Scheffler

FREESIA PURITY—Improved

The Freesia Bulbs the American Bulb Co. offers were raised by the finest grower in California. Florists who have grown our Freesia Bulbs have received large returns when they were shipped to the wholesale flower markets. In every case we have received a duplicate order, which was increased over the original order. Florists who have purchased Bulbs from us agree that we handle the finest quality of well matured, ripened bulbs.

We believe we are the largest handlers of high-grade PURITY FREESIA bulbs in America. Florists who have not given us a trial will profit by sending us their first order. We know you will re-order from us every season, after enjoying your first successful season with our high-quality bulbs. By early planting they can easily be brought in bloom at Christmas and a continuous blooming season can be maintained by successive plantings. For growing on the side of Carnations or to follow Chrysanthemums, we recommend smaller bulbs. To get good results they should be tied up like Carnations. Do not overlook this fact, as it is important.

Bulbs procurable in the following sizes:

	Per 1000		Per 1000
Up to ½-inch	$ 8.00	Mammoth Bulbs, ⅝ to ¾-inch	$17.00
½ to ⅝-inch	12.50	Large Jumbo Bulbs, ¾-inch and up.	23.00

American Bulb Co., Chicago, Ill. Feb. 10, 1920

Dear Sirs:

The Freesia Purity you sold me this year were as good as ever. I have found that I can always rely on your Freesia Bulbs. The large ones for early forcing were in for the Holidays as usual.

The Rainbow Freesias are fine, growing tall, and have very stiff stems. The colors are very fine and sell readily.

Yours Truly,
GEORGE C. WEILAND.

RAINBOW FREESIA

We can now supply this long waited for, beautifully colored RAINBOW Freesia. They are carefully selected and may be had in the best colors. The better floral shops throughout the country are using these very extensively. $35.00 per 1000.

SUNSET COLLECTION

The Sunset Collection of Freesias is long-stemmed, a fine keeper and is much more easily grown than the ordinary type of Freesia. $45.00 per 1000.

WIESBADEN-AUKAMM

TO MY CUSTOMERS IN AMERICA:

Those who are in the market for high grade Cyclamen Seed, I wish to advise you that I have perfected the finest strain of Cyclamen Seed I have ever offered, as for the past four years I have devoted my attention to improving my varieties. Cyclamen offered by me this season are all true to name and selected only from the best and healthy plants which in turn give very good results.

I have paid strict attention to my Salmon and Red shades particularly for the American trade. My seed will be offered by the American Bulb Company, who are my sole agents, and none is genuine unless purchased through the American Bulb Company. It is with pleasure that I recommend to all florists who are growers of high class plants to try out my seed. I hold recommendations from the best growers in the world.

Yours very truly,
FERD. FISCHER

Salvia, America, 2½-inch pots, $8 per 100; 4-inch pots, $12 per 100.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases	$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases	1.00 each
Small size cases	.50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

The Development of Made-in-America Wreaths
Has Been Remarkable

Years ago we bought all wreaths abroad. And then the war came, shutting off imports. So we organized our own wreath-making department.

WE STARTED OUT TO MAKE WREATHS FOR CHRISTMAS ONLY. Gradually we worked into all lines of funeral and cemetery wreaths, building up a larger and greater production as demand grew. TODAY THE DEMAND IS UNIVERSAL—YEAR ROUND.

WHY?

Because Made-in-America Wreaths are BIG PROFIT-MAKERS; LOW IN COST, quality considered; in attractive styles for every purpose; easily handled; READILY SOLD. They are not affected by weather conditions, or by seasonal demand—factors that constantly affect the natural flower market.

THERE WERE SKEPTICS AT FIRST—who wouldn't buy—they assumed that high-class trade would balk at any wreaths not made of natural flowers.

NOW THEY HAVE ALL FALLEN IN LINE, and because OURS ARE BETTER THAN OTHERS,

"Keystone Quality" Made-in-America Wreaths
Are the Biggest and Most Profitable Sellers

Ribbons With a Reputation

A pedigree is as essential to ribbons as to flowers. Good floral ribbons are not created by accident, nor can the left-overs of an unsuccessful millinery season properly embellish nature's flowers. It requires real art to match nature's colorings. The knowledge of suitable weaves and the proper finish of silken textiles is not easily acquired, therefore entrust your ribbon and chiffon requirements to our organization, which has spent years of painstaking effort creating distinctive floral fabrics.

This season we have excelled previous efforts in the production of novelties.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

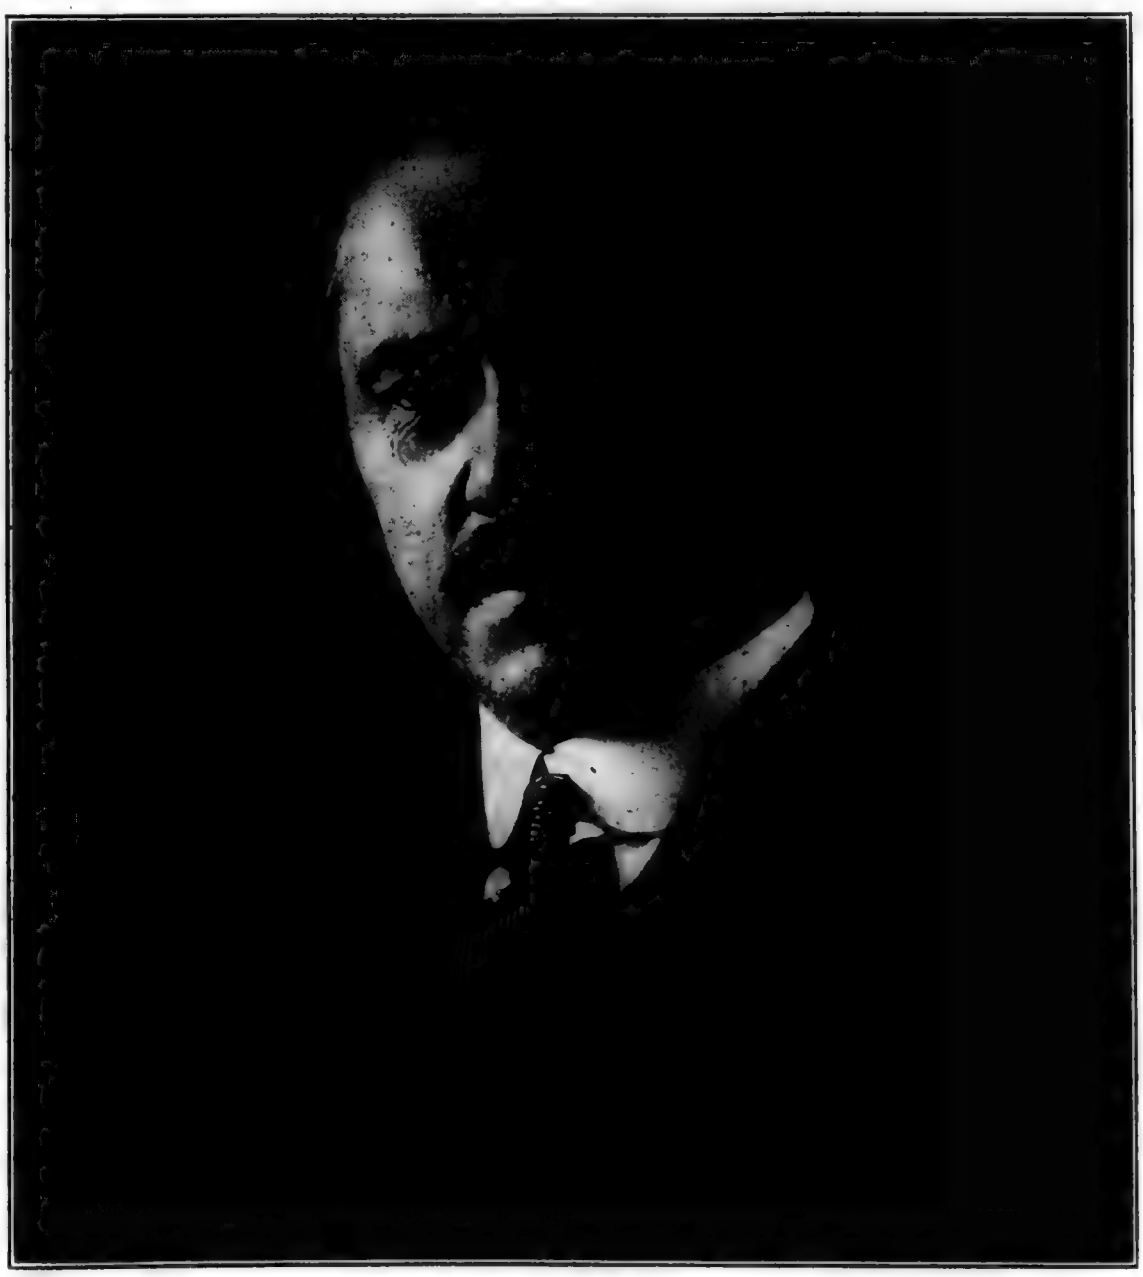
GROWERS FACE BIG PROBLEMS

Upon his reëlection to the leadership of the first growers' organization, from which have sprung, in its initial year of existence, some important benefits to the trade, one of the most progressive greenhouse operators of the Great Central Market puts forward possible solutions for pressing problems.

THE development of the cut flower industry has been astonishing. It just grew, without any stimulant relating to growing, without utilizing government aid with its experiment stations or commercial advertising agencies to sell our products. In former days growers constructed their greenhouses without regard to the location as best adapted, most economical or most efficient for production and marketing. But as growers began to expand, many realized their mistakes and their handicaps; yet they continued to "climb up the ladder," by sheer hard effort.

But now we are in an age of specialization, of intensive production, large capital investments, consolidation of competitors, quick transportation and service. The retail florists of old, particularly in the large cities, are abandoning growing to devote their time to retailing. As greenhouse production has improved, so has the retail dealer—both vocations requiring the art of specialization.

Distributors.



Between them arises the distributing agency, just a mutual coöperation between producer and retailer. The wholesale commission merchant facilitates the distribution of our consignments much the same today as when first begun. Individual wholesalers each in his own way perfected methods of handling cut flowers, but little was done in a concerted way towards improving the handling and selling, because of lack of coöperation, lack of teamwork—showing a need of organization in the trade.

Every wholesale market is a "union depot," to which the wholesale growers entrust their products for distribution, to provide a selection of stock for the retailers to meet their requirements. It is the meeting place of the varying conditions that constitute a market, either short, normal or overabundant in the supply of cut flowers.

The Commission House Law.

Men of character and of marked honesty dominated many of these first wholesale distributing houses, but as Chicago grew into such a vast market, loopholes opened for the unscrupulous to get in. The present system of wholesale commission methods is negligible in cost to the consignor, compared to the old way of shipment from the small grower to the market direct. The volume of money entrusted to the hands of the wholesale commission merchant brought on the development of the Illinois commission law as the best means to protect the lone consignor. This raises the question of the accounting of the commission merchant to the consignor, a subject in itself of great importance. The grower doing business on consignment does not know anything about how his products are sold. Happy-go-lucky characteristics of some grower-consignors is a thing of the past. The commission house law will see to that.

To carry out the full intent of the commission law, would it not be advisable for the original consignors to make an official audit of their respective consignment accounts at the close of each calendar and fiscal year, January 1 and July 1, rather than to do business solely on the honesty of the commission merchant?

Joseph Kohout.
(Re-elected President of Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago.)

Fair to All.

Considering the large number of consignors to every market, such a semi-annual audit would be fair to both consignee and consignor and destroy every vestige of suspicion reflecting upon the commission business.

I would suggest a test as to the possibility of creating, in our market and other flower markets where this idea may be feasible, a department of analysis and statistics to govern the conditions of each market, a system to be placed under foreign management with a man in charge who, by experience in the wholesale cut flower commission business, is best fitted to carry on this work for an entire market. The management is to be surrounded by a board of sales managers, one from each licensed and bonded wholesale commission house and from each wholesale grower selling direct, this board of sales managers to oversee the handling of the entire daily receipts of their respective markets.

The mission of the department of analysis and statistics would be to compile under a code system all incoming consignments and shipments against the city's and country's outgoing quantity sales and thus be able to give out information to every distributing agency that would be of direct benefit in increasing the revenue to the grower and safeguarding production on a most profitable basis.

Benefits to Be Derived.

Every grower in sending a copy of his consignments to this department of analysis and statistics thereby would give the department the facts of what the true market conditions really were—the first step to stabilize the prices to the retail dealer and to regulate the law of supply and demand to some extent to everyone's advantage.

The wholesale growers dealing direct and the commission dealers will then know with some degree of accuracy the daily addition or reduction of the market supply, certainly an advantage over the individual haphazard conclusions of one wholesaler as to what constitutes market prices.

The department, if necessary, could be empowered to restrict the seller in making unscrupulous demands upon the retailers at holidays or during a flower famine, and likewise to prevent as far as possible the sale of the growers' products at unreasonably low prices.

The system would point out improvements in production, such as what can be raised most successfully and is in keeping with the wants of the wholesale and retail dealers.

Price Regulation.

It would introduce price regulation, to keep in balance inclinations to extremes of high prices and low prices, as a means of bringing to an end unwholesome practices.

Critics of growers, wholesalers and retailers could interest themselves in this department for a remedy.

Autocratic price fixing, or market control (hardly possible in cut flowers), is not thought of, but a department as above suggested could act as a guide to prices on all cut flowers and plants.

Such a department would repay the grower many times over by checking to the greatest degree waste in cut flowers and price depreciation, and when functioning properly ought to be far better than an ungovernable, unscientific method of making our consignments to the individual wholesale house and its misdirected selling prices on outgoing stock.

The grower who peddles direct to the retailer and who is now outside the jurisdiction of the commission dealer would learn to appreciate this service and get into line as a member of this organization and as a consignor to the commission merchant.

The statistics arrived at would give roses in all their varieties in all lengths of stem, and also carnations of all colors, subordinated to a grading in their original bunches. The number of plants and the number of blooms cut would complete the records, thus getting at the truth about every wholesale greenhouse establishment for this market. Chrysanthemums, sweet peas, violets, orchids and all miscellaneous stock consigned could be kept track of on the quantity basis.

Maximum and Minimum.

A minimum and maximum selling price is in order.

A minimum selling price would be a bottom figure in time of an overabundance of stock, whether due to heavy crops or weak buying. Unsold stock would serve a more useful purpose than killing prices.

A maximum price would be as high as possible consistent with allowing reasonable profits to the retail florist.

A minimum and maximum price would be sure to redeem our investment, our cash outlay for coal, labor, fertilizers, hail insurance, tornado insurance, wear and tear of benches, pipes and boiler and the general depreciation of the greenhouses themselves, besides adding thousands of dollars annually to the growers' income.

Some may shake their heads and say that all this sounds well in theory, but that it will not work in practice. I think, however, if we will show an inclination to throw aside some of our fixed habits, it may not be so difficult for the trade to achieve this change of marketing methods.

A maximum and minimum price operating from day to day on a fluctuating basis ought to be better than gambling to obtain our profits at holiday times, to the dislike of the retailer and the dissatisfaction of the consumer.

Every time we experience a glut we lose money. Every time we run into a tight market we take our chances on what our sales reports will be. Let us build up our business by aiding the retailer to satisfactorily serve the public. Of course, with present ways of wholesaling, except for holiday prices, the temper of the unorganized retailer is to make every effort to keep prices down, imperiling our existence.

Accounting.

The S. A. F. has called attention to the subject of the cost of production in greenhouses. The Chicago Florists' Club, during the administration of Fred Lautenschlager, selected a committee to make a report on that subject. This work undoubtedly now rests with us.

The national, state and local governments, in order to ease the country's financial war burdens, out of necessity will interfere with the business of the cut flower producer by taxing our industry, making it compulsory for us to keep a set of books from which the tax collector may gather the truth. Guesswork in making assessments, by merely looking into the greenhouses, will not continue always.

The capital investment of greenhouse establishments has doubled, requiring a larger return of interest on the investment and a larger margin of profit for its operation. For that reason it behooves us to set aside surplus earnings and be prepared to protect or replace our greenhouse investments when such condition becomes imperative.

Learning Real Profits.

The hazardous risks incurred in greenhouse investments, the speculative nature of the sale of our products, are apt to show profits that are but a sham. The expense of grower's production should be met by actual sales, with weekly or monthly statements drawn to tell the greenhouse owner of his real profits or losses.

A bureau of accounting, if permanently formed, could study every phase of greenhouse cost, so that we might have a plan to determine the cost of growing cut flowers and plants. Cost systems are installed in all other lines of industry as the most important factors in production management, yet it can truly be said that a cost system in our business is still in the stage of formation. Cost systems would go a long way toward putting a greenhouse establishment on a stable financial basis and in the good graces of the banker. Who knows how many retail growers absorb their profit from store sales and sink it in greenhouse losses? What profits are made in the store are often lost in the greenhouses for lack of knowledge of what the flowers cost?

Department Store Competition.

Department store competition, by advertised special sales of cut flowers, demoralizes the public mind and justly arouses the suspicion of the regular customers of the retail florists.

More sales can be made through the retail dealer, at an average fair price for cut flowers and plants, than through department stores at their ridiculously low prices, from which we are bound to suffer.

Our products placed at equitable prices before the consumer and kept from department store competition would go far to satisfy the regular all-the-year-around cut flower dealer and consumer. Furthermore, downward price competition may be called advertising and may temporarily increase distribution, but does so usually at a sacrifice to profitable production and with an unwholesome effect on the retail dealer and consumer.

Advertising.

The local and national advertising campaigns have been closely followed. Gluts cannot be entirely overcome when greenhouse production gets beyond the ability of the retail dealer to dispose of it. But before the grower and wholesaler sacrifice the stock, to undersell each competitive wholesaler, before prices are reduced to the lowest level and before the stock goes to waste, why not utilize surplus production as a medium for advertising? Cut flowers and plants in themselves have the highest advertising value in their appeal to the human family. Let the surplus stock prove its value in effective advertising as an addition to the cost of the printed advertising.

Surplus cut flower campaigns can be laid out and profitably utilized. Remember the high cost of selling begins with the low price of cut flowers. Stock would not accumulate as waste if used to further the work of the advertising bureaus.

Never before have we had our eyes opened to the opportunities of reaching out for business. Cut flowers and plants should be a part of every home. "Say It with Flowers" should be brought to consumers' attention in such forceful and compelling ways that every grower in city, village and crossroads will sit up and listen.

We have been old-fashioned and slow to accept advances made to us, but growers' organizations should always be ready to listen and take heed of the new era of progress before us.

Organization.

As an organization we hope to improve our own condition and the other branches of the trade in the marketing of our products. An organization should represent a majority, or criticism will be hurled at one another, relationship will be strained, factionalism and clannishness will arise to obstruct and impede the work we set out to do.

We should strive to remedy willingly defects as they arise in our business, to safeguard healthy and prosperous growing conditions, to discourage low selling, which jeopardizes quality production.

The grower who holds back from joining his organization "drifts with the tide," only to see other lines of organized industry forge to the front. The organization that is profitable for the one individual pays better for them all. To withhold your membership compels other growers to pay for all the benefits you take advantage of.

The officers of every organization burden themselves with their duties in behalf of its members; so the least a grower can do in his organization is to show support by attendance at the regular meetings. Every grower should be anxious of the opportunity to be a member of his organization. No greater testimonial was given to the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago than the movement towards a national organization.

CHICAGO GROWERS BANQUET.

Annual Meeting.

After a wait which put the final edge on appetites already keen, about seventy-five growers and their friends filed into the banquet room in the Randolph hotel, Chicago, Thursday evening, June 17, for the annual meeting and stag banquet of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago. When all had found places at the long tables, which were decorated with pink roses and white carnations, Joseph Kohout, president of the organization, with a few well chosen words bade everyone be seated and then the fun began.

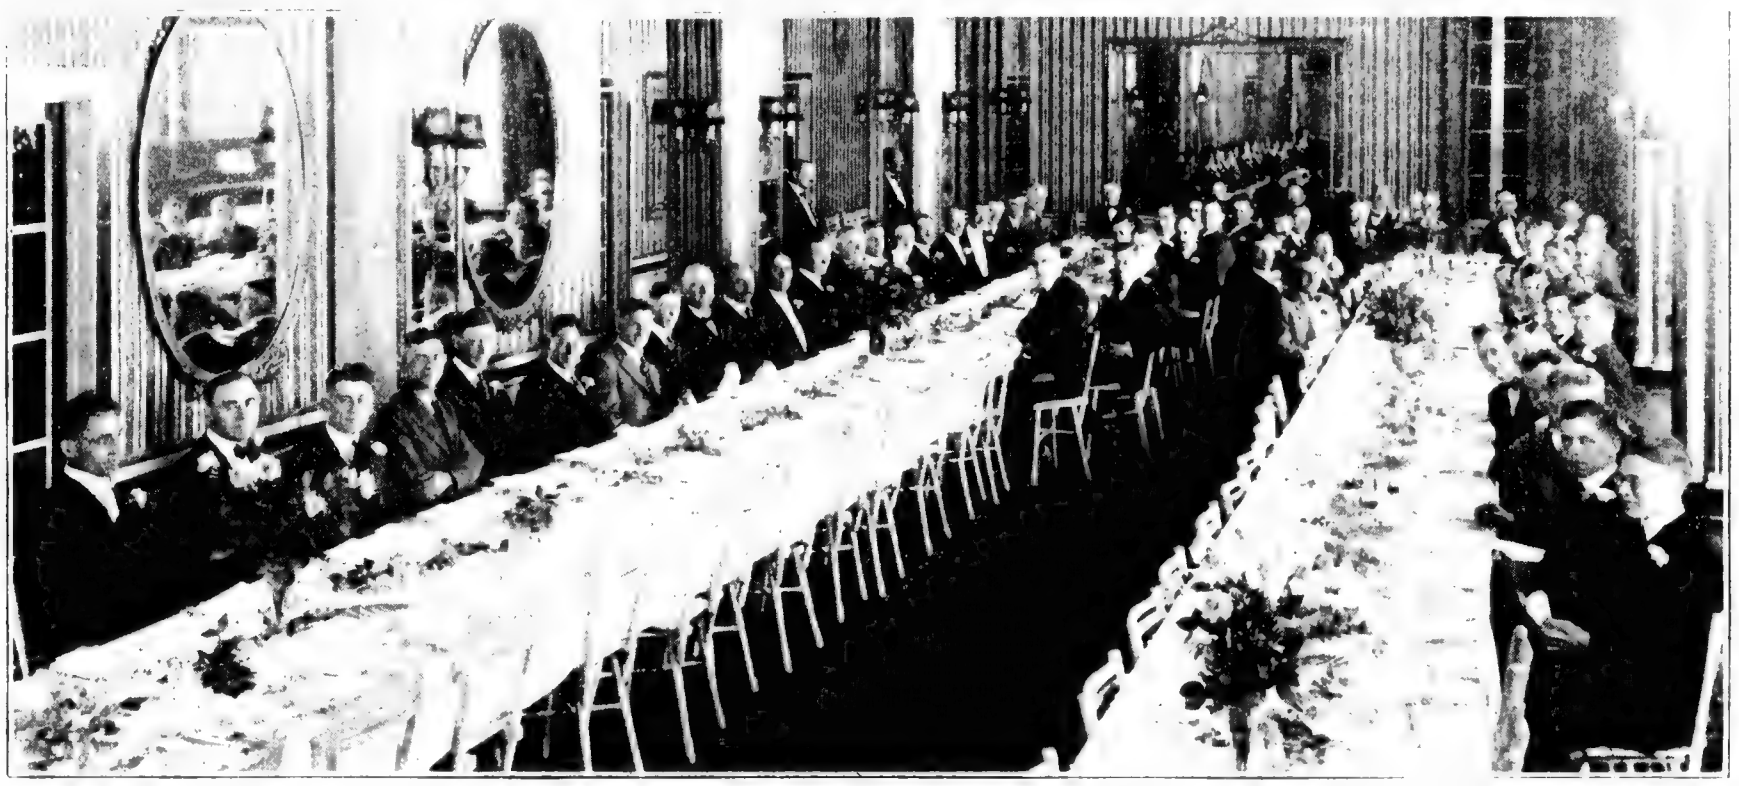
First a photograph was made which included everybody's best smile, as may be seen in the illustration on this page. Then the pianist who had been playing when the gathering assembled resumed his work and another member of the entertainment troupe for which Paul Weiss, as chairman of the entertainment committee, had arranged led and encouraged the banqueters in singing more than a score of popular songs between the courses of the excellent dinner. This young woman had the enthusiastic coöperation of Timothy Waters, who displayed then the same contagious good nature familiar to members of the Chicago Florists' Club. Prominent in the singing, solo and otherwise, was Eddie Hunt, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

Other features of the entertainment were the black-face comedian with the Irish accent and the saxophone, the sleight-of-hand man who did things that made the h. c. of l. look easy in comparison and the solo dancing in both the Egyptian and the shimmy styles.

Officers Reëlected.

Partly from a reluctance to turn to such serious matters as business and chiefly from an entire satisfaction with this last—and first—year's administration, the organization quickly reëlected its officers to serve for another year, as follows: President, Joseph Kohout; vice-president, Peter Pearson; treasurer, N. J. Wietor, and secretary, Otto Amling.

H. V. Swenson, secretary of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, sketched the development of last year's local publicity work and outlined the chief points of what had been planned for this year. The chief endeavor, he said, will be to build up a steady, all-the-year business through the use of four or five big ideas. One of these is the fact that there are in Chicago almost 3,000,000 birthdays each year; birthday greetings said with flowers will provide a large, yet continuous demand. Another line which may be followed is the desirability of having business men use flowers more commonly in their offices, as well as in their buttonholes.



In addition to brief speeches by the officers, there was some discussion of the basis of assessing growers to be adopted by the National Flower Growers' Association; no definite action was taken on this matter, the decision being postponed until the July meeting, when the organization's delegates to the Cleveland meeting in August will be chosen.

The Market.

The market last week was on a steady go and everything sold well. Giganteum lilies seem to be the only flowers to promise a slight glut, bringing the price down to $6 and $8 per hundred.

Peonies are now a thing of the past for this season, but such flowers as feverfew and delphiniums are arriving just in time to fill in. Roses are still holding their own and going well. Outdoor sweet peas are beginning to make their appearance. Carnations are small and a large number of them are deformed, but, being staple flowers, they clean up fairly well.

Gladioli are arriving in good condition, including varieties such as America, Halley, Panama, Francis King and Augusta. Valley is in exceptionally good shape and cleans up readily, the best bringing $8 per hundred.

The first water lilies were seen last week, but, being in short supply, they were soon sold. Gaillardias, coreopsis and cornflowers are still selling well and look as though they are good for a few more weeks. Snapdragons and stocks are about through, but good ones are still to be had.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has just received a good line of fancy baskets and reports business booming.

W. G. Matthews, Dayton, O., was in the city last week to transact business. He reports having sold his place to the Rolf Zetlitz Co., Lima, O.

Earl Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., motored here and reports a new crop of roses for early shipment.

H. W. Sheppard has been busy lately on graduation and wedding work and also has had a good deal of telegraph delivery work.

Mrs. George Meyer, wife of George Meyer, of Avondale, has been confined to bed with a nervous attack, but is doing well now.

The Market.

The market showed considerable improvement last week. The weather was cool and the general condition of all stock was good. The supply of rambler roses has increased to such an extent that prices have dropped considerably. Sweet peas are still scarce. Roses and carnations are better in quality , as well as improved in quantity. Myosotis and valley are scarce. The demand for funeral flowers has not been so large, while weddings, graduations, etc., have kept the trade busy. This season is reported as one of the best on record.

Various Notes.

J. P. Cureton, of Greenwood, S. C., was in town last week on a business trip.

Fred Henock, treasurer of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., was also here on business.

John Sharper, of Oxon Hill, Md., is cutting some extra fine gladioli.

The Florists' and Growers' Union held its regular meeting June 16. Regular business was transacted and a number of new members were admitted.

TATE'S TIPS

NEED OF ORGANIZATION.

Growers Forging Ahead.

From the many accounts we hear of the rapid growth of the National Flower Growers' Association, with the date of the permanent organization still two months in the future, it bids fair, when that date arrives, to start on its active career as a strong organization. The florists all over the country have realized the need of such an organization for a long time and last January, in Chicago, at the meeting of the American Carnation Society, a coterie of growers with a vision of the future of the business were bold enough to launch the project and form a temporary organization, with such men as F. C. W. Brown, J. F. Ammann, E. C. Gullett, W. R. Pierson and R. C. Kerr at its head.

This list of officers has brought prestige to the new association and today there is a spirit of confidence throughout the whole country among the growers. There is not a man among the promoters of this new organization who has an individual ax to grind; the development of the business as an industry is the sole aim.

Watchword Is Efficiency.

I have before me a copy of the proposed constitution and by-laws of this organization. Article II defines the object of the organization. There is no man, whether he be in the business in a large or a small way, who, if he studies this article, will not realize that the time has come when these problems must be faced. Note, for instance, "To devise ways and means for the best and most economical way of producing stock; to bring about uniform working conditions for labor; to educate florists to better business methods; to devise and carry out ways and means to better selling conditions and eliminate the present cause of waste in marketing flowers." These are just a few of the problems this organization will deal with. In these days when efficiency is the watchword, everyone realizes the importance of them.

Preserving the Business.

The first question I hear many growers asking is, "Is this possible?" These same timid men would have asked the same question about the association itself prior to last January. Of course, there is no one who believes that the organization of this association is going to usher in the millennium in the florists' business. There will be hard work ahead, but this work will be done in a systematic manner. There is an old proverb, and a true one, which says, "What is everybody's business is nobody's business." These questions must be taken up and studied; then the solution of this investigation must be incorporated into a system and this system adopted by the organization and put into actual practice by the individual members. Then comes the most important part of all, living up to the system. A chain is just as strong as its weakest link; that is the case with any system.

But I can hear some saying, "This is all utopian; it can't be done." It has been done successfully by other industries; why not by the florists? I predict that it will be accomplished, for the men with brains enough to produce a new rose, or to grow that rose to perfection after it has been produced, certainly have the brains to sell that rose when they give the marketing of their product some of the thought required to produce it. To be brief, I have heard some allude to this new organization as the "preservation of the florists' business." This implies preserving something we already have. From all that I have read on the subject, and I have studied everything that has been written up to this time, the keynote of the promoters is expansion or growth.

There is no body of men in the universe more familiar with growth than the florists. From the time the florist puts his cutting into the propagating bench till he has the matured plant, what is required? Faith, care and work. But look at his reward for the exercise of these three cardinal principles. These same principles are going to make the National Flower Growers' Association one of the strongest and most useful organizations of its kind in the country and consequently place the business on a plane where it belongs.

How About Retailers?

But there is a branch of the business which it seems to me has no part in this organization and it is a branch that is just as important as the growing end of the business. I am not taking up their problems with any view of creating strife or discord, but, Mr. Retailer, don't you think that you owe to yourself to organize along the same lines as your brothers, the growers? There are plenty of men among the retailers of this country who, if they would just launch such a movement, would be astonished to see how it would be taken up. Surely the retailer has just as many problems to face as the grower. Let a committee of retailers meet with a committee from the growers' association in honest coöperation; think what it would mean for the whole trade.

The growers took advantage of the American Carnation Society's meeting to launch their organization. There is going to be a larger gathering of florists in Cleveland in August. Why not a retailers' organization? I am sure it would be welcomed by the growers. This would mean that the entire trade would be organized. All are in one business, with different problems to solve, but we have scriptural warrant for the statement, "A house divided against itself shall not stand." Tate.

Aurora, Neb.—F. A. Davidson has sold out his business in Aurora and has gone to Minneapolis, Minn.

Nashville, Tenn.—By a recent court decision the Prairie State Fertilizer Co. was ordered to pay the McIntyre Floral Co. the sum of $10,000 for damages and was prohibited from further operation of its fertilizer plant, erected alongside the range of the floral firm. It was stated that the dust from grinding phosphate and the fumes of acid at the fertilizer plant were destructive to plant growth.

FROM THE FIFTH CITY

COME TO CLEVELAND!

Preparations for Convention.

The preparations for the largest meeting that the Society of American Florists' has ever held go merrily on apace. The local arrangements are ahead of schedule, and if the signs apparent at the present time are to be taken as an indication of what the future holds, then the florists and allied tradesmen who make Cleveland their stopping-off place August 17 to 19 will go away singing the praises of the city to the skies.

To tell you that James McLaughlin, secretary of the Cleveland Florists' Club, is taking care of the arrangements for hotel accommodations is sufficient to satisfy all who know him that our guests will be well looked after. You had better drop Mr. McLaughlin a line today, so that you may be assured of a good room, and not wait until the last moment. It is a difficult job to take care of a large number such as we have at our conventions, and we rely on your good judgment to help us out by getting your reservations in early. Mr. McLaughlin's address is care of the McCallum Co., 421 High street.

Secretary Young on his arrival here will be assisted by Charles Schmidt and his committee, who promise us that the exhibitors will be well taken care of at that most trying time, when they are getting their displays ready for the opening.

New Committee Formed.

A special new committee has been formed, with George Bate, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., at its head, to take care of transporting the displays of the exhibitors on their arrival here. Exhibitors, be assured that if your goods arrive in Cleveland you will have them in the shortest space of time and at reasonable charges.

The local finances are being taken care of by Herman Knoble. We tell you this only to prove that to every last detail the interests of those who are going to be with us are our every consideration.

The bowlers are assured of a good match when they know that Charles Graham and his team are preparing to prove their claim to real ability in that line; so bring along your favorite outfit, either teams or singles, and you will have the opportunity to display your prowess.

Mr. Kester, of the J. M. Gasser Co., and his aids are looking after the decorations.

The entertainment committee, headed by Frank Ritzenthaler, has something up its sleeve, which, up to date, it has refused to divulge. Whatever it is, those of you who know the committee know that you will be well taken care of; so bring along the ladies and while "father" is attending the business end of the trip "mother" will be well entertained.

Our local club president, H. C. Merrick, of the Lord & Burnham Co., and Carl Hagenburger, of Cleveland cherry fame, are working in conjunction to make the meeting one that will stand out as the best in the long line of successful conventions that have preceded it. Mr. Hagenburger is general chairman of all committees.

Making Meeting the Best.

We have all put in a long, hard, trying season and are in need of a little recreation, recreation that will bring with it benefit to our business. We need to rub shoulders with the other fellow, to find out what he is doing and how he is doing it.

Growers, the great opportunity is here to gain a more thorough knowledge and control of your business. If you fail to attend the growers' meeting, called by J. Fred Ammann, here in August, you are not doing justice to the money you have invested in your range. If for any reason you cannot come yourself, then send someone to represent you. You owe it to yourself and to your business.

Everything that can be done to make your visit to our fair city a trip to be remembered is being carried out in a typical Cleveland way. So come and help us, and help us help you.

Vice-President, S. A. F.

CLEVELAND NOTES.

The Friedley Co. is planning to reorganize its greenhouses, the contract having been let two weeks ago. At the completion of this work the greenhouses will be in A-1 condition. This firm is planning to grow a large quantity of cyclamens, hydrangeas, poinsettias, chrysanthemums, primroses, Easter lilies and spring bedding stock for the coming year.

The Knoble Bros. Co. is planning large extensions to the nursery department. Prospects for the coming year look fine.

The Park Floral Co. is just closing its most successful year in the business. All of the stores have been unusually busy and business is keeping up remarkably well. The greatest trouble, says Albert Barber, has been to get help of the right kind. The efficiency of common labor, such as is used in stores and greenhouses, has depreciated at least fifty per cent, while the pay has more than doubled.

The Jones-Russell Co., which has been for ten years at the junction of Huron road and Euclid avenue, will move about August 1 to a new store in the Hanna building, Fourteenth street and Euclid avenue. This district is the new shopping and theater district of Cleveland and the new store will be not only the most beautiful florist's establishment in Cleveland, but one of the finest stores in the entire country. The decorative scheme, which is in the hands of one of the leading decorative artists in Cleveland, will be along entirely new lines. The motive is oriental.

Damage to the amount of $2,500 was done to the Greenhouses of Michael Moran, 7904 Elton avenue, June 4, when a fire of undetermined origin broke out. Many roses were ruined.

The Felton Flowers Co. was recently incorporated with a capitalization of $250,000. D. R. Wilkin and O. H. Findley were given as the incorporators.

MOTT MAKES CLEVELAND.

Walter E. Cook, Inc., evidently believes in the longevity of the seed business in Cleveland, having rented a fine building for ninety-nine years. He is thoroughly remodeling it to meet the needs of a retail trade which has increased by leaps and bounds. Part of the flooring remains of a bowling alley and Mr. Cook said that any time during the dull season his partner, James Fischer, and he could indulge in the popular game. The front of the store is decorated with window boxes.

Johnson's Seed Store is another to follow the onward march of improvement, having leased stores directly across from the present location on a 99-year lease. With an entire building occupied by Botzum Bros. and a white tile front occupied by the A. C. Kendel Seed Store, Cleveland may be proud of this branch of the industry.

Harry E. Dow, on the west side, and Charles Hendrickson, on the south side, report good business. Possibly it is not up to what was expected, much stock being left over, no doubt affecting the contract situation.

The Friedley Co., Cleveland, O., is passing through the best season on record, according to Superintendent Shepherd Morris, who was preparing a large number of Boston ferns for immediate sale. He remarked that one could not begin to supply the demand.

Adam Graham was directing the planting of the numerous beds fronting his greenhouses, in Cleveland, and expressed the hope that nature would be generous to the craft this summer, so that the visitors to the S. A. F. convention could admire the displays.

James MacLaughlin, of the committee on hotels for the S. A. F. convention, is making every effort to locate each application to the best possible advantage. Accommodation in Cleveland at any time of the year is at a premium.

BOSTON.

The Market.

If we had been favored with pleasant weather last week, business would have been decidedly above normal for the season, but with four consecutive days of rain, hail, fog, gales and low temperature more suggestive of early November than mid-June, there was little wonder that buying lagged. Prices were ahead of a year ago, 'tis true, but there was considerable stock carried over from day to day, especially in the case of white flowers. With more favorable weather this week and Harvard and other class days calling for considerable stock, business has developed more life.

Roses vary from $2 per hundred upward, with $16 as the top price on fancy grades. Ophelia, Ward, Columbia, Kaiserin and Miller are all proving good sellers. Carnations are deteriorating rapidly and many flowers shipped in soon fall asleep. White varieties are druggy. Sweet peas have sold well and all good flowers sell quickly. A lot of ten weeks' stocks comes in and is difficult to dispose of. Snapdragons, calendulas and feverfew no one seems to want. There is a fair call for lilies, but callas are hard to sell. Good marguerites are in demand and gladioli meet with quite fair sales.

Small lots of bouvardia sell on sight. Cattleyas are scarce and dear. A fair lot of other seasonable orchids come in and small lots of gardenias. Peonies were heavily damaged by gales and rains. They will be at their height here about June 25, while roses are only now commencing to bloom outdoors. Smilax and Asparagus plumosus have both been in good demand this month.

Club Ladies' Night.

The June meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club attracted an attendance of over 200, including a large number of the fair sex, it being ladies' night. Three new members were elected. Announcements were made regarding the annual picnic to be held in Cunningham park, East Milton, July 22, which President Bartsch promised would once more beat all records. There were numerous exhibits, including superb Lilium candidum from Daniel Whyte, peonies from James Methven and others, aquilegias and pyrethrums from W. N. Craig, roses and cattleyas from Peter Arnott and numerous other outdoor flowers.

Business was shortened as much as possible, so that the entertainment of the evening could be enjoyed. This proved the finest the club has ever had and every selection received enthusiastic encores. J. C. Harris, of Penn's, furnished all the talented artistes and, with them, was accorded a rising vote of thanks at the close. The Commonwealth quartette sang superbly. Miss Ruth Stickney, of the New England Conservatory of Music, brought down the house with her violin selections, and Miss Emily Edgar sang charmingly. Messrs. Ecker and Shaughnessy in duets, and Messrs. Robinson and Ecker in solos scored great successes. John Liden as a humorist proved inimitable and kept the audience in a roar of laughter.

The hit of the evening was made when the quartette sang "Say It with Flowers," Miss Stickney playing a violin obbligato, while the Misses Julia and Cecilia Ecker, of Boston, scattered choice flowers from their baskets through the audience. Copies of the song were furnished to all present with the compliments of Penn the Florist. At the conclusion of the entertainment a collation was served and following this an orchestra furnished music for dancing until midnight. There will be no club meetings during July and August.

Damage by Hail at Framingham.

The weather has proved variable and erratic this season, with frequent torrential rains. June 15 there was a severe electrical storm accompanied by a deluge of rain, and hail fell in many places. At Framingham the hail storm proved exceptionally severe. The stones were of great size and covered the ground to the depth of three inches. At the establishment of William R. Nicholson the most serious damage was done, over 5,000 squares of glass being broken and great damage being done to the young chrysanthemums ready for planting out and to all other indoor crops. Outdoors were over 20,000 carnations and these were badly cut and battered. Mr. Nicholson estimates his damage at some thousands of dollars. Stock which looked promising is badly crippled. He always made a special feature of early chrysanthemums and a great proportion of these are entirely ruined.

At S. J. Goddard's, about half a mile distant, damage amounted to about $1,000, but stock here was not seriously damaged. At John E. Nelson's about 250 squares of glass were broken, while at South Framingham J. Seaver & Sons and J. T. Butterworth escaped unscathed. This proved to be the most severe and destructive hail storm which has visited this section in years.

Peony Exhibition.

After being battered by four days of successive rain, which only ceased on the evening before the exhibition of June 19 and 20 opened, it was little wonder that the peony display was smaller in size and inferior in quality to those of former years. Many of the flowers were weather-stained and much finer ones will undoubtedly be shown at the next exhibition, coming June 26 and 27. Far the finest display in the show, with the highest quality blooms, came from George N. Smith, of Wellesley. His general display was much ahead of any others staged. For twenty varieties Mr. Smith was an easy first, with fine blooms of M. Jules Elie, carnea elegans, Cherry Hill, M. M. Cahuzac, Marie Stuart, Venus, Mme. Ducel, Mme. Calot, Mme. de Verneville, Modeste Guerin, Virginie Philomel, Princess Beatrice, Lady Alexandra Duff, Karl Rosenfield, edulis superba, Mme. Emile Lemoine and Alexander Dumas; second, T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co.

For the best specimen bloom, George N. Smith won with a handsome flower of M. Jules Elie; second, Mrs. Percy C. Brown. For twelve named varieties, single, T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. won with Whitleyi major, Black Prince, Clairette, Prince Alexander, Hesperus, Queen of May, Lady Lillian, Ogle, Duchess of Portland, Madeline Gunther, Purity and Stanley; second, McKissock Gardens.

For twelve named varieties, John Morris, gardener for Robert C. Morse, won with Mme. Crousse, Felix Crousse, Georgiana Shaylor, Therese, Duc de Wellington, Mlle. Rousseau, Lady Alexandra Duff, Eugene Verdier, festiva maxima and L'Independence. The same exhibitor won for twelve blooms of pink and twelve blooms of white.

T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. won the American Peony Society's silver medal for a general display, but the flowers were in poor condition, owing to the weather. Uncompeted classes will be competed for June 26.

Hillcrest Gardens had fine displays of cut flowers, vegetables and strawberries. Henry Stewart, gardener to Miss Cornelia Warren, showed hydrangeas, roses, carnations and Oncidium tigrinum.

J. T. Butterworth put up a magnificent bank of Miltonia vexillaria. Some seventy-five plants were included and arranged so as to show the individuality of each. The flowers were of large size, carried up to eight or ten flowers per stalk, and showed superb culture. This exhibit was worthily awarded a gold medal.

Douglas Eccleston, superintendent for A. C. Burrage, staged a grand group of 100 specimen orchids, containing choice odontiodas, odontoglossums, oncidiums, phalænopsis, brassocattleyas, vandas, cypripediums and other genera. He also staged a fine special group of Cattleya gigas, finely flowered; also a large specimen of Vandopsis gigantea and Vanda tricolor planilabus. A huge specimen of Sobralia Amesiana carried fifty open flowers, and a large mass of Cattleya Mossiæ carried 200 flowers and was awarded a silver medal. Thanks to the pleasant weather, the public attended the exhibition in large numbers.

Various Notes.

The Boston Florists' Association will hold its annual dinner and picnic at Wardhurst, Lynnfield, June 26. Automobiles will leave Massachusetts avenue opposite Hoffman's store about 1:30 p. m. A good attendance is looked for.

While the rhododendron display in the Arnold Arboretum this year is far below the average on private estates, these beautiful broad-leaved evergreens are blooming magnificently, the abundant rains being much to their liking. Kalmias now flowering are not making so fine a show as in 1919.

Subscriptions are coming in freely for the club picnic at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 22. There will be baseball games for married and single ladies, commercial growers and private gardeners, and boys, with some twenty-five other athletic events on the list.

The wholesale flower markets and commission houses will start early closing July 3 and continue through the months of July and August.

Welch Bros. Co. are doing a great business in peonies these days and are handling more than any other firm in the city. They have a splendid lot of roses and report extra fine June business.

At Penn's wedding orders are numerous at present and keep the staff busy. William Penn and wife leave on a five weeks' vacation in Maine next week.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

WANT TO SEE THE SOUTH?

For the florists throughout the country I have been thinking for some time of inaugurating an excursion during the month of March next year through Texas and other southern states. Before going too far into details, I should like to have an expression of opinion from florists in different sections who would be interested. The object of this excursion would be to familiarize the florists of the country with Texas and the south in general and to let them know what we have in this section, in order that they may thoroughly understand the wonderful possibilities of our great southland.

While we have not gone into details, I have given some thought to the matter and should suggest that we make up a special train, leaving some central point, possibly Cleveland, O., which will be a good mobilizing point for florists from the east and also for those around Detroit and Chicago, and then take up the florists in St. Louis and add to our party as we go.

It strikes me that this would be a great opportunity for an excursion composed exclusively of florists and allied tradesmen to enjoy a wonderful trip during the month that affords great possibilities to see the country at the time of the year when climatic conditions are ideal and the florists can get away.

I suggest the following itinerary: Cleveland to St. Louis; St. Louis to Kansas City; Kansas City to Oklahoma City; Oklahoma City to Dallas; Dallas to Fort Worth, Waco, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Corpus Christi and Brownsville. Return trip could be made via New Orleans and, if arrangements justify, through Atlanta, Ga.

This is a tentative proposition. Are you interested? Have you any suggestions to make? I should be pleased to hear from as many as possible by the time the Texas State Florists' Association meets in Fort Worth, July 21 and 22. This move will be sponsored by the association if sufficient interest is shown.

We have nothing to sell you and there is nothing behind this move except the desire to show you our country. By going in a party and on a special train, the expenses would be materially reduced.

Please let me hear from you at the earliest possible moment.

Robert C. Kerr.

EXPENSIVE EXPRESS SERVICE.

Experience is expensive, especially when it involves hundreds of dollars in plants, loss of time, stock and the delay consequent thereto.

This year I have lost no less than $500 worth of plants wholly because of the exceedingly poor express service from the north and east. Practically every order that was sent to me by express has been a total, or practically a total, loss, due either to delay or to rough treatment, but mostly to delay.

One large order came through in good time, but was so roughly handled that it was practically a total loss, for all that I have of that order is a few small, sickly plants and they were perfectly good when they were shipped.

Another order was shipped in two lots. One lot was in transit sixteen days and the other fourteen days. Both were a total loss when received. The shipment was ordered sent by parcel post, special delivery. I stated in the order that the express service was so poor that I did not want to risk it. I sent the money with the order to cover what I believed the parcel post charges would be, stating that I would send more if necessary. The shipping orders were willfully and totally ignored and the shipment sent by express, with the results stated. The company from which they were bought stated, in reply to my letter asking why they were not forwarded as requested, that they were obliged to ship by express after May 1, as stated in their catalogue. I did not have their catalogue, but ordered from their advertisement.

It seems to me that, regardless of what the firm may say in its catalogue, when goods are sent at the purchaser's risk he has the right and the privilege to order them shipped as he may wish and may so request; that the failure of the shipper to comply with the purchaser's request would make him liable for damages.

The express service has surely worked a severe and expensive loss and has been a source of embarrassment to my business and to my profits, not to mention the worry and trouble caused thereby. Therefore it has occurred to me that it might be possible to have the express company devise satisfactory systems of special delivery and insurance for perishable goods, especially plants, flowers and like materials, which would materially improve the delivery service and eliminate the slow, costly and unsatisfactory settlements of claims.

I, for one, would certainly be glad and more than willing to pay the necessary extra charges for such service, if it can be had. It would certainly be far less expensive and much more satisfactory to all concerned, it would seem to me. However, while the express company may be to blame, I appreciate, partially at least, the handicaps that they are laboring under, due to conditions existing at present.

The opinions of other florists on this subject would be much appreciated.

Rider M. Johnson.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

The Janesville Floral Co., Janesville, Wis., reports an excellent plant trade for this spring. It has a field of fine peonies in bloom.

Charles Rathjen, Janesville, Wis., will market 500,000 Chadwick chrysanthemum cuttings, in which variety he specializes.

The Burlington Floral Co., Burlington, Wis., has enjoyed a busy season in all branches of the trade.

D. R. White, Sandusky, O., has taken his son, Morley, into the business. Mr. White has spoken of retiring, but the son's entry into the business will continue this well established greenhouse.

FIGHT FUEL PRICES

AFTER COAL PROFITEERS.

Palmer Orders Drive.

Instructions to seek indictments wherever investigation warrants such action against coal miners were given out June 17 by Attorney-General Palmer, carrying a ray of hope to greenhouse men who saw no possibility of being able to buy at prices quoted.

"The department of justice," said Mr. Palmer's instructions, "is receiving a number of letters in which complaint is made that bituminous coal prices at the mines now range from $7 to $11 a ton, with a further increase imminent.

"Production cost figures show that during January, 1920, their costs per ton averaged $2.32 at the mines. Since then there has been an increase of twenty-seven per cent in the cost of labor, enhancing the production cost to $2.79 per ton.

"This situation demands the prompt attention of all United States attorneys. Please give special attention to the matter and seek indictments where investigation discloses that an unreasonable profit has been taken, advising the department of the action taken."

Coal Trade Admits It.

The leading journal of the coal trade last week headed its editorial page with an acknowledgment of profiteering in that industry and a condemnation of those who engaged in that practice. The editorial read in part:

"Again the Black Diamond is compelled to take notice of the unwarranted high prices which a small minority of operators is charging for coal. We hear of $10 and $11 prices being demanded and obtained for coal going into the off-shore trade. There is no condition, no matter how bad, that would justify such a practice.

"The Black Diamond has sympathy for those operators who are attempting to produce coal under present conditions, when production too frequently entails a loss, but no operator can maintain the position that he must charge as high as $10 a ton in order to make ends meet. If the case is as bad as that, far better that he close down his operation entirely and turn the cars over to such mines as can produce coal at a lower figure."

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

Last week activity was still displayed by the retailers at the various wholesale markets. All were kept busy with weddings, school work and the season's end in social functions.

The first part of the week the weather was extremely hot and stock arrived in bad condition from outside points, but quality revived somewhat the last three days, when there came a change to a cool spell.

The supply last week was quite large and everything of good quality was consumed daily; there was enough seasonable stock to supply all demands. While the retailers report excellent trade, the wholesalers report good shipping trade to points west.

Roses are none too good at present; still they clean up. White Killarney, the only white rose coming in, had the greatest demand. All colored stock, too, sold well, especially Premier, Columbia and Ophelia. Prices held to quotations, except in white, which sold slightly above.

Carnations had a large demand, with the best commanding $4 per hundred. The quality was not of the best, the blooms being small. Sweet peas are showing somewhat better quality; the week's consignment was large and the demand good all through the week. Valley is in fine demand and the supply equal. Easter and candidum lilies and callas are still plentiful.

Gladioli in all varieties are coming in. With the indoor crop almost over, the outdoor crop is beginning to arrive and the local growers say that it will be the largest ever, as all have gone heavily into growing gladioli this season.

These, with a fine supply of yellow and white Shasta daisies, cornflowers, snapdragons, feverfew, delphiniums and a few dahlias, make up the daily market.

The green market, as usual, cleans up daily on asparagus, with fancy ferns, new flat ferns and a good supply of galax in reserve.

State Association Officers.

L. H. Archias, president of the Missouri State Florists' Association, has appointed the following as district vice-presidents: R. L. Isherwood, Chillicothe; C. C. Sanders, Clayton; W. H. Rutherford, Hannibal; Hugo Busch, Jefferson City; Samuel Murray, Kansas City; Paul C. Stark, Louisiana; Immanuel Wittrup, Marshall; Edwin Denker, St. Charles; Frank A. Windler, St. Louis, and S. Bryson Ayres, Independence. J. J. Beneke, 1316 Pine street, St. Louis, is secretary.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners has postponed its meeting from July 4, the time first selected, to July 11, in Forest park; a number of important discussions will take place.

The Florists' Club's trustees, Oscar Ruff, Jules Bourdet and W. A. Rowe, say they are open for any suggestions from anyone in the trade as to new features to make up an attractive program for the annual florists' picnic at Normandy grove July 22.

Henry G. Berning and Mrs. Berning are spending a few weeks at Okawville, Ill., and the refreshing baths at this resort will benefit them both in preparation for their convention trip.

Several important meetings and the Florists' Club's thirty-fourth anniversary banquet are keeping Vice-president A. H. Hummert, of the St. Louis Seed Co., from attending the convention of the American Seed Trade Association at Milwaukee, June 22 to 24.

A stockholders' meeting of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. was held in the company's office, 1406 Pine street. The interest of the late J. T. Milligan has been sold to L. A. Hoerr, who now holds the controlling interest in the company.

George H. Pring, horticulturist at the Missouri Botanical Garden, left June 21 for Cleveland, O., where he will teach a summer course in gardening at the Normal High school. In his absence L. P. Jensen, the aboriculturist, will have charge of his department.

William Sanders, until recently at the Mullanphy Florists' downtown store, has opened an establishment of his own at 1302 North Grand avenue. It will be known as the Kissell Flower Shop.

Miss Marie Richardson, of Carr & Richardson, left with her mother for Detroit, June 21. Her trip will include Cleveland, Buffalo and Niagara Falls. The trip will consume a month. On Miss Richardson's return, T. C. Carr will take a northern trip which will include the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland.

Vincent J. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, entertained thirty Rotarians June 19 at the Hotel Statler and the party left for Atlantic City the same evening to attend the annual convention of Rotary Clubs. On Vincent Gorly's return, Frank Gorly will take his usual northern trip.

Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, O., spent a day in this city last week, visiting the trade and showing her work in publicity. Mrs. Wilson is on her way west; her first stop after leaving this city is Kansas City and she expects to go as far west as California.

W. C. Smith, A. Brix and L. J. Bourdet, all three enthusiastic fishermen, are making weekly fishing trips in the western part of Missouri. Their last week's catch was a large one, especially Mr. Smith's catch, which was displayed in the wholesale district.

The window display at Grimm & Gorly's new Washington avenue store had great attraction for shoppers in this crowded district. The big waterfall with the old mill on the hill, the fancy fish in the stream and the animals of all kinds in the wooded part were the chief features. This was the work of J. H. Harvey and was highly commended.

Frank Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Co., and H. W. Endres, of the Westover Nursery Co., Clayton, are in Chicago this week attending the annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, June 23 to 25.

W. J. Pilcher, state vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri, who has charge of the transportation of the Florists' Club, reports that he is assured of a large representation from this city to the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland. The rates and the official train will be reported at the Florists' Club meeting July 8.

Luther Armstrong, the oldest member of the Florists' Club, is on the road to recovery.

Edward Buechel, president of the Riessen Floral Co., passed a satisfactory week.

George Waldbart is up and around again, after a recent sick spell.

George Schmidt, formerly rose grower for Werner Bros. and W. J. Pilcher, is now with A. C. Brown, at Springfield, Ill.

Herman Knoll celebrated his first wedding anniversary June 19 at his home, 800 Kansas street. Mr. Knoll reports an excellent business season.

The early closing among wholesale florists caused many discussions last week, as some are closed Sunday. The retailer would not object to their closing all day Sunday if he could obtain stock as late as 5 p. m. Saturday. Closing from Saturday noon to Monday morning would cause hardship to the retailers. J. J. B.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Toward the end of last week the market gained strength and at the close business was good. Staple supplies commanded prices which might be considered normal for the time of year. Peony shipments were lighter and covered mainly late varieties from local sources. Heavy rains have nearly ended the peony crop, and prices of other commodities have in consequence had an upward tendency. There is always a feeling of relief when the height of the peony season has passed, but this year the street men saved many consignments from actual waste and few shippers have had to mourn the loss of express charges.

The graduation season is now in progress and roses are in good demand, particularly the lower grades. American Beauty is in fair supply, the best of the specials bringing $40 per hundred, with quotations on stock of lower quality down to $15 and short grades to $3. Hybrid teas are in good supply and move well at an advance over last week's prices for the longer grades. For ordinary varieties the range is $2 to $15 per hundred and for fancy varieties $3 to $20. Francis Scott Key commands Beauty prices. Quality, generally, is unusually fine for the time of year.

The supply of carnations continues quite large, but the quality of most of the arrivals is of the summer kind. One or two growers, however, are sending in blooms of really good substance and size, and these bring $5 to $6 readily. Inferiors are clearing at $2 to $3.

While cattleyas are not plentiful, the demand for them is anything but strong. The finest gigas bring as much as $1 per flower, with other grades down to 50 cents. A few gardenias are available, short-stemmed stock, at $1 to $3 per dozen.

Lily of the valley is scarce, temporarily, and the price has soared to $25 for the highest grade, with a short supply. There is, of course, much grumbling over this figure, but as one grower recently said, few retailers stock up on valley, and when the supply is bountiful no effort is made to exploit it, so when it is short the law of supply and demand must govern. Easter lilies are plentiful, with movement rather slow, at $5 to $8 per hundred.

Sweet peas are in oversupply and the quality is quite poor. The best are bringing $1.50 per hundred sprays.

Gladioli from outside are late, and good stalks are bringing from $6 to $10 per hundred. Callas are in moderate supply at $1 to $2 per dozen. The supply of miscellaneous flowers is increasing, but, on the whole, clearances are satisfactory. Centaurea imperialis and cornflowers move pretty well, and other herbaceous flowers, such as coreopsis, gaillardias, calendulas, daisies, snapdragons, sweet williams, gypsophila, myosotis and delphiniums, meet an ordinary demand.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held June 14 in the club's rooms, in the Engineering Societies' building, with an attendance of about 100. President A. M. Henshaw occupied the chair.

J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, was the speaker of the evening and gave his famous lecture, "A Trip to the Antipodes and the Pacific Islands." The lecture was illustrated by a large number of beautiful slides, the majority of which covered horticultural subjects. In the course of the lecture the audience was taken to the various islands in the Hawaiian group, the flora of which was described most ably, as well as the life of the inhabitants. From Honolulu it was but a step to Samoa, the flora of which was also illustrated. Some magnificent views in and around Sydney and Melbourne, Australia, were greatly enjoyed and the lecturer's description of the subjects showed a familiarity with conditions and customs possible only to a deep student of nature. At the close of the lecture Mr. Thilow was given a rising vote of thanks.

The transportation committee reported that, at a meeting held that afternoon, arrangements had been completed for travel to the Cleveland convention of the S. A. F. Through tickets over the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad to Buffalo and thence by boat to Cleveland would cost $21.73, including a parlor car seat and an upper berth in a stateroom on the boat, or $22.23 with a lower berth. With a 2-berth stateroom the cost would be $23.88. The party would be scheduled to leave New York in the early morning, arriving in Buffalo in ample time to take the boat leaving there at 9 p. m.

Secretary Young read resolutions drawn up by A. T. De La Mare, C. B. Weathered and himself, as a committee appointed for the purpose, upon the death of Patrick O'Mara, for many years a most prominent member of the club and a former president of the organization. During the reading the members stood with bowed heads. Resolutions upon the death of Maurice Fuld, prepared by Max Schling, J. G. Scheepers and C. Lowther, were read by Mr. Lowther and were similarly received.

The following were elected to membership: Lawrence C. Knapp, East Orange, N. J.; Carl Donhauser, Astoria, L. I.; Richard F. Nause, Staten Island, N. Y.; George I. Okkerse, New York city; William Farrell, New York city; Louis Bacos, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Richard W. Young, Clifton, N. J.; A. Lehman, New York city, and Paul A. Winter, New York city. Mr. Donhauser and Mr. Okkerse, being present, were introduced to the gathering.

Mrs. Henrietta Suder.

[Obituary on page 27.]

A letter from Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., was read, suggesting that the club appoint five members who were growers as delegates to represent the club at the forthcoming meeting of the National Flower Growers' Association, to be held in connection with the convention of the S. A. F. in Cleveland. On motion of Secretary Young, the president was directed to make such appointments as early as possible.

A letter from Miss Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army, was read, requesting the support of the club in the way of a contribution to the fund which the army was seeking to collect by means of a drive then in progress. President Henshaw called for subscriptions from members and about $60 was collected. It was further asked that the trade papers take notice of the matter and request that other subscriptions be sent in to Secretary Young, who would see that they were added to the sum collected that evening.

The exhibits included sixteen vases of peonies, a fine, representative collection, shown by John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, N. Y., and awarded a silver medal; five vases of bearded iris, also shown by Mr. Childs and awarded a vote of thanks, and two collections, one of fifty-four varieties of iris and the other of new peonies, shown by T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, L. I., N. Y., and highly commended by the committee.

The next meeting of the club will be held Monday, September 13.

Various Notes.

The schedule committee of the national flower show met at the S. A. F. offices Tuesday, June 15, and arranged the first preliminary schedule for the sixth national flower show, to be held in Cleveland, March 25 to April 1, 1922. S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, was present as representative of the American Rose Society, which is cooperating and will hold its annual show in combination with the big exhibition. Copies of the preliminary schedule will be available early next month.

At the subscription dinner given in New York in honor of C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., John Canning, superintendent of Heatherdell Farm, Ardsley, N. Y., invited all present at the dinner to be his guests at a dinner at his residence on the estate Saturday, June 19, also in honor of Mr. Totty. The party journeyed to Ardsley by motor and train, arriving there early in the afternoon. The greenhouses and gardens were inspected, and other features of the big estate enjoyed. At 5 o'clock the party sat down to a splendid dinner. The hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Canning, and, it may be said, the small Cannings, left nothing undone to insure the pleasure of the guests. The party included W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., Chappaqua, N. Y.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; F. H. Traendly, P. F. Kessler, J. H. Pepper, Walter F. Sheridan, C. B. Weathered, Leonard Barron, A. M. Henshaw, F. W. Payne, manager of the Grand Central Palace; Joseph A. Manda, J. G. Scheepers, Arthur Herrington, B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass.; George Hildenbrand, Charles Weber, Henry Weston, Alex McKenzie, C. Luchenbacher, A. F. Faulkner, Wm. Duckham and the guest of honor, C. H. Totty.

The Review brings results.

THERE are many good growers who are distressingly weak on the office end of their business.

STEPS are being taken in Paris to form an association of exporters of French horticultural products.

THE best businesses, in this trade and in others, are built on the rule to pay bills promptly and collect accounts in the same manner.

THERE is a difference between caution and cold feet. The former will aid the trade in present conditions, though the latter will prove a handicap.

PETER REINBERG, of Chicago, is perhaps the trade's only representative at the Democratic national convention at San Francisco. The Chicago grower is a delegate.

THE American Peony Society decided to hold next year's meeting at Boston. The American Sweet Pea Society will meet and exhibit there next month, July 10 and 11.

THE gluts of cut flowers this spring were later and shorter than in any recent year. As production was greater than ever before, something must have helped. Perhaps it was the trade's publicity work.

IT is a positive fact that the larger growers must obtain still more income next season for cut flowers and plants. Decreased income in the face of increased outgo will spell disaster for them and for the trade. The average price of stock must continue to rise.

FLORISTS in the eastern states who have surplus stock will find it particularly well worth while to list it in the Classified columns of The Review. There are many reasons why the use of The Review columns pays eastern growers unusually well, but there is no use reciting them—"the proof of the pudding," etc.

IT has been suggested that if J. J. Hess, in his official capacity, were a more frequent contributor to the S. A. F. Journal, it might obviate the necessity for padding that publication with matters not related to the affairs of the society. Details of the financial affairs of the society unquestionably would be of interest to many members.

FLOWERS as accessories in window displays in all sorts of stores are seen more and more. At this time of year it would pay to call that fact to the attention of merchants in your neighborhood.

THE bulletin of the Dahlia Society of California announces the annual show for September 2 to 4. Secretary F. C. Burns, of San Rafael, is responsible for the interesting 16-page publication of the organization.

PERPLEXING as is the fuel situation in the middle west, it is much worse in the east, particularly in New England, where the only coal available is of such low grade that it has little value but costs undreamed-of prices.

BEDDING stock has cleaned up in good shape and at prices which seem to afford a satisfactory margin for profit, even with the high costs. On the whole the spring season seems to have been one of the best the trade ever has enjoyed.

THE new decree of the French government restricting imports prohibits the entry of greenhouse and nursery plants and shrubs, cut flowers and dried and prepared flowers. No exceptions are permitted aside from admission for purposes of re-exportation.

ACCORDING to the United States census, Cleveland did not quite achieve its enthusiastic claim as the Fourth City, but that does not diminish the enthusiasm of the reception planned for S. A. F. members August 17 to 19. Having been surpassed by last year's convention city in population, Cleveland will endeavor to outdo it in hospitality and entertainment.

ATTENTION, WESTERN GROWERS.

I expect to be present at the florists' outing to be held at the range of the Pinehurst Floral Co., at Pleasant Hill, Mo., July 5. Growers wanting information on the newly proposed National Flower Growers' Association are kindly invited for a conference.

J. F. Ammann, Sec'y.

WHO PAYS FOR INEFFICIENCY?

One of the causes of rising costs in the flower industry, as well as in practically all other lines, has been the lower productiveness of common labor used in both greenhouses and stores. Efficiency experts have calculated the exact percentage of decrease in factories where work is highly systematized and results therefore are easily ascertainable. In the florists' industry no such close calculation is possible, but proprietors who have given the matter close study put the depreciation in labor efficiency as high as fifty per cent. In other words, today two men are required to do the work that one did before the war.

This slump has taken place while wages have been steadily on the increase. Many florists are paying twice as much as they did a few years ago for the same kind of work. The net result is, therefore, that it now costs four times as much to get eight hours' work as it did before the war, for today it takes two men to do what one man formerly did and each of the two receives twice as much as that one man did.

Since the pay roll represents so large a part in the cost of flowers, florists are confronted with a dilemma, whether they shall pass on the total increase in cost to flower buyers or shall bear part of the increase themselves—in other words, content themselves with a lower margin of profit, in reality a loss of income.

The dilemma arises chiefly because florists doubt whether the public will stand the whole increase. It is highly unpleasant to the retailer to see old customers leave the store without buying when they find prices high. But observation of other industries reveals that there the higher costs are passed along in full to the consumer. That is why we are paying such advanced prices for food, wearing apparel and other everyday articles, with which flowers have not kept pace. Compare the prices you ask today with those you asked five years ago and compare also the prices you pay with those you paid five years ago. The florist must pass along his increased costs just as everyone else does. He must do it to stay in business. Prices are not, apparently, on their way down. Give the public stock of good quality and ask the price to which you feel entitled.

WILL THE PUBLIC PAY?

Ever and anon the question bobs up: Will the public pay high prices for flowers? Can we charge what we feel we should, or must we be content with a smaller margin? There are interesting data on this subject to be had in a recent letter of Secretary of the Treasury Houston. Figures gleaned by Treasury Department experts from tax returns and other sources of information furnish an approximate estimate of what the people of the United States spend in twelve months on certain items classed as luxuries. Some of the estimates given are:

Chewing gum	$ 50,000,000
Candy	1,000,000,000
Cigarettes	800,000,000
Soft drinks, including ice cream and soda	350,000,000
Perfumery and cosmetics	750,000,000
Cigars	510,000,000
Tobacco and snuff	800,000,000
Furs	300,000,000
Carpets and luxurious clothing	1,500,000,000
Automobiles and parts	2,000,000,000
Toilet soaps	400,000,000
Pianos, organs and phonographs	250,000,000

There may be some question as to the inclusion of some items, such as carpets, ice cream and all automobiles, as luxuries. That, however, is not the point. The moral is: If the great American public will pay such sums as these—hundreds of millions of dollars each year—for the items specified, will they not, with proper education and urging via the trade's growing advertising, pay far more for flowers than we have hitherto considered possible?

"SO WELL DESERVED."

In these times of skyrocketing prices for paper The Review is adhering to its policy of keeping its subscription and advertising rates at the lowest possible point, for the purpose of providing a universally usable means of communication in the trade—we don't want cost to bar anybody out. And it is working well. Like this:

> Just a word of encouragement, so well deserved. I have been advertising in four florists' journals, but all mail orders and inquiries say, "Saw your ad in The Review."—Wm. F. Burchardt, Baltimore, Md., June 5, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Mrs. E. A. Williams.

Mrs. E. A. Williams, for twenty years in business at 621 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, known in private life as Mrs. J. A. H. Junker, died June 17 at her summer home, Bay View, Henderson Harbor, N. Y., where she had gone for her health.

Mrs. Williams was born on the south side, in Pittsburgh, and was the daughter of Capt. S. M. Duval. She began her business career at 1713 Carson street, but a few years later, in 1900, she moved to the Penn avenue address, where she had been since. She also operated a fine range of greenhouses on the south side. A few years ago she married Mr. Junker, who is in the wholesale leather business, and lived at 1022 North Negley avenue.

Mrs. Williams had been ill for six weeks with valvular heart trouble before she went to Henderson Harbor, where she had been about a week before her death.

Funeral services were held at her home, 1022 North Negley avenue, Sunday evening, June 20. Interment was in the South Side cemetery, Monday morning, June 21.

Mrs. E. A. Williams.

Mrs. Henrietta Suder.

Probably the oldest active woman member of the trade in the United States and one of the best known, Mrs. Henrietta Suder, widow of the late Ewald Suder, died at her home in Toledo, O., June 8, after a sickness of only a few weeks. She was 77 years of age.

Since 1868 the Suder establishment has been a factor in the business life of Toledo and since 1881, when Ewald Suder died, the management of the greenhouses and the store has been in the hands of Mrs. Suder. Mr. and Mrs. Suder came to this country over sixty years ago. Mr. Suder was first employed by the Humboldt Nursery. Aided by Mrs. Suder, he soon accumulated enough money to buy the place that has now grown to be a progressive establishment. The greenhouses on Cherry street have always been open to the flower-loving public and it was Mrs. Suder's delight to show visitors around.

Mrs. Suder was born in Buderstadt, Germany, in 1843. She is survived by a son, A. A. Suder, and a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Galloway. A. A. Suder assisted his mother in the management. She is also survived by five grandchildren. Many floral offerings were sent by the members of the trade from all over the country.

George Monro, Sr.

One of the best known leaders in the florists' trade in Great Britain, George Monro, Sr., died Sunday, May 30. Mr. Monro was 73 years of age and throughout his long business career he had been engaged in commercial horticulture. From small beginnings, in 1871, he founded what is now the largest firm in the Covent Garden trade. Until 1903 the firm was wholly under his personal direction and management, but in that year he converted the business into a private company, his sons, E. Monro, George Monro, Jr., and B. J. Monro, becoming partners and taking charge of distinct departments.

Because of his shrewd business ability and foresight he was chosen on dozens of occasions to appear before parliamentary commissions concerning the trade, of which he became the doyen. The high esteem in which he was held in the horticultural world was recognized in 1887 when the Royal Horticultural Society awarded him the Victoria medal of honor in horticulture. Although many other distinctions fell to him, he retained an unaffected and kindly disposition throughout his long life. His favorite recreation was chess. The funeral took place Wednesday, June 2, at 2:30 p. m., at St. Andrew's church, Frognal, and afterwards at the Hampstead cemetery, Fortune Green road, London.

James Hacking.

James Hacking, one of the oldest and best known florists and gardeners in the state of Rhode Island, died at his home, 954 Lonsdale avenue, Central Falls, Sunday morning, June 13, in his seventieth year. Mr. Hacking had been suffering for some time with a general breakdown, but the end came suddenly, as he had been actively engaged until Saturday.

He was born in England in 1850 and after a brief schooling went to work on one of the estates near his home, where he was apprenticed to learn the gardeners' trade. Soon after attaining his majority he came to America, taking up his residence at Central Falls, R. I. He was first employed by the Collins Bros. Machine Co., but after a few months he decided to take up his trade as a gardener, taking care of private estates until he went to work for the Frey Greenhouse Co., with which he remained until he became superintendent of the Moshassuck cemetery, forty-two years ago.

Mr. Hacking was one of the original members of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island and was one of its stanchest supporters. At the time of the entertainment of the Society of American Florists by the club on the occasion of its holding its annual convention at Providence in 1896, Mr. Hacking was a member of several of the committees. He was also a member of the National Cemetery Superintendents' Association. He is survived by a son, Edward; a brother and two sisters.

W. H. M.

Daniel Karn.

Daniel Karn died at his home in North Plainfield, N. J., Tuesday, June 8. He was 55 years of age.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Notorious for its ups and downs, the Chicago market last week executed one of the quickest right-about-face movements in its history. At all times susceptible to the influence of the weather, the market had suffered severely for a fortnight because of a heat wave, but the heavy crops already were beginning to diminish when the weather cooled, June 17, with the result that there was a sharp reduction in supply, especially of roses. One veteran wholesaler stated June 21 that there were not more than one-sixth the number of flowers received in the Chicago market that day that came in the same day a week before. The market cleaned up June 19 for the first time in a fortnight and opened June 21 with an entirely new set of conditions prevailing. Supplies have been reduced to the point where it became impossible to fill all orders and there was the appearance of considerably increased demand. The probability is that demand actually has increased to a slight extent because of the cooler weather, but that most of the appearance of greater activity has been caused by the fact that buyers no longer can find everything they want in the first wholesale house visited, or, if they find it, they can no longer name the price; the wholesaler does that now, and he rather enjoys the prerogative after having seen its use in other hands in recent weeks.

The rose situation is the predominant feature of the market. Growers have about finished throwing out the old stock for replanting, or drying off the old plants for a rest. It is the general opinion that rose production now is at about the smallest of the summer and that there will not be much of an increase in the next few weeks, even if the weather becomes warm again.

Coincident with the diminution of rose receipts, the peonies have been cut out. Most of the growers have sent nothing to market since June 19. There are considerable quantities in cold storage, but most of the flowers demanding immediate sale have been disposed of and the stock in storage is of the selected varieties which will keep. Some of the wholesalers figure on taking the last of their stock out of storage June 30, but several of the larger dealers expect to carry peonies into August. The quantity in storage is not unusually large and business certainly has been much more brisk than it usually is in the penultimate week of June.

Carnations, too, have benefited by the cooler weather, but many growers have jettisoned the old plants and the others will do so soon. Each day sees a decrease in the number of carnations reaching the market. Sweet peas have practically disappeared. Gladioli are on the increase, but the stock at present seen in the market is from indoors. Bachelor's buttons, double, in colors, evidently have made a hit, because they are seen in many places. The small delphiniums in several colors also are numerously offered and are popular. Cattleyas and valley are scarce, but Easter lilies have made their reappearance in considerable quantity. The fact that the principal local grower was off crop served to draw lilies here from other cities. Pansies are disappearing.

Green goods in general seem more plentiful now that there are adequate supplies of new ferns.

The Cost of Paper.

The trade appreciates what the publisher is up against in the skyrocketing prices of paper, because paper is almost as much of an essential in the florists' business as it is in publishing.

No retail florist can do business without tissue for lining his boxes. The jobbing price of a medium quality of tissue at Chicago now is $21.50 per bundle, as against a pre-war price of about $4.

Kraft paper, for wrapping, now costs about 18 cents per pound, compared to a pre-war price of about 3½ to 4 cents.

Old newspapers, which shippers use in quantity, now cost $45 per ton, where they once cost about $9 to $11.

Various Notes.

Bedding plants have sold out cleaner than for several years. Since the middle of June it has been difficult to locate good geraniums among the local growers and other items have been nearly as scarce. Petunias, popular along the north shore for filling window boxes, seemingly one of the easiest of plants to provide, have not been anywhere near equal to the demand. The absence of boxwood has been keenly felt.

Emil Buettner went to New York last week to see his daughter sail for Hamburg, where she will visit for a year. The observant Chicago grower was impressed by two things, the magnitude of the New York steamer trade, as shown by the large quantities of flowers received at the dock just before his daughter's steamer sailed, and by the fact that eastern growers are paying $10 to $11 per ton for coal not so good as the mine-run from central Illinois.

The E. Wienhoeber Co., in the district popularly called the gold coast, was one florist that profited by the Republican convention. The calls for table centerpieces that week are reported to have been heavier than in any other week this season. Wedding work has been heavy all this month. William Wienhoeber and wife left June 19 for Catalina island, off the coast of southern California, to have a try at the big fish there. They expect to be away about a month.

About 12,000 dozens of peonies in cold storage represented the supply of the A. L. Randall Co., at the time local arrivals ceased. Eric Johnson says he wishes it was 40,000 dozen, because he is confident July will bring better business than this market ever enjoyed in that month.

June 21 there was a feather in the cap of E. F. Winterson and other signs of unusual events. It was his fifty-first birthday anniversary.

John Poehlmann says business always is dull with those who only sit and wait, but that he believes enough retailers will keep up appearances this summer so that it will turn out to be the best July and August in the history of the trade.

John P. Degnan leaves June 26 for Fresno, Cal.

F. M. Johnson comments on the unusually difficult situation of the moment, with buyers clamoring for lower prices and the cost of raw materials and labor unquestionably still going up. No one is more anxious than Mr. Johnson to see the price level begin to fall, but he is of the opinion that the turning point has not yet been reached.

It is reported that W. A. Hansen, assistant to C. J. Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., is to be married early next month, the prospective bride being one of the popular young lady bookkeepers in the market.

—UNANIMOUS—

OUR congratulations are extended upon the results achieved the FIRST YEAR by the COMMERCIAL FLOWER GROWERS of CHICAGO—

WHAT was once a desire—what was once mostly talk has become a REALITY—A PRACTICAL FACT. THE COMMERCIAL FLOWER GROWERS of CHICAGO have accomplished much in their TRADE ACTIVITIES and were the OPENING WEDGE to a NATIONAL GROWERS' ORGANIZATION.

With the FIRST ANNUAL MEETING to ELECT OFFICERS the UNANIMOUS ACTION of RE-ELECTING their Officers is proof that they have pleased the grower.

To MR. JOSEPH KOHOUT as President—his executive co-workers and their most capable and energetic Secretary, Mr. Otto Amling, because of them we owe our thanks for having made the CHICAGO MARKET BETTER.

calling on growers. He reports the shortage of all kinds of stock and greenhouse supplies still as acute as ever and sees little prospect of a change in market conditions until skilled labor becomes more plentiful. Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club held its June meeting at the home of Ira H. Landis. There was a good attendance, considering the rainy evening. Mr. Landis recently bought a 100-acre farm, the old Landis homestead, and has planted many acres of gladioli and peonies of the newer varieties.

In the absence of President Girvin,

E. J. Weaver called the meeting to order. The annual club picnic will be held July 15 at Rocky Springs. The club will entertain at the same time the members of the Chester County Florists' Club. The members of the committee in charge are B. F. Barr, Elmer J. Weaver, L. S. Landis and Mrs. Albert M. Herr.

Mr. Giblin and his son, of Giblin & Co., Utica, N. Y., were present and Mr. Giblin read a paper filled with good suggestions.

After adjournment, refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour was spent.

Various Notes.

Among the visitors from the Lancaster County Florists' Club to the peony show at Reading, Pa., last week were Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Landis, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Rohrer, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Weaver and Harry K. Rohrer.

E. P. Hostetter, Manheim, Pa., has purchased a Cadillac sedan.

Charles B. Herr, Strasburg, Pa., is well pleased with his new tractor and cultivator.

The flower market held on Mrs. J. L. Brown's lawn for the benefit of St. Joseph's hospital netted $650. Mrs. Albert Herr took an active part in its management. H. K. R.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

It is a buyers' market, yet business is much more active than usual at this season. There has been a great deal going on and while the supply is heavier than usual at this season, it has been possible to sell most of it at fair prices.

Peonies have ceased coming in. The market is now depending on cold storage stock and will probably continue to do so for some time to come. The large-flowered varieties, like festiva maxima, do not come out of cold storage in good shape, but some of the small varieties do. On these the market depends for its decorations. Easter lilies have reappeared in force. They are fine, making excellent material to replace white peonies. The first pink lilies, Lilium splendens, have come.

There are a lot of outdoor sweet peas. The best bring pretty good prices for the season; in fact, the average is good so far. Larkspur is the best of the outdoor flowers. Carnations are declining, but there are some fine flowers offered that sell well. They are from growers who make a study of summer requirements, producing stock that satisfies the buyers. Roses are undergoing a change. The single varieties and those not kept in condition have deteriorated to a degree that makes them of little value, while the good, hot weather sorts recover quickly from a hot day—a cool night and a bath makes them look fresh and bright again.

Gladioli are commencing, while the array of garden flowers, such as coreopsis, candytuft, gaillardia, gypsophila, pyrethrum et al., is at its best.

Another Protest.

A meeting of such general interest that it merits description in this column was held in the American Museum of Natural History in New York Tuesday, June 15. It was called by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society to protest against Quarantine No. 37, which prohibits the importation of plants, shrubs and trees, as being too drastic. There were about 150 persons present, representing some fifty horticultural bodies from a broad area. The strength of the meeting lay in the high standing of many of those present and in the fact that the organizations they represented covered all branches of horticulture. The meeting was further strengthened by the preponderance of amateurs who had come, some of them from a distance. The spirit of the meeting was temperate; nothing radical was proposed. It was urged by a number of able speakers that Quarantine No. 37 was too drastic. Where would our gardens and parks be today had such a quarantine existed since our government was formed? It was also thought that the Federal Horticultural Board was too strong in entomologists. Surely one entomologist was enough. The other members might be chosen, one each from other limbs of the great horticultural tree. It was all right to consider the bugs, but men whose lives were devoted to the study of the bug might not be the best qualified to judge of all the other angles from which so important a question should be viewed. One entomologist, one horticulturist, one business man, one amateur, one architect would make a far stronger board. But to return to the present emergency, the meeting thought that Quarantine No. 37 ought to be modified. A committee of five was appointed to wait on the Federal Horticultural Board and strongly urge them to change their ruling. J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., is chairman of this committee. The matter now rests in his hands.

Coal.

Every one of us is keenly alive to the importance of getting coal for next winter. Indications point to the likelihood of unusual difficulties in achieving this object. These difficulties are so well known that it is not necessary to go over them. The question is what to do. Our most successful men are unanimous in their opinion that the thing to do is to get coal now. It is perfectly possible that you may be able to get it later at a lower price. On the other hand, it is much more likely that it will cost more. There is also a decided possibility of not being able to get it at all. Therefore, they say, get what you need now, get what seems best in the best way you can, but get it on to your place as soon as you can.

A Good Plant.

Substance of an informal talk with C. U. Liggit, June 19, 1920:

"I find that there is a wide difference of opinion among florists as to what is and what is not a good plant. Some wish to have their plants nicely finished when they arrive, while others care nothing for this, preferring that the plants have that firm foundation that enables one to build upon it securely. Of course, I am referring especially to those plants that are intended for growing on. These plants are generally sent out from small pots. When well grown they may be divided into two classes, the highly finished and the stocky, with a connecting link of intermediates.

"Personally I prefer the stocky class, because when properly grown they are apt to have heavy roots and short or closely jointed wood. Experience shows that such plants give the best results. But it is not what I prefer that counts. It is what the purchaser prefers. Here is where the difficulty arises. Over and over again I have sent out plants from the same grower to different customers with different results. One customer said they were good plants, another customer said they were not good plants. I knew that the plants were exactly alike.

"The only thing to do is to study the taste of each customer. He knows his soil and conditions and above all is more likely to succeed with stock that suits him. Whenever the taste of the customer is not known, I simply do the best I can, aiming to send plants that are most likely to thrive."

Various Notes.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer has returned from abroad.

Samuel S. Pennock represented the American Rose Society at the meeting of the horticultural organizations held in the American Museum of Natural History in New York June 15.

Ludvig P. Vollers has resigned his position of manager for A. Warendorff at the Ansonia. Mr. Vollers is considering opening a flower shop in this city, possibly on Twelfth street.

these bouquets. He has only 200 geraniums left in the benches, after the heaviest bedding season and biggest year in his business. The season was unusual in that so many persons came to the greenhouse and took with them the flowers that they bought, saving delivery.

Mrs. Annie Martin, 75 years old, formerly of Kansas City but now of Columbia, Mo., was married June 9 to Albert Johnson, 65 years old, also of Columbia, Mo. The marriage took place in Orrick, Mo. Mrs. Johnson celebrated her fifty-fifth wedding anniversary to W. H. Martin about two years ago. Mr. Martin died a short time later. Mrs. Johnson is the mother of seven children, has twenty-one grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Mrs. Robert McGrail is one of the granddaughters. The couple will make their home in Columbia.

Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson was in the city Tuesday, June 15, on her way to California. She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rock at their home. Mrs. Wilson and the publicity committee of the associated florists here, composed of Miss Hayden, M. E. Carter and W. J. Barnes, were entertained at luncheon by W. L. Rock, when the matter of newspaper publicity for the local florists was discussed. The committee will take the matter up with all the florists and a decision will be reached probably within the next few weeks.

A. Newell has moved to his new store, at the southwest corner of Eleventh and McGee streets. The place is not yet completed, but it is far enough on the way to enable him to do business, as he had to give possession of his former building. The new store will be attractive and the location is in line with the growth of the retail district. Mr. Newell is displaying some attractive pieces of Weller pottery.

J. H. Davis, of the Greenwood Floral Co., Fort Worth, Tex., was a recent visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Noll are spending part of the time at their country home near Grandview, Mo., driving back and forth each day and getting the benefit of vacation without leaving business.

Mrs. Koppenhaver is moving to Argentine for the remainder of the summer. She has two greenhouses there. In the fall she will reopen a retail store in the business district. Mrs. Koppenhaver and her daughter, Miss Lorraine Koppenhaver, will motor to Oklahoma in July and will spend several weeks there.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has just finished planting 42,000 young plants of Premier, Russell, Butterfly and Columbia roses. This gives a total of 85,000 rose plants. It has transferred 20,000 cyclamens to 8-inch pots. This firm is planning the addition of 12,000 square feet to the pot plant range, if it can secure enough material to finish the work. It has part of the material on hand. It will also add a service building, 40x96 feet.

Frank Stuppy, of St. Joseph, Mo., was in the city Friday, June 18. He announced the arrival of a boy in his family June 5.

E. A. Humfeld's June business thus far is ahead of the entire month a year ago. He is noticing a return to prewar conditions in the number and the class of social affairs.

C. T. Reinhardt is cutting a variety of good outdoor stock. He has had excellent sweet peas up to this time, but they are about gone now.

Miss Robena Faulkner, of the Apollo Flower Shop, will leave June 24 for Chicago and from there will go to New York for a month's visit with her father.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. had a splendid crop of carnations, as well as fine outdoor stock last week.

James Papadakos arrived in Kansas City June 15 from Sparta, Greece. He left here about five years ago to visit relatives in his old home and was pressed into army service, in which he spent about a year and a half. Mr. Papadakos says that Greece, as well as many other countries in Europe, is offering every inducement to its people to remain at home and to discourage emigration. He had some difficulty in obtaining a passport, but was determined to return to Kansas City, where he was formerly in business. His wife and four children, the youngest less than 2 months old, are still in Sparta, but will come to Kansas City in the near future. He is a brother of George Papadakos, of the Apollo Flower Shop.

W. J. Barnes is cutting everything in seasonable outdoor stock and is glad of the change from greenhouse stock. The season has been fine, he says, and has held up later than usual. There have been a large number of weddings. In no year has he had the amount of cash business that this season has brought.

Mrs. Lura Laundy, of the Central Avenue Florists, is away for a few days' rest.

R. S. Brown & Son have also cleaned up well. They never had a better

NEWS OF THE SEED TRADE

CARL GLOECKNER, of the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, was in Chicago June 21 on his way to California.

PROSPECTS for the French bulb harvest are, it is stated, encouraging. The weather conditions have favored good growth, and if the ripening period is as favorable, there should be no cause for complaint in regard to quality.

BY a deal closed June 21, the Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, took over the Oshkosh Seed Co., a $200,000 corporation, of Oshkosh, Wis. At the reorganization meeting the following officers were elected: President, Everette R. Peacock; vice-president, Carl Rowekamp; secretary, E. R. Ward; treasurer, F. G. Dovidat; general manager, A. Setterberg. The company does a general mail order trade and a packet box business, besides manufacturing "Insect Checker."

SMALL MAKES ASSIGNMENT.

W. H. Small & Co., Evansville, Ind., one of the largest grass seed dealers in the middle west, made an assignment June 14, to the Mercantile Commercial Bank of Evansville. The assets are estimated at approximately $1,000,000, while the liabilities, including both contingent and direct, are about $1,520,000. It is believed, however, that creditors will be paid dollar for dollar. Lewis E. Steffee is trustee.

GRASS SEED DEALERS ELECT.

At an interesting and well attended meeting held at the Hotel Pfister, Milwaukee, Wis., June 21 and continued the following morning, the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association elected the following officers:

President—Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md.

Vice-president—J. Chas. McCullough, Cincinnati, O.

Secretary-treasurer — Clarence A. Jones, Baltimore, reëlected.

The following firms were elected to membership in the association: The Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan.; the Courteen Seed Co., Milwaukee; the Crawfordsville Seed Co., Crawfordsville, Ind., and J. J. Buffington & Co., Baltimore, Md.

THE MILWAUKEE CONVENTION.

The Kind That Faces the Front.

Last Tuesday evening, about 6:30, a man was sweeping up varied débris in the nearly deserted lobby of the Hotel Pfister, where the American Seed Trade Association has been holding its thirty-eighth convention. There had been no fight. Nothing of value was broken. But, to one who had seen that same lobby crowded with business men at 10 o'clock that morning, its different aspect—and the man sweeping—suggested reminiscently the spirit of this speedy and rather determined convention, a spirit which it has continued to show during its two following days of existence.

While, lightly speaking, there had been no fight, the members of the association seemed to be in a mood to get what they wanted, however hard the work required. They were there with no thoughtlessly light-hearted optimism, but realized that the trade must face serious and pressing peace problems with quite as much energy and coöperative effort as it faced the war-time problems. That the association was thoroughly alive to the situation was shown by the morning's buzz of discussion in the lobby—much of it the nervous little group discussions, when men drop things that have to be swept up—as well as by the more official deliberations in the Red room on the seventh floor, a room comfortably filled by the 250 or more in attendance.

Wit and Wisdom.

The good spirits which the members showed later more than once must have come in some degree from the address of welcome given by Philip A. Grau, business manager of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, after President Dungan had called the convention to order about 10:30 Tuesday morning. The heartiness of his welcome and the quality, if not the number, of his funny stories were, however, equaled by the remarks of A. B. Clark in response.

The president's annual address, delivered by E. C. Dungan, touched suggestively upon several matters, including seed legislation, the compilation of seed laws, the congressional free seed distribution, contracts with foreign shippers, increase of dues and initiation fee and the admission to membership of regional and local seed trade organizations. These questions received further consideration, some later that morning and others as a result of the report later presented by the committee on the president's address, consisting of Fred B. King, S. A. Wilson and J. M. Lupton.

Growing Steadily.

C. E. Kendel, secretary-treasurer, reported that the present membership of 242, including two honorary members, represented a gain of eight since a year ago.

The financial part of Mr. Kendel's report was summarized as follows:

Balance on hand last year	$1,196.35
Receipts	6,402.50
Total	$7,598.85
Disbursements	6,446.98
Balance on hand this year	$1,151.87

Mr. Kendel added that the bill for the convention badges, amounting to about $70, had come so recently that he had not had time to pay it and include that voucher with the others. The financial part of the secretary-treasurer's report was referred to an auditing committee consisting of H. N. Lines, Francis C. Stokes and H. L. Holmes, Jr.

The report of H. G. Hastings for the membership committee, of which he is chairman, was necessarily incomplete, since more applications for membership were certain to be added in the next twenty-four hours to the eleven which he then had. President Dungan appointed Robert W. Pommer to succeed Ben P. Corneli, who had resigned from the committee.

Dues Not Increased.

The temper and tone of the convention came out most clearly during the opening session in the discussion of three proposed amendments to the by-laws.

The first proposal was that the annual dues should be increased from $25 to $40 and that the initiation fee, instead of being, as at present, $50 inclusive of the first year's dues, should be $50 exclusive of those dues. Though there was some difference of opinion, the majority seemed to agree with Watson S. Woodruff, who said that, particularly because of the smaller distant firms who as members paid in their support, but could seldom attend the conventions, the dues should not be increased unless a distinct additional benefit would result for all members of the association; he believed that if the need arose sufficient funds to meet the demands of any crisis could easily be raised by assessment. The proposal, put as a motion, was voted down. But there seemed still to be a feeling that an emergency fund should be raised; discussion led to compromise and to a vote that the executive committee should have power to levy such an assessment in case of need.

The second proposed amendment to the by-laws was practically the same as that brought forward by Ex-president E. L. Page in the 1919 convention; namely, that no expenditure should be made from the association's treasury at the annual convention — this last was a modification introduced by Secretary Kendel—unless it had first been referred to the executive committee for consideration and recommendation. In reply to the objection that the convention, as creator, was superior to any committee it created, H. G. Hastings cited a previous instance when the eloquence of a member had made the convention momentarily reckless financially and explained that this proposed amendment was designed simply to prevent a recurrence of such a happening. But the motion for this amendment was also lost.

Local Societies to Be Admitted.

The third proposal fared better with the convention, which unanimously voted that the membership committee should arrange to admit regional and local seed trade organizations to membership in the A. S. T. A. As suggested both in President Dungan's address and in the discussion on the motion, this will greatly strengthen the trade as a whole and it is indeed the duty of the national organization to provide for the smaller associations some such possibility of coöperation.

Alex Forbes, chairman of the committee on postal laws, read a report which emphasized, with convincing illustrations, the importance of making sure beforehand that the catalogue, especially if it contains loose inserts, which put it in a different postal class; the bag or envelope for the catalogue, particularly the printing on it, and return post cards, as to size in particular, comply with the postal regulations as interpreted by the local postmaster. The report also called attention to a recent postoffice ruling under which undelivered second, third and fourth class mail will be returned to the sender if it bears a definite pledge on the part of the sender to pay the return postage. A project was also mentioned for combining the third and fourth class into one new class.

At the conclusion of the morning's session Hugo Teweles, of the L. Teweles Seed Co., Milwaukee, announced the recreative features which had been planned for the members of the association that evening and the following day.

Tuesday afternoon was given over to an executive session of the association. The chief business was the hearing of and discussion of the report of the association's counsel, Curtis Nye Smith.

What Was in the Bottles?

As for the evening of that first day of the convention—anyone who was late enough to see a man sweeping the lobby of the Hotel Pfister was certain to learn that, while seedsmen may let discussion detain them from a business meeting, when it comes to a banquet, and such a stag banquet as the seedsmen and their guests were invited to in the Milwaukee Athletic Club building, they are promptness itself and the late comer takes the seat farthest from the source of vocal entertainment. First the singing was solo or duet, but gradually the 500 men in the banquet hall rose to the occasion —or at least raised their voices—and "the old favorites," as well as some of the new, were sung right lustily. It is uncertain whether the exceptional heartiness with which "How Dry I Am" was sung was intended to cast reflections upon the contents of the brown bottles one of which stood by each man's plate during the latter part of the meal. There were absolutely no after-dinner speeches. That, however, was not the big surprise which had been announced. For that the banqueters adjourned to the club's gymnasium, where, in a ring that would have suited the most professional, half a dozen boxing matches were held, much to the entertainment of the spectators.

The Meat in the Sandwich.

Wednesday, the middle day of the convention, resembled the first in that most of it was given to business sessions, with a banquet in the evening.

Many of the association members accepted the invitation of the L. Teweles Seed Co. to visit its new establishment, returning to the Hotel Pfister in time for the day's sessions. These were devoted mainly to hearing and discussing three addresses.

The paper of A. L. Stone, state department of agriculture, Madison, Wis., on "Seed Testing Experiences" was listened to with great interest and aroused much discussion. He described the results of the present Wisconsin seed control law during its decade of operation and also touched in some detail upon such questions as seed mixtures, wrongly labeled seeds and hard seeds.

In the absence of R. A. Oakley, of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., his paper on "The Fine Turf Grasses, with Special Reference to the Seed Supply," was read by Mr. Edlin.

The paper on "Nomenclature," by J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., also was of distinct value to all who heard it. Upon motion of Francis Stokes, the association adopted a resolution for appointment of a nomenclature committee of five. An amendment by Watson Woodruff, which was also carried, appropriated $250 for the use of the committee.

The association in executive session admitted the following to membership: Cumberland Seed Co., Cumberland, Md.; Carter, Venable & Co., Richmond, Va.; Kellogg Seed Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; L. D. Waller Seed Co., Guadeloupe, Cal.; United States Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo.; W. H. Letton, Atlanta, Ga.; May Seed & Nursery Co., Shenandoah, Ia.; Ed. F. Mangelsdorf & Bros., St. Louis, Mo.

The evening's banquet, at the Hotel Pfister, included the ladies as well as the gentlemen of the convention. Solo singing was a feature of the entertainment. In order, also, to take the seedsmen's minds away from their own more immediate problems and yet keep them mentally occupied, a leading banker of Milwaukee gave a talk on "Trade Acceptances." In accordance with a promise given when the banquet was announced, none of the conventioners were compelled to speak.

This banquet, by the way, was not the first taste of entertainment which the A. S. T. A. ladies had had. Tuesday evening they were entertained at supper at the Hotel Pfister and most of Wednesday they spent on a trip to the Waukesha lakes.

Thursday brought the election of officers, together with the election of new members and the disposal of unfinished business. The earnestness and

Giant Pansies

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and its unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March, or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

No. 4. JOVE. Lower petals violet; upper ones light blue.
No. 5. MARS. Cornflower blue.
No. 6. NORTH POLE. Pure snow white.
No. 7. WODEN. Quite black.
No. 8. HELIOS. Pure yellow.
No. 14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow, with dark eye.
No. 15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
No. 16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
No. 17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
No. 18. MIXED. The above colors and other shades.

500 Seeds, 25c; 1000 Seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.0 ; 1 oz., $7.50.

good-natured directness of the first day have continued through to the final session.

Trade Exhibits.

Most of the larger trade exhibits had rooms for themselves, with "window displays" in the hall by their respective doors. The various types of exhibit usually to be found at A. S. T. A. conventions were well represented.

Seed bags were shown by the Milwaukee Bag Co., Milwaukee, and the Bemis Bro. Bag Co., St. Louis, Mo., the former showing a wide range of sizes and stressing the "Milwaukee method of printing" and the latter featuring the Bemis A seamless cotton seed bag and illustrating the method by which the seamless bags are woven.

The Bates Valve Bag Co., Chicago, showed a device for wire-tying bags.

The Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., Fitchburg, Mass., exhibited its packeting machine and seed envelopes.

Christian Becker, Inc., and the Torsion Balance Co., both of New York city and under the same ownership, showed their balances for seed testing.

The makers of seed growers' equipment were represented by the American Fork & Hoe Co., Cleveland, O., and the J. E. Gilson Co., Port Washington, Wis., which exhibited seeders and cultivators.

The Pacific Manure & Fertilizer Co., San Francisco, Cal., displayed descriptive literature and samples of its products.

Color in the trade exhibits was supplied chiefly by the catalogue showings of the A. B. Morse Co., St. Joseph, Mich.; the Benton Review Shop, Fowler, Ind., and the A. T. De La Mare Co., New York.

The National Garden Bureau had a roomful of exhibition cards covered with clippings of its newspaper educational work and with letters from the newspapers expressing approval of that work. President Dungan called attention to this exhibit during the reading of his presidential address.

R. C. McGill & Co., San Francisco, had an exhibit of nineteen varieties of pea seed and various other firms had smaller exhibits of seed, some grass and some vegetable.

The Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, showed an insecticide manufactured by the Oshkosh Seed Co., which it has just taken over.

PRESIDENT DUNGAN'S ADDRESS.

[In opening the thirty-eighth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, at Milwaukee, June 22, President E. C. Dungan gave the following address.]

This last year has had its trials, but not nearly so many as the two previous years. The various legislative bodies have offered seed legislation, all of which has been taken care of by our legislative committee and the association's counsel. The report of the legislative committee and the counsel's report will give full details.

Our counsel states that only one seed law was passed during last winter's legislative session—that of New York, which was the uniform seed bill proposed by the seedsmen and corrected by them. Some serious and objectionable legislation was started in Mississippi, but it was defeated.

We see daily in the magazines and papers the three letters h. c. l., which we all know refer to the high cost of living. These three letters, h. c. l., also stand for high cost of labor, which is an important factor in the business of seedsmen and growers; if the cost of labor and of other details of the business continues to increase and if the seedsmen continue their philanthropy of making, notwithstanding the increased cost of everything that goes with our business, decided reductions in the selling price of seeds to the consumer, I fail to see where we "are going to get off," and I think it behooves us to stiffen up our backbones and see that we, at least, get a living selling price for our products.

We have had the satisfaction of being exempt from the profiteering class, but this will not increase our bank balance. It is worth thinking over.

At the meeting of the executive committee held in Detroit last November, it was unanimously suggested that the by-laws be changed and that we increase our initiation fee to $50 and our annual dues to $40. I think this is advisable, in order that we may accumulate a surplus in our treasury.

Compilation of Seed Laws.

Our counsel has prepared a compilation of the seed laws of the United States, both federal and state, and presented them at a previous meeting. He was instructed to proceed with the work of publishing that compilation, but as the appropriation for the work was small, I, after consulting with him, did not think it advisable to proceed with printing, which would have saddled the association with a heavy obligation, until he had canvassed our membership to ascertain how many of our members would subscribe for a copy at a price ranging from $13.50 each, if only a small number subscribed, down to $5.05 each, if 150 or more subscribed.

I think it decidedly advisable that we go ahead with this work and I trust that all of our members have answered Mr. Smith's letter in the affirmative in reference to this question. I think it also advisable to decide at this meeting whether we shall furnish copies of these laws to others than members of our association, and if so, at what price per copy.

It looked at one time as though the congressional free distribution of seeds would be discontinued. The Senate agreed to abolish it, but the House could not be convinced that it was a useless waste of funds and, after several conferences, the item for free seeds, amounting to $239,000, was included in the appropriation for the Department of Agriculture. The Secretary of Agriculture strongly recommended its discontinuance. I should like to see a resolution passed at this meeting commending the stand taken by the Hon. E. T. Meredith, Secretary of Agriculture, in opposing the congressional free distribution of garden seeds.

I would call the attention of our members to the character of contract under which foreign shippers are endeavoring to sell to American buyers. These contracts provide: "In case of disagreement over quality delivered, buyers and sellers submit to the point of origin arbitration and buyers have to take in every case the seed with the awarded allowance, if any." This seems like a dangerous clause and our legislative committee should see that our interests are protected by providing for arbitration at some neutral point and not at the point of origin.

The high cost of labor is extremely serious and farm help is almost impossible to obtain. If it continues we shall soon be in a condition where we shall not raise enough food to supply our needs.

It seems as if this would be the time to again petition Congress to admit, under the proper restrictions, Chinese labor, until such time as conditions become normal.

A committee was appointed to take up the matter of an advertising campaign under the head of the National Garden Bureau, to keep alive the great public interest in gardening and help keep down the high cost of living. This is, I think, a most excellent idea and it should have the support of all of our members.

Organized Coöperation in the Trade.

Our counsel states that he thinks it desirable and important that we have an affiliation with the regional and local seed trade associations of the United States in respect to seed legislation. He considers it a serious matter for the seed trade associations, national, regional or local, to have policies in respect to seed legislation which are conflicting, or, as in the case of some of the regional associations, not to have any legislative policy at all.

C. J. SPEELMAN & SONS, 470 Greenwich Street, New York City
ESTABLISHED 1868

The three national seed trade associations at considerable expense and effort have promulgated and maintained for the last thirteen years an organization for the efficient control of seed legislation.

It has frequently occurred to the counsel, who has charge of this work, that regional or local seedsmen, either from lack of knowledge of the policies of the national seed trade associations, or for other reasons, have not coöperated with our national association in respect to this highly important matter, a lack of coöperation resulting in many cases in the passage of undesirable seed legislation.

He strongly recommends that some broad principle of coöperation be adopted, allowing these regional or local associations to participate in the benefits derived from the legislative organizations of the national association and permitting such associations to have representation in the councils of the national association, which frames the policies of legislation. He would not, however, carry this coöperative movement to the extent of permitting members of the regional or local seed trade associations to enjoy all the privileges of the national association without being members thereof.

This is a suggestion of our counsel and deserves the serious consideration of our members.

Our counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, as usual, fulfilled his duties last year in his able and efficient manner and I recommend that he be retained as counsel for the seed trade for the coming year.

In closing, I wish to thank all the members of our committees, our secretary, our vice-president and our counsel for their able assistance to me during my term of office.

TRI-CITY FLORISTS MEET.

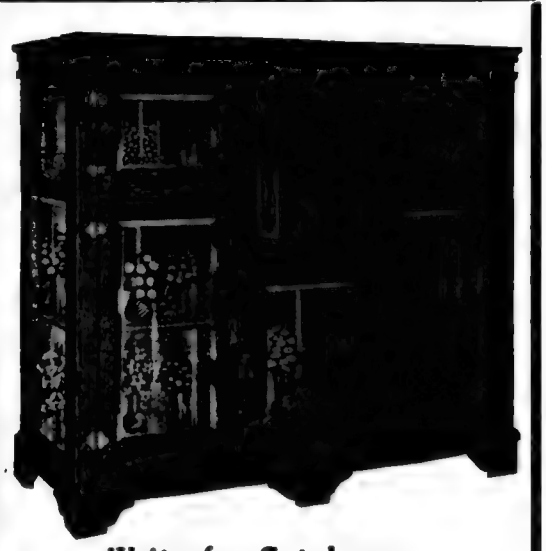
Members of the Tri-City Florists' Club Thursday afternoon, June 17, journeyed to the Henry Lau farm, in Scott county, where they viewed a collection of trees that is probably the most complete in the middle west.

Mr. Lau, back in 1870, determined to have a specimen of every tree that would grow in this climate. He employed a landscape engineer to make his plans and then began planting. And in all the years since then his planting has been continuous.

His work has, of course, been marked by many failures, but his successes have more than compensated for them. His collection of oaks, including the willow, laurel-leaf and all ordinary kinds, includes one of the show trees of the grounds. This tree is 28 years old. It is about fifty feet in height and the spread of branches from north to south is sixty feet three inches. From east to west it is fifty-seven feet nine inches, and one foot above the ground the trunk measures six feet eight inches in circumference. The variety is undetermined, but the tree is supposed to be a natural cross of native oaks.

His collection includes six varieties of magnolia, a fine cypress tree, many of the conifers, the ginkgo tree, persimmon, papaw, sassafras, tupelo, a fine tulip tree now in full bloom and an unknown variety of linden, now covered with its creamy, delightfully scented flowers.

His brother, Charles Lau, on his farm near by, has a collection of flowers second only in interest to Henry Lau's arboretum. He also has one of the finest arbors of choice grapes, including varieties with which the ordinary grower fails utterly, but which for him are complete successes. He even grows and ripens the Catawba.



His flower collection includes many plants that are supposed to be greenhouse plants only, and these he succeeds in growing outdoors. The florists who made the trip declare it will not be their last visit to the places of these pioneers in the farm beautiful movement. Wm. Knees, Jr., Sec'y.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

STIMULATING STEAMER TRADE.

Travel to Europe Renewed.

During the war summers one great reason for slack business was the practical cessation of ocean travel and, consequently, of steamer orders; one cause of trade impatience was the slowness with which restrictions on travel to Europe were removed. But now, though every outward-bound passenger is required to show a passport viséed by the consul of the country to which the traveler is going, together with documentary evidence of compliance with the United States income tax law, the passports are, in ordinary cases, easily secured and the travel Europe-ward is limited only by the capacity of the ships. Many of the lines are booked full through to the middle or end of August. The burden on the lines now operating is increased by the fact that the passenger travel to Germany direct, formerly handled by the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd, can now be taken care of only by the Manchuria and the Mongolia, of the American line.

Good Business Both East and West.

The high cost of traveling and the scarcity and high cost of hotel accommodations in Europe have combined to limit transatlantic travelers largely to those who are distinctly well off; to those, in other words, who are most likely to have friends sending them large bon voyage floral gifts. Many of those going across are going to visit relatives whom they have not seen for some time, or to hunt up relatives from whom they have not heard, or to settle the estates of relatives who have died. Some go for other kinds of personal business or as representatives of business firms. And some go either to tour in neutral countries or to visit the scenes of the war. In prewar days much of the passenger traffic around July 1 consisted of teachers and students going over for a few weeks in the summer vacation, but now the great demand for reservations and the increased rates have forced some of these to give up going and others to go much later in the summer.

While the transatlantic travel is attracting most attention, transpacific travel is not to be neglected. Many persons who are unable to go to Europe may find it possible to make the trip toward the setting sun instead. The fact that the world Sunday school convention is to be held in Tokyo October 5 to 14 will be the occasion for some additional travel in the early fall.

Reminding the Friends.

The better the nature of the passenger traffic is known, the more effectively the trade can focus its advertising to stimulate the steamer trade. In encouraging this publicity the trade in the inland cities and that in the seaport cities will work together through the bond of the F. T. D. The channels of publicity include window displays, newspaper advertisements and card announcements either placed in the store or sent out to established customers.

The window display may portray the ship at the dock, with friends saying farewell and one or two truckloads of flowers being unloaded. It may show the ship in midocean, with the designer's utmost ingenuity put into both the waves and the construction of the ship itself. Or it may present some foreign scene, which will remind the passer-by of a friend soon to leave for that or a similar region. The window space might also be fitted up as a stateroom, with the flowers ready and waiting for the traveler to come and find them, or with the voyager represented as already there and showing appreciation of the comforting gifts.

Display Through Newspapers.

The advertisements in newspapers may make use, in both copy and illustration, of the suggestions for window displays. One simple, but effective, type of advertisement for this purpose is shown in the accompanying illustration; this appeared in a recent issue of a Chicago paper. Naturally both the display and the advertisement will differ somewhat, according to whether the establishment is an inland one, a seaport one or, as in the case illustrated, a firm having stores in both kinds of city. The inland florist will tend to emphasize the fact of ocean travel and the desirability of bon voyage gifts of flowers, while the seaport member of the trade will devote more care to showing what attractive gifts he is able to furnish. If the latter is to do justice to his orders, however, the florist at the other end of the F. T. D. wire must give him plenty of time.

In connection with the display of cards in the store, the use of lists of steamer sailings, such as appear weekly in The Review, will be found helpful. These lists both help to remind the patrons of the date of sailing and to suggest to the retailer where he may concentrate his efforts. He may also send out personal letters or neatly printed notices calling attention to the opportunity to telegraph gifts of flowers to friends bound over the ocean.

DOUBLE-BARRELED BUSINESS.

How many stores in your vicinity use flowers in their window displays? Not florists' stores, but phonograph shops, lamp shops, dry goods stores, automobile salesrooms and specialty shops of numerous kinds. In many towns and cities such shops have found that flowers in their window or in their salesroom add that something called "tone," a thing these shops in certain neighborhoods are anxious to manifest.

At this time of year, when flowers are plentiful and business in most lines has not yet slumped into the warm weather doldrums, florists can offer blooms to the merchants in their neighborhood at attractive prices for use in window decorations. Suggestions to your neighboring shopkeeper may or may not meet prompt adoption, but seed sown will yield its return sooner or later. Use of a few flowers may develop into a habit, so that they become a necessity and the merchant next door a regular customer.

One should not, in his view of the immediate business, forget that such use of flowers, where the many persons passing see them, is exceedingly good advertising for the florist. So a florist who wins a merchant to use flowers in his window display is killing two birds with one stone.

THE REWARD OF PATIENCE.

That patience is rewarded is an old saying. Sometimes the busy proprietor or salesman in a flower store cannot see the reward to be had from complying with the petty and vexatious requests sometimes made in the course of a transaction. But such reward there is, and an ample and tangible one.

In a Seattle store last week a rather elderly lady entered and purchased 20 cents' worth of narcissi, asking that some green be placed with the flowers when they were wrapped up. After the bundle had been done up, she stated that she did not like the green offered her. So the proprietor obligingly undid the parcel, allowed her to select her own pieces of green and then did it up again. All of this was done with as much courtesy as if the customer had been buying $50 worth of flowers.

In the store were several customers waiting for the bothersome one before them to be satisfied. Since their own feelings were ruffled, they noticed the more that the proprietor's apparently were not. The comments on his patience and courtesy made it apparent that the impression he had made on the beholders was a deep one and likely to be lasting. H. M.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Helps from the Press.

Not all the plays upon "Say It with Flowers" made by a friendly press come to the attention of our promotion bureau, but it is gratifying to realize that it is being used continuously. In this way we are helped in our efforts to perpetuate the best slogan ever created in the interest of an industry. It was even used by special writers in recording the doings of the recent Republican convention, as the following taken from Neal R. O'Hara's columns, published as syndicated matter in the New York Evening World as well as many other newspapers: "The guys that framed the platform certainly 'Said It with Flowers.' There are plenty of bouquets for the G. O. P." The slogan was used the same week as a caption for a humorous illustration in Life. In the July bulletin of the Youth's Companion, a little monthly organ of the publishers, which is widely circulated, a little squib suggests, "If you must protest against great wrongs and injustice on every side, why, 'Say It with Flowers.'"

We are always pleased to note instances such as these and we are sure all interested in our campaign share our pleasure. They prove beyond a doubt that our slogan has been accepted and that our efforts to put it over have been successful. One of the clippings we

Factful Ratcliffe on "Competition"

If you want to get some cold facts, served in a cold, matter of fact way, go have a talk with Ratcliffe, of Ratcliffe and Tanner, at Richmond.

Speaking of competition, he recently said he welcomes it.

He said: "If stores were all around, all I would want is a door into my store, and I would make the business the other fellows would be doing, make me more business."

Speaking of advertising, he said:

"When you cut down your Ads, you cut down your business accordingly."

After which I came back to little old New York and cheerfully signed a check for these "fool tree stump talks," as Tom, our Scotchman, calls them.

Which fool Ads may or may not be the reason why some think of me when they think of F. T. D. orders, and some don't.

have referred to was brought to us by a publicity expert of national reputation, saying, "Your slogan is marvelous. Use it how you may, there is a suggestion of one of its many interpretations." He was right. Had our campaign no other result than the popularizing of this slogan, such result would have been worth all the hard work and expense entailed in accomplishing it.

Appreciation.

Many florists appreciate this success. Many more do not seem to realize our advantage and are apathetic in their views regarding our campaign. Surely the time has arrived to shake off this indifference and warm toward our work. Our committee has been able to do in part what they started out to do. They could have accomplished all had they been given the support they had a right to expect. Instead of the good, deep scratch on the surface of the field of possibility now making itself apparent, the field might have been yielding a rich harvest for every florist laboring in it—and this harvest is yet within reach if the florists will but help. Instead of enjoying our benefits on the installment plan, we could have them in a more appreciable way. If the committee's plans for our fall publicity can be carried out to the full, we can in the coming season accomplish completely

The Market.

The supply of flowers in this market is good. Roses, carnations, sweet peas, snapdragons and stocks are the principal offerings. Peonies are just coming into the market, the cold spring having retarded their season so that we had only a few for Memorial day. Gladioli are also beginning to open in quantity. The price of roses still holds up well.

The greenhouse men are busy. Most of the carnations have been put out in the fields and the men are getting the chrysanthemum crop planted. The supply of young ferns for the fall is good, so that next fall the present scarcity of ferns will be over. The bedding season was satisfactory to everyone. The stock brought good prices and has been all used up. The demand for window-box plants was the best yet.

The stores have been quite busy with wedding decorations and graduation work.

Various Notes.

Mr. Olmstead, of John Coombs' Asylum street store, has had several large wedding decorations. For one he used apple blossom arches, which made a pleasing effect.

Lane the Florist had an attractive window display recently. The window contained a bride in a wedding dress and a veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas, while on her head were the customary orange blossoms. Some carefully selected furniture completed the picture. In the other window were many different brides' bouquets of various flowers. Mr. Lane said that his efforts have proved successful, for he has booked several orders for bouquets and decorations.

George G. McClunie reports that business is good. He has some fine flower boxes on the cornice of his store.

J. Albert Brodrib has had some good window displays. His idea of combining goldfish and flowers has produced a cool-looking window.

The Spear & McManus Co. reports that business is satisfactory. The display of palms and ferns is somewhat unusual.

TAPSCOTT, Florist MEMBER F. T. D.

John Walter Jones and Elmer Edgar Freeland have closed their nursery headquarters on the corner of Liberty, Diamond and Ferry streets and are now looking up orders for the coming autumn.

Julius Dilloff was in the city early last week in the interest of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

According to recent reports, George W. Marshall is doing a splendid business in Okmulgee, Okla. He is now trying to procure an assistant from Pittsburgh. For several years Mr. Marshall was a member of the McCallum Co.

John W. Greeny, who has been a salesman for Randolph & McClements for several years, has returned to his former position in the offices of the Pennsylvania railroad.

The Liberty Florists report that the of this reported. Good roses were scarce; most of the indoor varieties, owing to the extreme heat, were small. Carnations, while there is still a large supply, are of the end of the season quality. Sweet peas are in the same class. There is a considerable supply of gladioli to be had, many of them coming from the south. These do not ship well, on account of indifferent packing. The peony crop wound up last week; the crop this year was placed on the market all at once and lasted only about a week. Stock will be scarce each week now until the outdoor crop is ready. Prices still hold firm for this season of the year and, as a whole, the market is all that we can expect.

given publicity and this accounted for so large an attendance on a warm night. As the club had depended on Mr. Ammann entirely, no one was prepared to speak much on the subject, so it was thought best to postpone this important subject until the next meeting, when, if possible, Mr. Ammann will be present.

One of the most important things the club has ever done was to affiliate with the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. An invitation to affiliate with this body was extended to the club by Charles Feast; he and his brother, William Feast, are individual members. The club was quick to accept the invitation and is now a member. This is one of the strongest mercantile associations south of New York and has regular organized bureaus to handle any problems that are likely to come the public to "Say It with Flowers." The committee that will act with the league is composed of James Hamilton, William Feast, H. Clay Primrose, Robert Graham, Jr., and Robert W. Johnston.

An important question came up for discussion, presented by William Feast, regarding instructions for our delegate to the conference of horticultural organizations which was held in New York June 15. The club's delegate, Richard Vincent, Jr., was instructed to vote in favor of Quarantine 37, with the exception of orchids.

Robert Johnston and Robert Graham are now looked upon as the official stewards of the club. They had a bowl of fruit punch that certainly looked like old times and all the ice cream the boys could eat.

The report of the advertising committee was made by Mr. Deatel, of the Deatel Advertising Service. Mr. Deatel outlined the work the committee had mapped out. Among other things the florists are trying to put over with the help of this agency is the placing of a window box in each window of the Bailey building, to be erected at the corner of Calvert and Lexington streets; this is to be a 25-story office building. If this can be accomplished, it will be "Saying It with Flowers" in a most effective way. The committee was reorganized; Joseph S. Merritt, the man who grows nothing but Radiance, is still the chairman. He is getting to be as good at advertising as he is on Radiance. He has close seconds in Robert W. Johnston, C. Harry Wagner and Tom Stevenson. The fifth member will be selected at the next meeting. The new committee proposes to push the campaign to the limit. Tate.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club was held at the club rooms June 14, with President H. G. Dillemuth in the chair. There was a good attendance to discuss arrangements for the annual picnic, which is expected to be as large as usual. Grounds have been reserved at Center island, but steps will be taken by E. Sanderson, chairman of the picnic committee, to change and secure grounds at Hanlan's Point.

The following committees were appointed: Sports, E. Sanderson, chairman; S. McFadden and L. Waters; baseball, George Gard; advertising and program, Harry Lames; prizes, executive committee; refreshments, Mrs. Moore.

A cordial invitation is extended to the growers and their families and all connected with the florists' business to join in the picnic.

The subject of closing one afternoon a week was discussed. The following are closing Saturday afternoons for two to three months: Dunlop's, Ltd., Tidy & Son, Cooper Florist, Little Grey Flower Shop, J. J. Higgins, J. A. Neal, Simmons & Son and William Hoath. S. A. Frost is closing Wednesday afternoons. All the stores will close on the afternoon of July 14 to permit the em-petitions for membership were received.

Alex. MacDonald, Robert Lucking and Peter Smith judged the exhibits. A letter of sympathy was sent to the family of the late Maurice Fuld. President Twigg presented on behalf of the members a small gift to Joseph Adler, past president of the society.

The awards of the judges were: For twelve mixed roses, James McCarthy, first. Three heads of lettuce, John Henderson, first. William Popp's special prize for best decorated basket by assistant gardeners, Arnold Gatticar, first. Joseph Winsock displayed a fine vase of roses, for which he received honorable mention. A vote of thanks was given to Secretary Harris for the splendid work he did at the recent tulip show.

The exhibits for the July 14 meeting will be twenty-five pink sweet peas, twenty-five white sweet peas, twenty-five any other color and six varieties of sweet peas, fifteen of each.

petitions for membership were received.

Alex. MacDonald, Robert Lucking and Peter Smith judged the exhibits. A letter of sympathy was sent to the family of the late Maurice Fuld. President Twigg presented on behalf of the members a small gift to Joseph Adler, past president of the society.

The awards of the judges were: For twelve mixed roses, James McCarthy, first. Three heads of lettuce, John Henderson, first. William Popp's special prize for best decorated basket by assistant gardeners, Arnold Gatticar, first. Joseph Winsock displayed a fine vase of roses, for which he received honorable mention. A vote of thanks was given to Secretary Harris for the splendid work he did at the recent tulip show.

The exhibits for the July 14 meeting will be twenty-five pink sweet peas, twenty-five white sweet peas, twenty-five any other color and six varieties of sweet peas, fifteen of each.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Petaluma, Cal.—Alex Lowe has entered the florists' and nursery business.

Seattle, Wash.—The annual rose show will be held in the Forestry building at the University of Washington June 29 and 30. Sixty-one classes are provided for entries in competition and many beautiful separate displays of flowers and potted plants will be made.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

June weddings contributed their share towards the business last week and the demand for first-class stock has been above the supply. Carnations are scarce and high in price for this season, growers in many cases having dried their plants off for the summer.

Roses are poor in quality and scarce, especially white buds, which are in considerable demand. Funeral work has fallen off and retailers are talking fishing and hunting trips. Small flowers are fairly good for this season and greens are well up to the demand.

Various Notes.

Angelo Tassano is going strong on maidenhair fern at the Artesia nursery. With the new addition, there will be about one acre of glass devoted to this and the stock is excellent. D. Tassano, grower here with his brother, is wonderfully successful with this stock and it is noticeable that the brothers always have the latest strains. Everybody is welcome to come and look the place over and they will give anyone interested all the information they can. The whole place is kept up in good shape and an immense output will materialize in the near future.

At the regular meeting of the Florists' Club, held June 10, there was a fairly good attendance. The publicity committee reported that up to the present a total of $10,445 has been promised for the advertising campaign of 1920-1921. The committee was empowered to go ahead and make contracts and spend the money according to its judgment, using newspaper space, billboards and other methods of publicity. The committee now consists of Roy F. Wilcox, chairman; Ed Rust, Albert Knopf, Fred Howard and H. Reeve Darling, with President Armacost and Secretary A. F. Borden members ex-officio. The funds are to be in the form of four equal payments, including sight drafts and bills at three, six and nine months. Thus payments from members and expenditures will be spread equally over the entire year.

Roy Benner, formerly with the Broadway Florist, is now with the Arizona Seed & Floral Co., Phoenix, Ariz.

Large purchases of garden hose by the L. A. Floral Co. are moving to nurserymen and growers. Business in the flower shipping end keeps up well, considering the season. A large amount of statice in variety has been shipped, the pretty S. latifolium and S. incana making a change from the varieties of S. sinuatum that have been offered so far. The first carload of sphagnum moss this season has just arrived for this firm.

C. E. Gutting, of the Superior Nursery Co., has just returned from a business trip to San Francisco, which he had to cut short on account of a large cut of dahlias coming in which he had to be here to handle.

Wright's Flower Shop is a busy place these days with wedding and presentation orders. F. Westrum looks sunburnt and tells of a pleasant fishing trip. Mr. Wright still puts in time in the desert, but can be seen occasionally around the store, minus the temporary mustache. Cattleya gigas has been fine at the nursery this season, some fine plants being shown in the windows.

Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was calling on the trade last week.

Some beautiful California lilies came from R. Kessler, who has returned from a trip to the mountains. L. Parryi, with its rich yellow blossoms, and the well known L. Humboldtii are included, also a lovely spike of L. Roezlii, distinct and beautiful, and several of the pardalinum type.

The addition of new mirrors around the wall and back of the icebox has made a great improvement in the appearance of the store of the Alexandria Florist, on Fifth street. Business is reported good here.

W. Armacost & Co. are busy at the range, most of the rose replanting having been finished for the season. The comparatively cool weather has been all in favor of a quick and successful job.

H. R. Richards.

Reports from various wholesale, shipping and retail firms would indicate rather quiet business, as is to be expected at this time of the year. These reports make it somewhat of a mystery what becomes of the large quantities of stock arriving on the market each day. As far as can be ascertained, comparatively little of it is being dumped. In view of this situation, several prominent men in the business qualify their statements about the summer lull by saying that while sales are lower than they were all winter and spring, the falling off is perhaps not so pronounced as in former years.

June promises to be a good month. The usual large number of weddings have been solemnized, school functions have called for a liberal amount of flowers, funeral work has furnished an outlet for a great many more and the Democratic national convention is expected to bring a great many people to the city, who will spend more or less for flowers.

Stock leaves nothing to be desired.

There is a wide variety of outdoor seasonable offerings, such as scabiosa, marguerites, gaillardias and stocks, in addition to a heavy cut of roses and carnations, and the general supply of flowers is further augmented by a heavy crop of large-flowering gladioli. The latter show excellent quality and have a splendid call. Both roses and carnations are holding up well in quality. White roses are in particularly good demand for wedding bouquets. The principal white variety featured in this market is Kaiserin, although some White Killarney is offered. As far as other roses are concerned, Russell, Columbia, Ophelia and Hadley are about equally good.

Orchids are not plentiful, but there seem to be enough to meet requirements. They retail at $1.50 and $2. Gardenias are in fairly good crop for this time of the year. Strawflowers are an important feature of shipping business.

Various Notes.

F. C. Jaeger & Son, who have conducted a retail store at 152 Powell street for some time, are now going into the wholesale shipping business. To this end they have acquired additional basement space and are having the premises remodeled and fitted up with an icebox and other special features to handle orders of any size to all points within shipping distance of San Francisco. Retail sales, Mr. Jaeger says, are holding up well for June. John McDonald is spending his vacation at Siegler's Springs, in Lake county.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is on a committee which has been delegated to make a tour of inspection of the Hetchy water project on behalf of the city. Mr. Pelicano reports business a little better than usual for the summer time.

C. Kooyman says that there will be a great shortage of Freesia Purity this year. He is booking large orders for these bulbs. Calla lily bulbs will be short also, he says.

Henry Avansino, manager of the wholesale shipping warerooms of the E. W. McLellan Co., has purchased this firm's nursery at San Leandro, on the east side of San Francisco bay.

The Francis Floral Co., at Sutter and Powell streets, which makes a strong feature of its own novelty creations in the way of baskets, pottery, lotus, etc., is doing a fine tourist business this year.

J. A. Axell continues to handle quantities of gladioli and is also supplying a heavy demand for lily of the valley and Kaiserin roses.

Julius Eppstein is well pleased with business at the St. Francis hotel. The hotel is full of guests and many functions there in the way of luncheons, dinner parties and banquets create an active demand for flowers. Miss Goldstein, formerly interested in the Terminal Florist store, across from the Ferry building, is now on Mr. Eppstein's staff.

Victor Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., reports planting well along, considering the shortage of help, which is a serious handicap now. Indications are favorable, he says, for a fine crop of orchids this coming winter. At present they are rather light, but there are enough for the demand. Gardenias are in fair crop, one house having just been replanted.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. reports sales keeping up well for the season. Charles McAuliffe is back from Lake Tahoe and Mr. Capuro is now vacationing in the Sacramento valley.

The United Flower & Supply Co. continues to fill large orders for tubs, baskets and other florists' supplies and is well pleased with the development of this branch of its business.

The Market.

With conventions, many social events and the usual number of weddings and funerals, the local florists are kept busy. Stock is scarce. No outdoor stock is arriving yet. The season is backward and cold. Within the last few days good, seasonable rains have put everything in a good growing condition and if we are blessed with a few days of warm sunshine everything will burst forth in all its glory.

Next week the annual rose festival will be held and the Shriners' convention also meets here at the same time, so that it is evident that florists will be short of stock to supply the large demand which is sure to come from these sources.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Portland Floral Society was held Tuesday evening, June 15, and officers for the ensuing year were elected. It was decided to hold the annual picnic at Bull Run park July 14. A special car will accommodate the party. A basket picnic dinner will be served and ice cream and coffee will be furnished by the society. All members and their friends are invited.

The firm of Martin & Forbes has been taken over by Mr. Martin, who will conduct the business. Mr. Forbes has not decided as yet what he is going to do.

Clarke Bros. have acquired the collection of orchids owned by Dr. Ferrill, at Portland Heights. In addition to cattleyas, there are a number of spray orchids in the collection. They were fortunate in securing such a fine collection, for it is probably the best in this part of the country.

Indoor-grown gladioli of fine quality are being brought in by John Holden, Clarke Bros., Mr. Tonseth and Fred Young. The outdoor crop will be on the market about July 10.

Friday afternoon, June 11, Mr. and Mrs. Weed, peony growers, invited the women of Votary to an exhibition at their farm near Beaverton. After the exhibition, luncheon was served, with entertainment of æsthetic dancing by young ladies. About eighty attended this function and all reported an enjoyable time. L. T. S.

in slowing up business so that the lighter supply failed to materially affect the business in any way. There has been plenty of funeral work, besides a large number of weddings, but the weather conditions since Memorial day have been such that transient business has not been so heavy as might be expected for this season of the year. All outdoor flowers from northwestern growers are slow in arriving this year, and this has held business back by limiting the variety of offerings.

Last week saw the first outdoor sweet peas of the year. New offerings have included water lilies and Ulrich Brunner roses. Baby roses from local greenhouses are also in appearance, but are somewhat lacking in color.

There are plenty of both double and single peonies on hand at this time, but buyers do not show the interest in these items which might be expected and they are probably the slowest sellers on the list. There are some fine pink gladioli being shown and those houses that have Francis King stock on hand say that this has been a ready seller also. The carnations coming to hand show the effects of the lack of sunny days. Potted plants are scarce. Primroses, fuchsias, Shasta daisies, geraniums and Chinese asters have been the popular sellers here. Many ferns have been sold recently. Roses hold their supremacy, with Ophelia and Ward the heaviest arrivals. Both of these varieties have made a good showing as to quality. Columbia is plentiful. There are plenty of orchids and lilies of the valley and a good demand resulted in the cleaning up of gardenias on several days last week. The sale of orchids has been steady.

Water lilies are beginning to be plentiful and have been extensively used in window displays recently.

Various Notes.

Henry Day, of the Orpheum Floral Co., has been featuring home-made baskets in his windows lately and reports a good sale of them. They are made of matting and the containers filled with various combinations of spring flowers. Spanish iris and Shasta daisies have been the most popular ones.

Albert Stein, of San Francisco, has been calling on the trade in the northwest centers and is to spend some time in Portland before returning home. Other trade visitors during last week were C. B. Clancy, of Salem, Ore., and Thomas Luke, of Portland, Ore.

Miss Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., has returned from a business trip through southwestern Washington and to Portland.

Felix Rosaia has been handling some fine violets lately. This flower is becoming more and more plentiful and the growers' prices have been shaded somewhat of late.

Eugene W. Clark and Irving Harris, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, are taking a fortnight's vacation at the same time and will spend it in the Hoods canal section. Tom O. Sherwin, of the same house, has just returned from his vacation. The Woodlawn Flower Shop handled the floral decoration for the flag day ceremonies at Woodland park where the Seattle lodge of the Elks was host to 50,000 schoolboys.

Some of the best primroses arriving on the market at this time are being shipped in by McCoy's greenhouses. This firm has a new electrical sign for

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

A. A. N. DEBATES ADVERTISING.

Chicago Convention a Live Meeting.

The year's experience with the association's advertising project provided the chief interest at the forty-fifth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, June 22 to 24. The problems opened by the adoption of a broader policy for the organization a year ago came up for keen and close consideration.

More attention than was expected has been given to the publicity undertaken by the A. A. N. Full evidence of the breadth of the interest aroused was afforded by the placards which covered the walls of the Florentine room and the committee rooms at the Congress, quoting excerpts from articles and editorials in the country's leading agricultural papers in regard to the policy and publicity of the A. A. N.

The attitude of the association in its advertising has increased its effect upon the association in other ways. The vigilance committee is being called upon for greater activity, in order that charges of unprofessional methods may be sifted and proper action taken. The strength of the association's advertising, it is felt, depends upon the extent to which the guarantee implied in the trade-mark and indicated in advertising is maintained. To make this advertising effective in a permanent and valuable fashion, the association is compelled, not nominally but actually, to live up to certain standards and to insist that those who continue in its membership do so.

Expense Another Problem.

That is one problem. Another lies in the expense involved. The plan of assessment adopted last June exacts a large sum of money from large nurserymen. Whether the proportionate benefit is in accordance with the assessments is a question raised. The association has done much with the money at its disposal during the last year. That is due partly to the reading space given to the nurserymen's new stand. Many, indeed practically all, of the agricultural papers have devoted space to this topic and discussion in print regarding it has been plentiful. Another year more expense will be necessary to produce equal results.

Question is raised, of course, whether such expenditure is justified when nurserymen have all the orders they are able to fill this year and will be in the same situation again next year. The answer is that such conditions will not always obtain, and when they cease the effectiveness of advertising done in the meantime will be great.

Other Associations' Advertising.

The advocates of association advertising came prepared with figures. A printed circular was distributed giving the facts in three other industries. It showed that the walnut growers from 1914 to 1917 doubled their output and from 1917 to 1919 doubled it again, and were able to sell all of this enormous output without price-cutting as a result of their association's advertising. The raisin growers, the circular stated, sold only 110,000,000 out of 140,000,000 pounds produced in 1913, but after an association advertising campaign, produced and sold in 1917 a total of 326,000,000 pounds, increasing the per capita consumption of raisins from one and one-tenth to three and two-tenths pounds. The orange growers, it was declared, at a cost of eight-tenths of one per cent for association advertising, increased the consumption of oranges per capita 100 per cent, raising the sales of growers from $7,124,377, in 1905, to $17,235,823, in 1912, and to $54,627,556 in 1919.

Fellowship Banquet.

At this convention the banquet, instead of providing recreation after business, was set before the opening session, so that the members might renew old acquaintance and acquire the feeling of good fellowship before the time for business. Tuesday, June 22, in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel, a splendid banquet was served at 7 p. m. About 200 filled the hall. After an excellent dinner a series of informal speeches created a spirit of cohesion and unity that showed its effect in later sessions.

President J. Edward Moon, the capable chairman of the evening, opened with a few well chosen words. Then he called upon Dr. Frederick V. Coville, of the Department of Agriculture, who, after some brief remarks, stated that more distinguished representatives of his organization would speak at later gatherings, so that he need speak but little.

Paul C. Lindley, of Pomona, N. C., chairman of the vigilance committee, spoke of the work of that body in a way that foreshadowed more interesting divulgences at business sessions. He expressed the hope of a meeting in the manner of an old-time Methodist revival, when those present arose and confessed their sins.

P. S. Lovejoy, whose articles on the A. A. N., its advertising and its trademark, in the Country Gentleman, are known to most nurserymen, spoke clearly to the point after he had told some tall tales with ironic reflection on catalogue writers. He stated frankly that nurserymen are "in wrong" with the public. Evidence of this he cited in the shape of adverse legislation with which the trade is more and more encompassed, the product of the consumers' dissatisfaction with trade practices. He expressed himself as pleased with the new policy of the A. A. N. and convinced of the sincerity and purpose behind it.

L. W. C. Tuthill, whose agency furnishes the copy for the A. A. N. advertisements, spoke briefly, emphasizing the power of publicity and the fact that the nurserymen, having undertaken a big job, could not quit it. F. F. Rockwell, formerly in charge of the market development campaign, and Ralph Olcott, editor of the American Nurseryman, made short remarks also.

Giving a foretaste of his longer address the following day, David N. Mosessohn, executive director of the Associated Dress Industries, spoke on the necessity of coöperation and organization to carry an industry to its proper level. He told of the struggles in organizing the industries he represented, doing a yearly business of $800,000,000. He commented on the nurserymen's publicity, commending it highly.

Closing the evening, President Moon voiced the importance and value of the meeting and called on the visitors for full coöperation.

Opening Session.

About 200 members gathered in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel at 10 a. m., Wednesday, June 23, for the opening business session. President Moon presented an address which received much applause at its close and much commendation for its able presentation of the nurserymen's problems. Regarding the outlook he said:

"It is general knowledge that nurserymen have had about as much business the last season as could be handled with available labor. Prices were higher than previously, mostly yielding a fair profit.

"Plantings, due to labor shortage and other causes, have, in recent years, been reduced, until an insufficient supply in many lines now exists. These conditions indicate that there should be no reduction in prices. In fact, the peak in plant prices has not been reached, even though it seems to be falling slowly in general merchandise lines.

"Of course, the public must be adequately supplied, but our capital is entitled to at least a clear net profit equal to the interest rate on a government security, and this is more than some nurserymen have had in past years. A reasonable profit in the nursery business, considering the hazards of the industry, the restrictions and restraints of the law and the slowness of the turnover, should not be less than twenty per cent per annum."

Vice-president Lloyd C. Stark presented a report for the executive committee, briefly stating the action taken by the committee on the matters put in its hands by the convention last year. He indicated that the centralized executive office of the association has cost the association in the last year about $2,500 less than the similar work cost the previous year.

The executive director of the Associated Dress Industries, David N. Mosessohn, reënforced his remarks of the previous evening in regard to organization and coöperation. Among his remarks were statements to the effect that nurserymen were not generally regarded as merchants, at least not good merchants, and that the dues of the association were evidently too small to carry on the work which was the association's objective.

Resuming association business, John S. Kerr made a motion of commendation of the executive committee's report. Upon the second of Alvin E. Nelson, this action was taken.

Secretary's Report.

Secretary Watson then presented his report. He showed that the total expenses of his office, including his salary of $500 per month for ten months and the advertising appropriation of $4,500, amounted to about $13,830. These were itemized as follows:

Stenographers	1,216.75
Traveling expenses	465.81
Advertising	4,649.94
Expenses incidental to advertising	107.67

Secretary Watson stated that about twenty members had availed themselves of the opportunity to list surplus stock at the executive office. The facilities provided for collection service were subscribed to by fifty-four members. He spoke of the effective work of the association's speakers at horticultural societies, a branch of activity to be increased during the next year.

The big topic was, he said, the market development campaign carried on by means of the $4,500 advertising appropriation of the last year. "No campaign of such small size," he declared, "had ever attracted so much attention as did this one." He recommended that the publicity for the coming year be planned on a basis of an expenditure of $50,000.

J. R. Mayhew moved that Mr. Watson's report be approved and his work during the last year be highly commended by the association. He also moved that the matter of dues be made a special item of business at the afternoon session, which was carried without dissent.

Open Discussion.

No program of papers was provided this year, as has been the custom at previous conventions of the association. Instead the meetings were given over to the debate of topics nearest the hearts and minds of the members. That no one should be at a loss for something to say or should fail to have supplied himself with ammunition, Secretary Watson had sent out in his invitation to the meeting a list of subjects worthy of discussion on the convention floor. This list was as follows:

Market development.
Publicity.
Costs.
Seedlings and raw materials.
Inspection and quarantine.
The landscape gardener.
Standardization of plant names.
The planter's viewpoint.
Coöperation with pomological and horticultural societies.
Nursery training in agricultural colleges.
Business ethics.
Advertising.
Credits and collections.
Surplus and shortages.
Relations with professional landscape architects.

DOUBLE SNAPDRAGON
JUNE HEFKO

JUNE HEFKO DOUBLE SNAPS.

FOR October and later delivery, a new Pink Double Snapdragon for the first time will be offered to the trade.

As it appeared in the FLORISTS' REVIEW of May 13th, it is the same size, color and habit of growth as that of Nelrose, except that it is perfectly double and absolutely seedless. It is practically everblooming, and as for keeping quality it outlasts any flower I know of. It is an excellent shipper, as the flowers hold fast to the stem and do not drop off in the box, and the flowers are so full and double that there is very little chance for them to get bruised in transit. If the reader wishes to know any further details I will be pleased to answer any correspondence.

Legislative Platform.

The influence of political conventions was felt at the nurserymen's convention in the introduction of a platform on legislative matters by President J. Edward Moon. In a circular presenting a tentative outline to members before the meeting, he said:

"There has never been any public statement of the nurserymen's position regarding that legislation which has, in recent years, come to direct and control our industry in many ways. Some of this legislation has been an advantage, while some of it has imposed obligations on us with which it is well-nigh impossible to comply and, at the same time, do a profitable business.

"If such a platform is adopted, then it will serve as a guide to our officers in their legislative work, the membership will be cognizant of the position of the association on these matters, and the agricultural press and others who may be interested may be reliably informed of the nurserymen's position."

The preamble to the platform, after stating that "the members of the American Association of Nurserymen realize the necessity as fully as any persons in the United States for preventive and remedial measures, under government direction, to control and arrest the spread of insect pests or plant diseases, capable of injury to the nation's agricultural and horticultural interests," declared that "as an association and individually we do, however, protest against certain laws, both state and federal, designed to protect plant life and the industries dependent upon it, but which in their execution place greatly increased demands upon the nurserymen for production, while at the same time these laws have put in jeopardy the capital already invested in the nursery industry, have prevented the securement of sufficient additional capital with which to expand our business to meet existing demands upon it, and further, they have stifled that fondness and enthusiasm for plant breeding and propagation that is necessary to develop anything requiring a decade or more to produce and market."

Exhibits.

The exhibits were few on the opening day. Two large rooms were provided for them on the second floor of the hotel.

J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., and A. B. Morse & Co., St. Joseph, Mich., displayed many samples of their catalogue and color publicity work.

Geo. B. Carpenter & Co., Chicago, showed a number of samples of cordage of various kinds such as are used by its customers among the nurserymen of the middle west.

Retailers' Meeting.

In the afternoon before the opening day of the convention the Retail Nurserymen's Association met in a committee room of the Congress hotel to discuss the problems the past year had brought and exchange information of a helpful character.

President Ruth Day states that prospects are for a most interesting and well attended meeting.

On the opening day the Chamber of Commerce luncheon is featured as an attraction. A stereopticon lecture on landscaping will be given by Howard E. Weed, of Portland, Ore. A trip through the Spokane valley to see the apple growing sections is in prospect.

For Discussion.

A list of topics to be discussed at the meeting was included in the announcement. On it were the following:

Publicity for nursery products.
Practical advertising.
Coöperation with the trade.
Coöperation with the public.
Coöperation with florists and seedsmen.
Cost finding system.
Cold storage for nursery stock.
Uniform federal horticultural laws.
Other legislation.
Horticultural societies and garden clubs.
Agricultural and horticultural papers.
Reports on the season's business.
Outlook for the future.
Seedlings and source of supply.

One evening, June 30, is given over to coöperation with florists. The Spokane Florists' Club is doing much in preparations for the entertainment of the nurserymen. The club has appointed a committee of four in charge of arrangements: John W. Duncan, chairman; Samuel Younkin, L. C. Barrett and E. A. Hedger.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The feature of last week's business was the unusually large number of weddings, which kept florists on the jump. With outdoor roses coming in more plentifully, together with iris and other blooms, the lack of greenhouse stock is materially offset. Consequently, the supply has been fully adequate for all demands, although a slight shortening was noted the latter part of the week because of the dark weather, which prevailed all the week. Prices have ruled about normal.

Various Notes.

Harry Landerman will close his flower department in the Providence store of S. S. Kresge, July 3, until September.

Harry Popkin, doing business as Smith the Florist, will remove soon from 25 Washington street to new quarters at 200 Washington street.

Frey Bros., 50 Radcliffe avenue, have just added a new automobile truck to the delivery department.

Joseph Koppelman is putting a new elevator service in his building at 26 Custom House street.

John J. Kelley, of Valley Falls, made an automobile trip to Boston last week, combining business and pleasure.

Timothy O'Connor has returned after spending several weeks in Florida and the south.

Charles E. Lapham, Charles Cranshaw, Frederick C. Hoffman, Frederick S. Davis, James McGinn and Charles T. Walker have been drawn by the city council of Pawtucket for petit jury duty.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, has been making a business automobile trip through central Connecticut.

Ed Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., who has been confined to the house by illness, is again out.

William Bowers, of Washington street, had the decorations for the banquet given on the new Fabre line steamer Providence on her maiden trip Saturday, June 19.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., is having a handsome new bungalow erected on Hope street. W. H. M.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

BOILER OF AMPLE SIZE.

I have a greenhouse, 21x50 feet, which I am going to lengthen to seventy-five feet. The house has three feet of cypress in the side walls and three feet of glass, with the north end entirely closed. At present I am using a Wilks hot water boiler, 24x36 inches, but when I complete the extension I shall have fourteen lines of 2-inch returns supplied by two 2-inch feed pipes. Is the boiler I am now using large enough to heat this house to 50 or 55 degrees at zero temperature? Should I have larger feed pipes?

W. T. B.—N. C.

The boiler is of ample size and there should be no difficulty in maintaining a temperature of 60 degrees when it is 10 degrees below zero, if the radiation is properly arranged.

The letter does not state whether the boiler is below the level of the returns, but if such is the case the radiation suggested is considerably more than is required for 50 to 55 degrees. But I should increase either the number or the size of the flow pipes. Instead of fourteen 2-inch return pipes it will only be necessary to use nine 2-inch returns, provided three 2-inch flow pipes are used and the returns are above the top of the boiler. Run the flow pipes downhill and connect the highest part of each flow with the expansion pipe. If the returns are lower than the top of the boiler, it will be advisable to use a mercury circulator.

BOILER IN RESIDENCE.

I intend to build a greenhouse 21x40 feet, at the southwest corner of my residence, as shown on the plans I am sending you. The side walls will have three feet of board with insulating paper and three feet of glass. The ends will be three feet of board and the rest of glass. Ten and a half feet of the east end will be exposed and twenty-eight feet of the north wall. Eight feet of the north wall, next to the house, will have regular siding, with one door, and a glass panel. The remaining twenty feet of the exposed part of the north wall will be wood and glass. The entire south slope of roof and twenty feet of the north slope will be glass; the eight feet over the office next to the house will have regular roofing. The boiler for a hot water system is in the basement of the house, set close to the chimney. The basement floor is three feet below the surface of the ground. There is an 8-inch square flue, which clears all buildings and trees. I intend to build with the idea of adding another unit, 21x40 feet, at the south side next year. The most convenient location for will put high temperatures into your heating lines

It will pay you to consider the advantages of KROESCHELL BOILERS for Hot Water or Steam no matter how large or small the size of your establishment.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot-accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth fire passages.

No Tubes To Clean, No Masonry Required

For Steam Plants Less Than 100 Horse Power

Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boiler

The KROESCHELL Water Tube Steam Boiler was created to meet the demands of high pressure steam heating plants, less than 100 h. p. capacity. No masonry required—no tubes to clean.

Greenhouse owners like the KROESCHELL because of its extreme simplicity and freedom from trouble. As a fuel saver, it pays its own way. The KROESCHELL will increase your heating plant efficiency 20 to 40%.

Year after year, the KROESCHELL Hot Water Boiler has given the best of satisfaction to men who know boilers—men to whom results are the very things that count. There is a KROESCHELL for every Greenhouse plant, be it large or small.

HOTBED SASH

A. DIETSCH CO., DEPT. "B." 2640 SHEFFIELD AVE. Chicago, Ill.

the main flow will be across the building from the north to the south, about thirteen feet from the east end.

What is the proper size of main flow and branch flows, number and size of coils, etc.? I should like to use 1½-inch and 2-inch pipe. What is the largest capacity of hot water boiler that can be successfully carried with my chimney. What is the best method of ventilation for one slope, top or bottom? On which side should either be placed?

C. R. D.—Ind.

There was no mention of the temperature to be maintained in the greenhouse, but presumably 60 degrees will be satisfactory.

The main flow pipe, to supply the radiation for the house 21x40 feet, should be 3-inch. After carrying it to a point directly under the ridge of the house, extend it to the west end of the house on a level two or three feet below the ridge. Run 2½-inch branch pipes in each direction and take off 2-inch feed pipes to supply coils of four 1½-inch returns under each of the benches in the middle of the house. Then reduce the branch feed pipes to 2-inch and extend them to connect with coils of four 1½-inch pipes under each of the side benches. Run the return coils to the east end of the house and connect them with the main return pipe leading to the boiler. This should be 3-inch after the last coil has been connected.

The mains for the later addition should also be 3-inch pipes and it will require sixteen 1½-inch returns in the coils. If both houses are to be heated from one main flow pipe, it should be 4-inch.

Economical results cannot be expected with more than 800 square feet of radiation from a boiler connected with an 8x8-inch flue and it is preferable to limit the radiation to 600 square feet for a boiler with a flue of the size mentioned, especially when soft coal is to be used.

It is preferable to have ventilators hinged at the ridge and if only one line is used have them open away from the prevailing strong winds. On houses running north and south this places the ventilators on the east side of the ridge in the central and western states. If the prevailing winds are from the northwest, as in many sections, the ventilators would be on the south side of the ridge in houses running east and west. They should be on the north side if the prevailing winds are from the southwest.

The Market.

Business here is good. It seems to be on the increase rather than on the decrease. Many funerals, as well as an unusual number of graduates, make the demand for flowers extraordinarily heavy. Stock is plentiful. The market is flooded with carnations. Sweet peas are much in demand, but most growers have pulled them to make room for chrysanthemums. Roses are rather scarce, but such flowers as delphiniums, cornflowers, etc., are substituted.

Various Notes.

E. D. Ludwig has returned from Chicago. He had been there several days on business.

More than 200 varieties of iris and peonies from the Wing Seed Co., Mechanicsburg, O., were on display June 17 to 19 at the Miller-Kelton studio. The exhibition was brought here by Elwood & Frye, landscape architects. There were garden models in clay and an expert landscape architect was present to answer all questions on gardening.

T. J. Ludwig and the Munk Floral Co. had some attractive window displays last week. J. W. T.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Most of the members of the trade report business good at present. There are many June weddings and also much funeral work. Graduation orders, while still small, have been larger in the last week than they were earlier in the month. Prices are still somewhat high, but are nearer normal than they have been for many months.

Various Notes.

The 1920 Newark directory, recently published, lists fifty-four florists in Newark.

Henry A. Strobell and family have moved to their summer home at Asbury park for the season.

At a meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club, held June 17, the question of holding an outing this summer was discussed. While no definite plans were adopted, it is likely that an outing will be held about August. Plans will be perfected at the July meeting.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The peony was queen of the market last week, for thousands of them were flooding the stores. The late varieties are beginning to arrive. Festiva maxima, always a favorite, is as handsome as ever.

Carnations are a drug on the market and street venders are selling them at 25 cents per dozen. Sweet peas are also stagnating and are cheap because of the surplus. Even the commencement and wedding orders do not make much of an impression on the oversupply of peonies, carnations and sweet peas.

Pyrethrums, bachelor's buttons, outdoor roses, etc., are all plentiful. The outdoor valley has gone and the forced valley is exceedingly scarce and high-priced. Cattleyas are hard to obtain. Hardy ferns of this year's growth have begun to arrive and they are welcome after the hard time everyone has had during the shortage of greens. Asparagus is again in supply. Begonias and hydrangeas are about the only available blooming plants at present. The sale of bedding plants, seedlings, etc., still is heavy.

Various Notes.

The Rochester Herald, June 14, contained a valuable article on "The Treatment of Garden Pests," which was timely.

The peony display at Highland Park is at its height and contains several hundred choice varieties.

C. W. Curtis, Irondequoit, N. Y., has a field of 100,000 gladioli, which will bloom late in July. He was especially fortunate to have an enormous supply of bulbs on hand before the embargo on the importation on bulbs was passed.

George T. Boucher will spend his vacation motoring through the Adirondacks and in New York city.

The New York State College of Agriculture invites amateur and professional flower growers to three days of conference or field days at Cornell University, June 30 to July 2. The department of floriculture works in close connection with the American Rose Society, the American Peony Society and the American Iris Society. Its collections of plants in these groups are said to be among the best in the country. Wednesday, June 30, there will be an outdoor demonstration of the value of perennial plants for home gardens. At 1 p. m. the same day there will be a roundtable discussion of all phases of rose culture. This discussion will take place in the rose test gardens, which are conducted to coöperate with the American Rose Society and for the purpose of showing the hardiness and general adaptiveness of various types of roses for general sections of the country. Thursday, July 1, there will be a similar discussion in the peony test gardens and Friday, July 2, one regarding iris.

night illumination of the show window, the novelty being in a revolving disk behind the sign, which constantly changes the color of the inscription, "Say It with Flowers."

The basket trade shows a steady increase and several big decorations have been handled of late at Kenney's Home of Flowers.

Rosaia Bros. showed some fine ferns in one window last week and state that this display served to sell a good many plants. Some fine sweet peas are being shown.

So successful were the local growers with their chrysanthemums last season that in nearly every case there will be an increased acreage to report for 1920. Among those who will plant more heavily are Stuber & Richardson and the East Seattle Floral Co.

The floral baskets used at the opening of the new Liberty theater in Yakima were supplied by the Hollywood Gardens. H. M.

Lake Charles, La.—C. D. Otis, after a successful season, left June 16 for a well earned vacation and expected to visit some of the eastern houses he has been dealing with. He intends to take in Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Portland, Me.

Lynchburg, Va.—Since W. M. Doyle, Jr., entered into partnership with J. J. Fallon the business has been conducted under the name of J. J. Fallon Co. An excellent trade is being done, both at Lynchburg headquarters and at the concern's other store at Durham, N. C.

The Market.

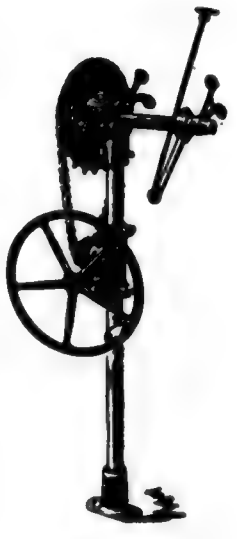
Since graduations are over, business has eased up somewhat, as usual. Weddings and prenuptial affairs have helped to keep things going. Roses are a little scarce, but are of excellent quality. The hot weather has brought on immense crops of carnations, which, though a little small, are still of good quality and ship well, bringing $1 to $1.50 per dozen on the local market. Outdoor stock of all kinds is arriving now, including Rocky mountain columbines. Peonies are in good supply and bring $2 to $3 per dozen. Shipping to southern states, mountain and prairie towns continues steady.

Various Notes.

The webworm, which has put in its appearance in great numbers here in some sections, is causing some anxiety to those of the trade that handle outdoor stock. The first crop of the worm seems to have run its course, the second is the one to be feared.

H. L. Potter, of the Potter Floral Co., El Paso, Tex., was a visitor last week.

Al Hamburger, who opened a store this spring at 2214 East Colfax, reports a splendid spring and Memorial day business.



W. W. Wilmore is bringing in some fine outdoor stock.

Fred Meyers has Gladiolus Pendleton with 5-foot and 6-foot stems.

Asbestos

Black Glazing Cement

A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary —simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load same—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

Not Affected by Extreme Heat or Cold

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

FREE OFFER

To facilitate the application of our product we furnish the following apparatus free of cost:

WITH EACH BARREL
2 Bulbers
1 Gun for filling bulbers

WITH EACH HALF-BARREL
1 Bulber
1 Gun for filling bulber

While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Black Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and again and we can prove it.

CYCLAMEN
The most vigorous
3-in. plants
you ever saw

commercial colors.

You will not have to get these plants
established in 3-in. pots
after you receive them,
as you usually do,
for they are now great,
big, husky, fellows
growing in a ball
of soil and fertilizer
that will make you

red-ribbon plants
for Thanksgiving and

our price for June
delivery is only
$25.00 per 100.

Cash.

C. L. HUMPHREY,
Zanesville, Ohio.

STURDY CYCLAMEN
Do you want strong, stocky Cyclamen plants, out of the ordinary quality, not spindly plants, grown in too high temperature, but sturdy plants, with stamina in them; ready to grow into great big specimen plants, that should carry 20 or 30 or more giant blooms at a time, about Thanksgiving and Christmas.

We have them. You want them. What does it matter if you pay us a few cents more per plant, if you can get a dollar or so more per plant when you sell them next winter. You pay us 35c for a 3-in. pot plant in June and sell the same plant in December for $5.00 and up.

We ship in paper pots and send cultural directions. Salmon King, Salmon Queen, Crimson St. George, Grandiflora Alba, blood red and other varieties, 2¼-in. pot plants, $15.00 per 100, $135.00 per 1000; 3-in. pot plants, $35.00 per 100, $315.00 per 1000. Cash or satisfactory references.
Howe-Underhill Co., Pennington, N. J.

We have a surplus of two varieties of Cyclamen, white with red eye and pure white, transplanted seedlings, fine strain. Special price, $50.00 per 1000.
Fred H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind.

Cyclamen, 2-in., mixed varieties, $10.00 per 100. Cash. Jacobs Bros., Peoria, Ill.

$190.00 per 1000.

ROLF ZETLITZ CO.,

Dayton, Ohio.

A CHOICE STRAIN OF
Cyclamen seed, will create the greatest pleasure for the grower, when they make that beautiful show of large well colored, long heavy stemmed flowers, standing erect above such silvery lined foliage as our choice strain will produce and is the only way to avoid disappointments, when they come to bloom.
We have that strain of which I am sure there is no better, and can not be surpassed, at least that is the conviction of our many customers.
Scarcity of such extra good seed, will put price much higher the coming season, for early sowing, purchase now so to have it on hand.
The following colors are now available: Christmas Red, Defiance, dark blood and bright red, dark and light salmon, $2.00 per 100, $18.00 per 1000. Our cultural directions go with all orders, in them you will find a life-time experience. Cash please.
C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, St. Petersburg, The Sunshine City of Florida.

CYCLAMEN
The most vigorous
3-in. plants
you ever saw

in all the best commercial colors.

You will not have to get these plants
established in 3-in. pots
after you receive them,
as you usually do,
for they are now great,
big, husky, fellows
growing in a ball
of soil and fertilizer
that will make you

red-ribbon plants
for Thanksgiving and

our price for June
delivery is only
$25.00 per 100.

Cash.

C. L. HUMPHREY,
Zanesville, Ohio.

STURDY CYCLAMEN
Do you want strong, stocky Cyclamen plants, out of the ordinary quality, not spindly plants, grown in too high temperature, but sturdy plants, with stamina in them; ready to grow into great big specimen plants, that should carry 20 or 30 or more giant blooms at a time, about Thanksgiving and Christmas.

We have them. You want them. What does it matter if you pay us a few cents more per plant, if you can get a dollar or so more per plant when you sell them next winter. You pay us 35c for a 3-in. pot plant in June and sell the same plant in December for $5.00 and up.

We ship in paper pots and send cultural directions. Salmon King, Salmon Queen, Crimson St. George, Grandiflora Alba, blood red and other varieties, 2¼-in. pot plants, $15.00 per 100, $135.00 per 1000; 3-in. pot plants, $35.00 per 100, $315.00 per 1000. Cash or satisfactory references.
Howe-Underhill Co., Pennington, N. J.

We have a surplus of two varieties of Cyclamen, white with red eye and pure white, transplanted seedlings, fine strain. Special price, $50.00 per 1000.
Fred H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind.

ROLF ZETLITZ CO.,

Dayton, Ohio.

A CHOICE STRAIN OF
Cyclamen seed, will create the greatest pleasure for the grower, when they make that beautiful show of large well colored, long heavy stemmed flowers, standing erect above such silvery lined foliage as our choice strain will produce and is the only way to avoid disappointments, when they come to bloom.
We have that strain of which I am sure there is no better, and can not be surpassed, at least that is the conviction of our many customers.
Scarcity of such extra good seed, will put price much higher the coming season, for early sowing, purchase now so to have it on hand.
The following colors are now available: Christmas Red, Defiance, dark blood and bright red, dark and light salmon, $2.00 per 100, $18.00 per 1000. Our cultural directions go with all orders, in them you will find a life-time experience. Cash please.
C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, St. Petersburg, The Sunshine City of Florida.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

"Best business ever," is the verdict of Mrs. H. J. Krueger, Meadville, Pa., who added that Will Krueger had not been heard from since he left on what was to be a brief fishing tour. It was suggested that a big fish might have swallowed him, but his mother disagrees with that suggestion, saying that no fish is large enough to hold him; besides, he is needed in the business.

June weddings, following a record-breaking Memorial day, are keeping all hands busy, reports George H. Heelas, Jamestown, N. Y.

• • • •

R. P. Mauser is the latest addition to the trade in Jamestown, N. Y., with a fine piece of land and the nucleus of a modern range of glass. Mr. Mauser was a coworker with Charles N. Cotter at the Lake View Rose Gardens.

• • • •

"We are getting our share of the good things," replied Elliott Worden, Jamestown, N. Y., to the inquiry, "How's business?"

• • • •

The Growers' Exchange, under the guidance of Charles N. Cotter, bids fair to be a leading business in Jamestown, N. Y. Recently Jeffrey Cotter was inadvertently referred to as a son of our distinguished confrere, who, though a most successful propagator, has not yet succeeded in raising the genus homo.

"Fine sales, with some stock left over, which will be welcome for the purpose of providing next season's supply," reports George E. Button, Fredonia, N. Y.

• • • •

Lewis Roesch, of the West Hill Nurseries, Fredonia, N. Y., expresses the opinion that this has been a great season for planting. Irises are a specialty at this establishment. W. M.

BATAVIA, ILL.

G. Schott, manager of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., comprising over 100,000 square feet of glass, is quite elated over his peony harvest, just completed. Over 150,000 blooms have been cut this season, by far the largest yield and best crop thus far. The company plans to plant ten more acres of peonies in the autumn. American Beauties have been discarded and over 35,000 young grafted plants of the leading rose varieties have been planted, principally Premier and Butterfly. The greenhouses are being painted inside and outside, and in general everything is right up to the minute. Mr. Schott was formerly with Poehlmann Bros. Co., A. F. Amling Co., Fred Weber and other good growers.

The Excell Laboratories,

4535 Ravenswood Ave., Chicago, Ill. Arlington Heights, Ill., Nov. 13, 1919.

DEAR SIRS:—Have used your "Zenke's Compound Plant Insecticide" for Red Spider, which I have been troubled with, and find that it has done wonders. Will advise other florists whom I meet occasionally of its wonderful power in doing away with that pest (Red Spider) and also other insects. Would like to have you send me at once, by express, one gallon of "Zenke's Liquid Fungicide," which I am going to try out for Mildew.

Yours very truly,

PAUL SCHRAMM & SON.

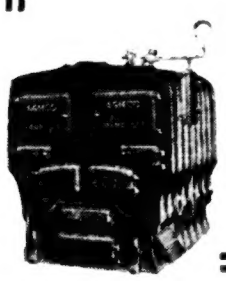
No!

It's not just a question of boilers and cash.
Not just sections and pipe and the wherewithal.
You know you ought to get three things with your boiler:

You ought to get q-u-a-l-i-t-y!
You ought to get s-e-r-v-i-c-e!
You ought to get p-r-i-c-e c-o-n-s-i-s-t-e-n-c-y!



You're entitled to all these things in addition to the merchandise you get for your money. You want an efficient boiler, and you want honest pipe and an altogether scientific and practical heating system, installed when it's needed, the way it's needed and at the right price.

WE WANT you to know your business is appreciated—that we're bound to please you, because when you buy of us you make one more satisfied customer for the AGMCO.

YOU WANT what you must have, and as that's what we give you, you want to

The AGMCO is recognized as the logical greenhouse for the grower who earnestly wants to grow.

Under the sign of the Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., will stand two AGMCO pipe frame houses, 11 x 125 feet, next fall. These are to be used for propagating purposes.

Next spring will see a third—an AGMCO steel framer, 57 x 284 feet, added to the range.

Those acquainted with the manager of the Springfield Floral Co., Mr. William Saville, will know that nothing but merit in a greenhouse carries weight with him.

If that carries weight with you, let's talk it over.

Like everything else pertaining to greenhouses, we have given the subject of greenhouse paint considerable study.

The conditions met with in a greenhouse are quite different than in ordinary structures; the woodwork is different and there is a great deal of moisture and heat.

We discovered, years ago, a paint which certainly is a wonder as a preservative and a thoroughly white covering.

You make no mistake in using it, as it is no experiment, but has stood the test of time.
